2. That your petitioners fully admit the necessity of putting the public finances on a sound footing, and do not object to any reasonable taxation for that purpose.

3. That the tax now imposed appears to your petitioners objectionable in character, and inapplicable, inasmuch as it falls unequally on the public, the wealthy landed proprietors and those who derive their incomes from Government and other securities being exempted, while those who are the least able to bear direct taxation are subjected to a heavy burden, owing to the unfair mode which has been adopted in framing the schedules of the classes liable to the tax.

4. That the small amount estimated to be derived from the tax does not in the opinion of your petitioners justify the creation of the vexatious and inquisitorial machinery by which it is proposed to collect it.

5. That the statement made by the Right Hon. W. N. Massey fails to show good reason for any fresh taxation, and even granting his estimated deficiency to have been satisfactorily proved, your petitioners submit that so small a sum might easily have been supplied from sources much less open to objection than the present license tax.

6. That the Act imposing the tax was passed by the Council of India with such unnecessary haste that no opportunity was afforded to your petitioners of expressing any opinion upon it.

7. That your petitioners are therefore compelled to appeal to your Excellency, in the hope that your Excellency will, upon consideration, and in view of the universal disfavour with which all classes, Europeans and natives, have received it, see fit to rescind the Act for licensing trades and professions.—Madras Times.

AMALGAMATION OF PRESIDENCY BANKS.

When we last referred to Mr. Dickson and his "elaborate minute," as it is termed in Calcutta, we expressed our opinion that Bombay, broken in spirit though it be, would scarcely appreciate the manner in which the Bank of Bengal offered to effect its financial regeneration. The extracts from our Bombay contemporaries, which we have published within the last day or two, have proved the correctness of this opinion, and it is sad to note the tendency of human nature to look the handsomest gift horse in the mouth. There are some people in Bombay audacious enough to inquire why, as they have to raise capital for a new bank, they should pay a premium for the shares, to be absorbed into the reserve fund of the "one great Bank." They absolutely suggest an attempt to resuscitate the Bank of Bombay by the issue of new capital at par—the bank thus formed to have nothing to do with the liabilities of the old bank, and to take over only cash, its agreement with Government, and any remnant of goodwill that may be left. This is nothing more than the Bengal proposal, minus the 25 per cent. premium and the supreme control that is to be vested in the Calcutta board. We do not know that anything will come of this, but it is significant as showing what may be looked for once Bombay has fairly turned the corner. We believe that the very first thing then done will be the formation of a powerful local bank, which will prove a dangerous competitor to the branch of the Imperial Bank, and will at any rate render the employment of the capital of the latter more difficult and less profitable than Mr. Dickson in the meantime calculates upon. In the face of these ominous murmurings from Bombay it is amusing to see how the Calcutta papers are singing the praises of the one great bank, as if it were an accomplished fact, and no worship is too base for them of the image which Mr. Dickson gets the credit of setting up. After careful study of the scheme the journals of the first city in India can find no flaw in it, except that its parent and promoter, Mr. Dickson, cannot live for ever. The political economy of our Calcutta contemporaries is evidently very second-hand, as not one of them has ventured to do more than give the baldest echo of Mr. Dickson's celebrated letter. That the author cannot live for ever we regret as much as anyone, but we venture to think that this is not the most important imperfection in the scheme which is ushered in with such flourish of trumpets. We are not near enough the great banking luminary to be dazzled into blindness, and at this distance we are not afraid to criticise what in Calcutta it is high treason to refuse to worship. We have already pointed out what we consider the important points rendering the offer to the Bank of Madras not worth the acceptance of the shareholders, and as a further argument we would remark that Bank of Bengal shares have receded to Rs. 7,600, although 80 lakhs of fresh capital are to be offered immediately to the shareholders at only 25 per cent. premium. What, we would ask, is likely to be the price of the shares when another crore comes to be placed in Bombay, and half a crore here? We are ashamed to appeal to the speculative shareholders of Madras stock in this way, but it is to their votes Mr. Dickson entirely trusts, and it is well they should know how much reliance is to be placed on his estimate of 100 per cent. premium as the value of the shares of the "one great bank." We have no great fear as to how people will vote who wish to hold Madras stock as a simple investment, for we have shown that there is every reason to believe that their bank as at present managed is likely to be safer and more profitable than the huge concern which they are invited to join. In support of this view we may mention that the directors find their present capital of 56 lakhs sufficient for their requirements, so that the additional 44 lakhs to be raised would go to reduce dividends by lying idle here, or would have to be used either in Bengal or Bombay. But the former has managed very well hitherto with two crores and 20 lakhs, and in future it is to have three crores, while for Bombay there is to be another crore raised. Supposing therefore 56 lakhs to be all that Madras requires, four crores and 44 lakhs must find employment elsewhere. Now we have already pointed out that the business in Bombay is one not to be relied upon for any length of time. It is not, therefore, without good reason that we doubt whether five crores are not more than the "one great bank" can pay a large dividend upon, and the value of shares must of course depend on the dividends paid. We trust, however, there are few in Madras who require to be convinced of the folly of throwing in their modest bank's lot with the Imperial Bank projected by Mr. Dickson. Even if there be some who believe that such an amalgamation would pay, we would appeal to them on public grounds to vote against it. Vain glorious as the Calcutta papers are, they are in great doubt whether the Madrassees will sacrifice their independence at the bidding of Mr. Dickson. In dull times the local board would be allowed every latitude in the way of managing the finances of their branch, but when money gets dear the "supreme control vested in Calcutta" would come into play, and Madras would be drained to help Calcutta. But on this point, we fancy, there can be no disagreement, and we have confidence in the shareholders on the 10th April giving an unqualified refusal to the offer from Bengal.—Madras Times, April 1.

THE FAMINE.—The pressure of famine still continues, we regret to say, in Madura, though the authorities there are doing all that is possible to mitigate it. Three large relief houses are kept up, and many hundreds of able-bodied poor are employed in increasing the means of obtaining a good supply of water. From Bellary, on the other hand, a district which suffered much last hot season, very satisfactory accounts have been received. The Government, anxious to shun the mistake made in the case of Orissa, have given much attention to increasing the water supply and means of communication of this district, in view to prevent any repetition of the sufferings it has lately passed through. The Collector has just finished a minute tour through the district, in course of which he inspected all the irrigation works, and such famine works as were in course of construction. He says that no apprehension regarding the comfort and safety of man or beast during the next six months of the year need be entertained. Such distress as exists is confined to the ordinary pauper population. The Collector advocates the Toombudra water-supply project, and says "it was a sad mistake of the Madras Irrigation Company, under the lead of the unrivalled engineer, General Cotton, to fix Kurnool as the keystone of their irrigation and navigation projects. Had they taken the Upper Bellary projects as their key-stone they would have been by this time realising profits, instead of applying for an additional loan. No one wants to go a mile an hour in boats in this district by a tortuous canal, not would cotton or other produce stand such a dilatory mode of conveyance, but a supply of good water for paddy, garden crops, and grass would have saved an enormous amount of animal and human suffering. It is not a question of the comparative profits and advantages of a rain-fed or a river irrigated cultivation, deducting the average returns of the latter from the profits of the former, and striking a balance of profit; but it is a question of certain against uncertain supply of the necessary of life, which cannot be shown in figures. The practicability of the Toombudra project has, however, to be established, and its execution in any case will occupy many years. Meanwhile, in a country where the district roads are the worst possible, it is good to learn that the railway works are being pressed on with the utmost rapidity, and it seems, from the latest report on the progress of the line, not improbable that engines may be running into Bellary by the middle of next year.

ANNIVERSARIES.—The presidency town is just now undergoing a course of "anniversaries," or meetings at educational institutions where prize-giving, essay and report reading, and speeches on educational topics are the principal attractions. Patcheappah's High School, the largest, best conducted, and best endowed native school in this or in any other part of the country, had its founder's day on Thursday last, Mr. Holloway, judge of the High Court, presiding. A series of able speeches delivered on former anniversaries by the patron of the institution, Mr. Norton, the present Advocate-general, has done much to create an unusual amount of public interest in these periodical proceedings, an interest which, under the patronage of Mr. Holloway, who has considerable reputation as a public speaker, has in no way abated. The meeting on Thursday was crowded to excess, and the speech was an eloquent one, but being for the most part an attempt to raise the reputation of our own

Director of Public Instruction and University by depreciating the work done by Sir Alexander Grant, the Director of Public Instruction of Bombay, and the University of which he is the Vice-Chancellor, many considered the departure from Mr. Norton's custom of choosing some practical topic far from a happy or fitting one. For more than half an hour Mr. Holloway devoted all his oratorical powers to show that Bombay was an elaborate pretence. It owed its reputation, he said, to systematic puffing. "The Governor puffed the University, the University the Governor, and the press both." It was felt generally that it would have been wiser had such and similar expressions been left unsaid, and especially before such an audience. Mr. Holloway is to deliver the address at the forthcoming convocation of our University. At the anniversary of the Presidency College on Friday, Lord Napier presided. Our late Governor was indefatigable in presiding at similar meetings, even to a fault, but since the arrival of Lord Napier our educationalists have till now had to look elsewhere for a presiding patron at their annual displays. This fact and the fact that while his lordship has interested himself in workshops, jails, hospitals, and asylums, to a remarkable extent, he has not visited any of the many Government educational institutions about him, lent extra interest to the occasion, as many were anxious to hear what his lordship would say. In a short but neat speech he spoke of the deep interest he felt in the education of the people of this part of India generally, and in the Presidency College in particular, the leading educational institution, and announced his intention of devoting his leisure during the next few months to making himself acquainted with the schools and colleges under the control of the Educational Department of Government. That he had not done so earlier was owing not to any disinclination on his part to do so, but solely to the want of the necessary leisure.—Madras Times.

BOMBAY.

TOO MANY FIELD OFFICERS IN THE STAFF CORPS.

The Bombay Gazette publishes the following Memorandum on the excessive number of Field Officers in the Indian Staff Corps:—

The annexed tabulated statement clearly shows that the number of field officers in the Staff Corps is far in excess of the requirements of the service, and that this excess must become more disproportionate yearly.

The Government do not appear to have realised the enormous prospective liabilities they have incurred by admitting all lieutenant colonels after 12 years' service to colonels' allowances. In 1872 there will be 921 lieutenant colonels in the three Staff Corps, and all who survive will be in receipt of colonels' allowances in 1884, allowing that 221 may retire or die (and this seems a maximum) 700 remain, and £1,000 a year to each amounts to £700,000, which at once nearly doubles the amount, including colonels' allowances, now paid by the Home Government to all the retired officers of the three Presidencies.

The number of unemployed field officers is increasing monthly, and it would be a great saving to Government if those in excess could be got rid of gradually, and what is suggested is—

1st. That 100 extra pensions be offered annually in the proportion of 45 to Bengal, 32 to Madras and 23 to Bombay.

2nd. That brevet-colonels in the Staff Corps get the pension of their rank, £156, with £144 additional, or in all £300 a-year.

3rd. That lieutenant-colonels get £365 and an extra pension of £135, or in all £500.

4th. That if the allotted number of extra pensions has not been accepted by lieutenant-colonels it be offered to majors, who should get 292 with an extra pension of £108, or in all £400.

These pensions to be given irrespective of leave, and the seniors to have the preference.

The staff corps pay of 100 lieutenant-colonels amounts annually to £99,840
Pension of rank £135, with extra of £500 to 100 lieutenant-colonels 50,000

Saving £49,340

So the saving now would be nearly five lakhs annually, and Government would get rid of their liability for colonels' allowances. Even if this boon were offered and accepted there would still be upwards of 300 lieutenant-colonels and 500 majors in the three staff corps in 1872; and how is suitable employment to be found even for that reduced number?

COMMENCEMENT OF IRRIGATION WORK.—

The Times of India says:—It is very encouraging to observe that steps have already been taken in this Presidency, which indicate an intention on the part of the Government to lose no time in setting about the prosecution of irrigation works in earnest. We understand that Colonel Fife, R.E., has been appointed to this important branch as a sort of special superintendent of public works, and that a large increase is to be made in the staff of the department to enable it to discharge the additional duties that will be thrown upon it. It is probable that the new order of things will be highly agreeable to the scientific corps, who, besides taking a genuine professional interest in the work, will be indebted to it for a great deal of promotion, and, we trust, well-requited employment. A certain addition to the number of working "hands" will doubtless be necessary. But we venture to express a hope that the enlargement of the executive will be effected with the utmost caution, and will not necessitate a further development of that costly practice, the appointment of civil and military officers, who are not professionally qualified to the post of practical engineers. It would have been more gratifying to those who look only to the success of the great work, if by way of commencement there had been the publication of a thoroughly digested scheme of operations.

EXPECTED VISIT OF THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH TO INDIA.—

The Bombay Gazette says:—Some enthusiastic loyalists are contemplating the time when our descendants shall see a prince of British blood reigning over India. It is useless to look so far into the future, or to speculate what may be the consequences of such a contingency. If the rumour, however, which has gained currency be true that H.R. II the Duke of Edinburgh will soon visit Bombay, in command of H.M.S. Galatea, there can be no doubt that his visit will give great gratification to the natives and have a very beneficial effect. The great fuss that is made by the natives about Queen Victoria is not so much homage paid to the sovereign of England itself as to the unknown power which they have discovered by experience can alone check and diminish the absolute rule of the administrative government of this country, and which therefore they have learned to regard as a useful court of appeal. The policy of a prince of the Royal house paying an occasional visit to India is much to be commended. A London correspondent writes to the Times of India on this topic, saying, "Perhaps you know more in Bombay, than we do in London about what I am now about to discourse upon—but there is a report here that the Queen's second son, the Duke of Edinburgh, will shortly visit Bombay; and that instructions have been sent out to organise for him a grand hunting expedition in the interior. I cannot answer for the truth of this story, and I can gain no authentic information respecting it in quarters likely to be well informed. I merely send you the story as it has reached me. It is, at all events, suggestive. It may be regarded either from a sporting or from a political point of view. In the former it is not very encouraging. When I remember the sad fate which befel one of the finest young fellows in the whole range of our aristocracy, Lord Edward St. Maur, it is hard to encourage one of our royal princes to go out to meet such enemies as bears and tigers. But as there is a divinity that 'doth hedge a king,' so also there may be a divinity which hedgeth a royal prince; and it is not likely that the Duke of Edinburgh will be exposed to such extreme risks as those to which the Duke of Somerset's gallant son so recklessly exposed himself. On the other hand, you must remember that Prince Frederick of Schleswig-Holstein, first cousin of the Queen's favourite son-in-law, was not very long ago shikaring in India, and returned after a time to England on account of his father's death, but with an ardent desire to make another expedition on the same fields of enterprise."

THE NEW GOVERNOR NOT TO BE IMPOSED UPON.—The Bombay Gazette says:—Mr. Fitzgerald has made a favourable impression on the people of Bombay by gracefully conceding a point of some importance to the peace and good government of the town. For very many years the question of providing Bombay with a complete and thorough system of drainage has been under discussion here, and two or three months ago Mr. Russell Aitken, the engineer to the Municipality, brought forward a very elaborate, and it was hoped final plan for carrying out this most necessary public work. The Municipality of Bombay, as now constituted, is an independent corporation, supposed to possess powers of local administration in every part of the island, and it might naturally be presumed that this engineer would under them have authority in all matters concerning his department within the limits of the town. But, unfortunately, Bombay is still vexed and harassed with the presence of a multitude of Royal Engineers belonging to the Public Works Department, who, having lost much of the substantive power they once enjoyed in the island, are still able to do a good deal of mischief by checking and upsetting the designs of every engineer who does not belong to their caste. There are so many subdivisions of the Public Works Department, and therefore so many petty chiefs of offices who conceive they have a right to say something on every topic of public interest, that Mr. Aitken, alone and unfriended, has no chance against them. The Department is like an evil spirit pervading every part of Bombay. If Mr. Aitken goes into the streets and roads, the Royal Engineers are there to confront him; if in despair he turns to the foreshore, they are there also, making docks or piers with as much equanimity as Mr. Micawber used to display when he condescended to place his splendid abilities at the service of his fellow-men in some new kind of business. In fact, it is hardly possible for Mr. Aitken to turn a corner without knocking his head against one of these military engineers. Their straightforward opposition, however, would be tolerable; and it is just to add that the most distinguished among them, Col. De Lisle, generally expresses opinions on local questions that are well deserving of careful consideration—though we hardly think that in London the Metropolitan Board of Works would consent to have the designs of its engineer, Mr. Bazalgette, revised by any Royal engineer, however distinguished he might be. But great indignation was excited here last week by the announcement that Col. Kennedy, the Public Works' Secretary, had taken advantage of the new Governor's want of familiarity with local affairs to persuade him to refer Mr. Aitken's drainage scheme to a committee composed mainly of Public Works officers, and having as one of its nominally independent members a young kinsman of Colonel Kennedy's who held the office of Acting Municipal Engineer for some time before Mr. Aitken's arrival, and who considered himself superseded by the appointment of the new Engineer. The nomination of such a committee would of course have been a direct personal insult to Mr. Aitken; and it is highly creditable to Mr. Fitzgerald that as soon as he became aware, from the articles that appeared in the newspapers, of the real nature of the mistake into which he had been betrayed, he at once cancelled the obnoxious resolution of Government, and nominated a new committee, composed of members to whose names no exception can be taken.

THE AMALGAMATION OF THE BANKS.—The shareholders of the Bank of Madras have unanimously approved the decision of their directors to reject the proposed plan of amalgamation with the Bank of Bengal. In Bombay nothing has yet been settled. Mr. Dickson is on his way round from Calcutta to continue the negotiations personally on the spot, and it is understood that the directors of the Bank of Bengal have already conceded the modifications of their original proposal demanded by our directors. There can be no doubt, however, that the feeling in Bombay against amalgamation is growing stronger from day to day, and one would not object to this, if the feeling were more reasonable, and if the vehement opponents of Mr. Dickson's plan could themselves suggest any other that might be preferred to it. But up to this time the only alternative suggestion made has been the highly practical one that the local Government should find the money, somehow or other, for starting a new bank. The next step to be taken is the submission of the Bengal offer to the consideration of the shareholders of the Bank of Bombay. A meeting for this purpose will probably be called next week by the directors, and the opponents of amalgamation will do well to organise their forces before that meeting takes place, and to be prepared to state for the information of the shareholders what amount of capital they can guarantee that they will raise within a fixed time for a new bank if they have the assurance of retaining the Treasury business. We greatly doubt if Bombay has either the spirit or the ability to start a new bank, but if we are in error in thinking so, at all events it is time that our error should be proved by figures and facts. Unless some definite counter proposal is made at the meeting of shareholders, the directors of the two banks will be justified in taking no account of the idle declamation in which certain controversialists will continue to indulge.—Bombay Gazette.

GENERAL HEATH.—The remains of General Heath were interred on the evening of the 25th March in the Protestant portion of the Christian cemetery at Kurrachee. The two Infantry Regiments were formed into line with arms reversed, opposite the deceased General's residence, the coffin was carried on an artillery waggon with his uniform and honours placed over the pall, the band of the 33rd (Duke of Wellington's) Regiment played the dead march in "Saul" with muffled drums, the bell of Trinity Church tolled the death-knell, and the Royal Artillery, which was conveniently drawn up, fired eleven minute guns. All the officers of the station, with almost every gentleman residing in the city, formed themselves into procession, and followed the waggon to a considerable distance, when the regiments fell in, and marched towards the burial-ground in slow time. Reaching the cemetery the soldiers formed themselves into a street, through which the body was borne, the two sons of the General being chief mourners. The Revs. Bagnell and Jones performed the burial service in a most impressive manner, and at its conclusion the Royal Artillery again fired eleven minute guns. The concourse of people at the burial-ground was larger than any that has ever yet assembled in it.—Our Paper, 26th March.

COMMERCIAL ALARM IN BOMBAY.—Yesterday morning (the 12th April) the news spread through Bombay, creating much excitement and alarm, that several private telegrams to the 8th inst. had been received by mercantile firms in this city announcing great depression in the Manchester and Liverpool markets, and a panic in London and Paris, caused by the prospect of a continental war. Curiously enough, none of the telegrams distinctly mentions who are expected to be the parties to the war; but the inference of course is that France and Prussia have quarrelled about Luxembourg, and are going to fight to determine whether, now that the old German Confederation is dissolved, the duchy shall remain German soil or become a part of French territory. No telegram confirming the news has yet been received by Reuter's agent in Bombay, and it may be remarked that the working of this agency here has lately been most unsatisfactory, and that any new telegram company started in London would find a good opening for doing a profitable business in Bombay.—Bombay Gazette.

THE STEAMSHIP "SEA KING," which sailed from Bombay harbour for Zanzibar, was very recently known as the Confederate vessel Shenandoah, under which name she was for many months the terror of American (Federal) merchant ships. She was lately purchased for the Sultan of Zanzibar through the agency of Messrs. Nicol and Co., and has English officers, some of whom—the engineers—have signed articles for three years. But little cargo was taken by the Sea King, and she had 400 tons of coal for consumption on the voyage, besides carrying a good deal of ballast. She had no ordnance mounted when she left, but she had on board some of Palliser's guns and two field pieces, all of which were specially purchased for the new owner of the ship. This steamer was named the Sea King before becoming the property of the Confederates, and was employed in the Australian trade.—Times of India.

NEW LIGHTHOUSE NEAR ADEN.—A fixed dioptric light of the first order was lighted on or about the 21st ultimo, and will henceforth be displayed on Ras Marshag, Aden—the extreme eastern point of the peninsula, in lat. 12 deg. 45 min. 23 sec. north, and long. 45 deg. 5 min. 56 sec. east. The light will be seen twenty miles in clear weather, and will be shown from sunset to sunrise. The tower is constructed of dark blue stone, and the centre of the lantern is 244 feet above high water. The light will be chiefly of use to vessels making Aden from the east. Vessels approaching from the west would see the light when Jebel Husain or Little Aden on the western side of the harbour entrance bears true N., distant 3½ nautical miles.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

BANDA AND KIRWEE PRIZE MONEY.

Mr. DENMAN asked the Secretary of State for India what proportion of the Banda and Kirwee prize money had been distributed, and if not the whole what were the reasons of the delay, and when the unpaid claimants might expect payment. He wished to ask the same question with respect to the prize money for Central India.

Sir S. NORTHGOTE feared that he could not give the hon. and learned member a very satisfactory answer, as no portion of the Banda and Kirwee prize money had as yet been distributed—(hear, hear). He had every reason, however, to hope that the distribution would speedily take place. Instructions had been sent out in November last to the Indian Government, and that Government had in consequence directed all claims to be sent in by the 1st of March. A special message to expedite proceedings had since been sent out with Colonel Norman, and no time would be lost. The same answer would apply to the prize money for Central India.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MAY 3.

CLAIMS OF INDIAN OFFICERS.

Major JERVIS asked for copy of the instructions sent by the Secretary of State for India to the Government of India, relative to the proposed settlement of the bonus question for the Indian army.

Sir S. NORTHGOTE replied that yesterday a despatch was ordered to be written on the subject, which he would lay upon the table, and that would show that the Council adhered to the terms of the letter of August 8, written by Lord Cranborne.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE DEFENCE OF INDIA.—Lieut.-Colonel Fraser, R.E., has a paper on "The Defence of India in the present number of Fraser's Magazine. The views clash in many points with the assertions of Sir W. Mansfield. In the first place, Colonel Fraser asserts that India can be held by 40,000 men. Sir W. Mansfield considers 61,000 men the minimum, and that, mind, not for defence, but for internal service. Secondly, Colonel Fraser insists on a high rate of mortality, which Sir William Mansfield denies. However, Colonel Fraser's paper mainly applies to the mode of economising troops, and yet having them ready to march in event of danger on the strategic points most necessary to hold. He recommends making a fortress at, or the fortifying of Rangoon and Tongoo, in order to secure British Burmah. Then he wants 2,000 men at Fort William to secure Calcutta, and 500 men detached to Koshtea or Rajmahal, and 500 men at or near Patna in fortified barracks. Next, the fort at Allahabad is to be occupied by 2,000 men, and Cawnpore and Jubbulpore are to be held each by 500 men in fortified barracks. Agra, Delhi, and Umballah, to Lahore, Mooltan, and Philour or Jhelum—must be occupied in the same way with similar detachments and similar points respectively. Peshawur is to have a fortress and garrison, with detachment at Attock. Thus, when the Grand Trunk-road is completed to Peshawur there would be five great centres of refuge and points d'appui in India, with nine or ten minor centres. It would seem that whilst there is a general rush of engineers to pull down forts in Europe, there is a tendency on the part of Indian engineers to multiply strong places in the East. And, we believe, rightly. We remember Cawnpore and Agra, and the small house at Arrah. But Colonel Fraser relies rather too much on forts. Fort St. George, with 2,000 men, at Madras, with a detachment of 500 at Bangalore; Bombay with a fortress to be built for 2,000 men, and 500 men on the rail, and 500 at Rull Ghat; a fort at the junction of the Nagpore branch with the line to Jubbulpore; a fort at Kurrachee, with the usual detachments at Hyderabad and Sukkur; a force of 3,000 men to be massed at Darjeeling, another of 2,000 men at Lucknow, another of 2,000 men about Dagshai, another of 5,000 men in the hills north of Lahore, another of 3,000 men in the Neilgherries, another of 4,000 men in healthy places in Bombay, separate columns at Poona and Belgaum of 2,000 men each as movable columns—an eruption of forts, and of forces, and columns! India would certainly be bound to keep the peace. But who is to pay?

Colonel Fraser will answer that the reduced cost would give the money. He would only want forty British regiments of 800 each, and 8,000 artillery and engineers for all these works and columns. We cannot enter into the details of his plan, or consider all his suggestions for the reduction of the native armies and their location. Fraser is well worth buying, and anyone interested can read the paper. But we must express our conviction that if India can only be held by such a system as Colonel Fraser thinks essential, the sooner we make up our minds to retire from it the better. The cost of life in case of epidemics breaking out in forts where men would be boxed up so closely would be in itself appalling. The engineer is right in looking to his own work, but the statesman has something more to do in India than to build forts, and we not believe 40,000 or 400,000 British troops, if Britain could spare them, could suffice to hold India if the 180,000,000 of her people were to resort merely to a passive resistance to our rule, and to resolve to do nothing to help us to stay in their country.—Army and Navy Gazette.

GENERAL SIR SYDNEY COTTON AND H.M.'S 81ST REGIMENT.—A very interesting military occurrence took place lately in the Castle at Chester. It was the reception given, quite accidentally, by the officers and soldiers of the 81st Regiment, to Lieutenant-General Sir Sydney Cotton, k.c.b., under whom that gallant corps had served several years on the north-west frontier of India. On the general presenting himself in the barrack square he was at once recognised by the non-commissioned officers and men. The officers, at the head of whom was Major Flanagan, warmly received their old general, and in passing through the barrack-rooms, by permission of the major commanding, the soldiers everywhere received him with hearty and repeated cheers. The General, who was in plain clothes, addressed the men as follows:—"Soldiers of the 81st,—I am not here now your commander as in former times. I come amongst you as your old friend and comrade. I have the highest respect for this gallant corps. A splendid regiment you were under my command, always in the highest state of efficiency; none could surpass you. You served under me in the field and in quarters for four years; I will know your merits and shall never lose sight of you. Tell your comrades at regimental headquarters what I have said. Your reception of me here to-day has quite overpowered me. For the officers and men of the gallant 81st I entertain the highest respect, affection, and esteem. May God bless and prosper you all." At the sergeants' mess the General was received with the same kindly feeling. Sir Sydney Cotton is well-known to be one of the strictest disciplinarians in the service.

CHARTERED MERCANTILE BANK OF INDIA, LONDON, AND CHINA.—The directors of the Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London, and China have issued their annual report for presentation at the meeting of shareholders on the 21st of April. The accounts show a profit for the year ending December last of £102,221. 3s. 2d., to which is to be added £2,713. 14s. 2d. brought forward from the previous year, making a total of £104,934. 17s. 4d. A sum of £75,000 has been paid in two half-yearly dividends of 5 per cent. each. The directors state that, looking forward to the possibility of continued danger from the disastrous events of 1866, they have curtailed as much as possible their business at all points. The amount set aside for the losses at Bombay in 1865 proved insufficient, and this, added to the losses of 1866, necessitated a heavy withdrawal from the reserve fund, which now stands at £145,902. 14s. 8d.

THE CAPITAL OF THE DELHI RAILWAY.—Within the past few days the sum of £212,300 has been paid into the Bank of England to the credit of the Secretary of State for India on account of capital of the Delhi Railway, making, with previous payments, a total of £252,795 during the month of April. When the last mail left India it was expected that the Delhi and Meerut section of the line would be opened for traffic about the 18th April. This portion will bring Meerut into direct railway communication with Calcutta and Agra, and open up one of the most fertile districts in India.

MADRAS RAILWAY.—The report of the Madras Railway Company has been issued. It states that during the year the traffic and receipts exhibit steadiness under a continuance of adverse circumstances. The issue of debentures amounting to £500,000, announced in the last report, has been duly completed, and shares representing the remaining half of the £1,000,000 of capital, authorised to be raised in May last, have recently been offered in ratable allotments to the proprietors.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The biddings for Government bills on India took place on Wednesday, the 1st inst., at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were: to Calcutta, 13,70,000 rupees; to Madras, 20,000 rupees; and to Bombay, 8,00,000 rupees. The minimum price was fixed as before—viz., at 1s. 11½d. on all the presidencies. Tenders on Bombay at 1s. 11½d. will receive about 89 per cent.; Those above that price on Bombay, and those on Calcutta and Madras at 1s. 11½d. and upwards will receive in full. These results indicate a further, though slight, diminution in the demand for the means of remittance to the East.

A MAHOMEDAN BARRISTER.—Among the names of those called to the bar on Tuesday last in the Middle Temple appears that of Budroodeen Tyabjee. This gentleman is a Mahomedan, and the first ever called to the English bar. The oaths of allegiance, &c., were administered to him in the usual terms, but he was sworn on the Koran. He intends to practise at the bar at Bombay, where he will be the first disciple of the Prophet who has ever held such a position in India.

A DEPUTATION OF THE EAST INDIA ASSOCIATION waited on the Secretary of State for India on Wednesday, last to protest against the interpretation given by the Governor-general of India to Lord Cranborne's despatch, granting compensation to officers of the Indian army for the losses they had sustained by the compulsory abolition of the regimental bonus funds.

DEATH OF AN EAST INDIA MERCHANT.—On the 1st inst. died Mr. John Henderson, of Park, Glasgow, an East India merchant, who is said to have spent between £30,000 and £40,000 for religious and charitable purposes, as the gift of "working men's" prizes for Sabbatarian Essays.

This estate will be sold in one lot, in fee simple, free of all demands on account of land revenue, exclusive of existing local cesses, such as road, educational, and postal cesses, or such as may be hereafter legally imposed, for Rupees 1,25,000 (one hundred and twenty-five thousand rupees).

DYSENTERY, CHOLERA, FEVER, AGUE, ETC.CHLORODYNE.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a certain cure in Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colics, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—"So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases." From A. Montgomery, Esq., late Inspector of Hospitals, Bombay.—"Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I fairly owe my restoration to health after eighteen months' severe suffering, and when all other remedies had failed."

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne; that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—See the Times, July 13, 1864.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—The Right Hon. Earl Russell commended to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, Dec. 31, 1864.

DR. LOWE, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec., 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered the patient recovered.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the best and most certain remedy in Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Consumption, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is publicly acknowledged by the most eminent Physicians of London to be the most effectual remedy every discovered. To prevent fraud, the Government have authorised a Stamp, with the words Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne engraved thereon, without which none can be genuine. Sole Manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London. The immense demand enables the proprietors to reduce the price; it is now sold in bottles, 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Calcutta Mail brings us our usual files of papers, from Calcutta to the 13th of April, Madras to the same date, and Bombay to the 19th of April.

In Calcutta the strong feeling against the Licence-tax had not quite subsided; for it was believed that a representation had been made by the local Government to Sir Stafford Northcote that the objection to the tax is not general, but is confined to certain classes. The allusion is, of course, to the non-official classes. This is scarcely fair, considering that Government servants are necessarily debarred from agitating against Government measures, and have been unable, therefore, to make themselves heard. To be sure persons of this class with incomes of less than Rs. 1,000 are exempt; and the Government having now included clerks and servants in private employ, drawing the same incomes, in the privileged list, a considerable source of opposition is removed.

The Licence-tax is not the only feature of Mr. Massey's Budget which is regarded with disfavour in India. The enhanced duty on rice is causing a great deal of dissatisfaction, and its working in connection with Burmah is now causing positive alarm. The export of rice is the largest and most profitable trade in Burmah. The country, in fact, is a vast granary, which supplies Ceylon, the Mauritius, Australia, and even India with rice, and also sends large supplies of grain to Europe. The enhancement of the duty by 50 per cent. has, as it might have been supposed, temporarily paralysed the rice trade, and caused many failures; and although it is believed that the trade will very soon recover, yet it is remarkable how utterly Burmah was disregarded in the consideration of the desirability of enhancing the duty, both by the Tariff Committee and by the financial member of Council.

The famine continues to excite painful interest, and will do so for some time to come. It is stated that the commissioners in their report to Government declare the mortality in Orissa amounted to one-fourth of the population, and they consider that the Board of Revenue deserves the severest condemnation.

The Government has published the actual results of the revenue and expenditure for the first six months of the financial year which closed on Monday, or up to the 31st October. The revenue was £18,383,375, against £18,967,230 in the similar period last year, and the expenditure £18,666,790, against £17,380,181. There was thus a loss on the six months of more than a million and a half sterling. There must be taxation.

The Government has invited tenders for a loan of £1,500,000 at 5 per cent., to be repayable in three instalments, at five, ten, and fifteen years respectively. This is understood to be the first portion of the loans for Public Works.

Sir Cecil Beadon was to make over charge of the Lieutenant-Governorship of Bengal to the Hon. Mr. Grey on the 22nd ult. Sir Cecil will not leave India immediately on his making over charge, but will pay a short visit to Seetapore, and will probably embark for England in May next. He has had a dinner given to him after all; but as it took place on the day of the departure of the mail from Calcutta, no particulars have been received. His entertainers, it is said, consisted principally of officials.

The Government, it is said, contemplates a very important measure with regard to native States, viz., the execution within their boundaries of decrees obtained in the civil tribunals of the British Government. The only annoyance experienced in our relations with the natives of the country is now confined to the raids to which British territory is exposed in the North-West. The Afridees, the most restless tribe on the North-Western frontier, have been of late so troublesome that a small force was organised to punish it. Subsequently, however, the force was recalled, as the Afridee chief came forward and submitted to certain conditions imposed on himself and tribe. Another hill tribe, the Orouckzyes, on the same frontier, are also reported as being very troublesome, so that it is not improbable that a small expedition will be sent out to enforce order.

The Viceroy has deputed the Bombay Government to raise a native regiment for service in China. It is not unlikely that it will be a third regiment of Beloochees, and that these troops will then be relieved every three or four years. This policy has been more than once advocated in these columns.

Money order offices have been opened at a number of stations in the North-West Provinces, the Punjab, and in Oudh.

Captain Heely and his son have been killed by lightning near Almorah, in the N. W. Provinces, and three persons have been killed by lightning at Nagpore.

A strike has taken place among the engine-drivers of the Lahore and Mooltan Railway, owing to the inconvenience caused by the stoppage of monthly salaries.

A considerable improvement is reported in the cotton grown this year in the North-West Provinces.

It is stated that the Hon. C. B. Trevor's retirement from the service will date from the 30th April, and that Mr. R. P. Harrison, Comptroller-general of Accounts, would also retire from the same date. In the latter case the Englishman believes that Mr. Hugh Sandeman will succeed to the vacant comptrollership.

The transfer of the Straits Settlements from the Government of India to the Colonial-office has been accomplished. General Cavanagh, the late Governor, has left, and Colonel Ord, the newly appointed, has entered upon the duties of his office. The reception given to the new governor, says the Indian Daily News, "is described as remarkably cool when compared with the demonstrations of respect and esteem that attended the departure of the old. The settlers can scarcely be considered as dissatisfied with the transfer to the crown, for they desired it; but, no doubt, the changes which such a transfer involves, and the considerable influx of strangers under the patronage of the Colonial-office that has attended it, have caused some slight degree of doubt and dissatisfaction."

The Madras papers contain full reports of the meeting of the shareholders of the Bank which decided against the proposed amalgamation. We give an abridged account elsewhere. There was no difference of opinion expressed, and no arguments employed, everybody having made up their minds on the subject beforehand.

There was not much news in Bombay. The Governor had returned to the Presidency, the Commander-in-Chief still remaining at Mahableshwar.

H.M.S. Wasp had arrived at Bombay from Zanzibar, but brought no more definite information about the fate of Dr. Livingstone. Dr. Seward, the British Consul, and Dr. Kirk, were both convinced that his murder was not witnessed by any of the Johanna men, but they seem to have little hope of his being alive, owing to the fact that the Mafeti tribe—one of the most savage tribes in Africa—were known to have been on the route which Dr. Livingstone pursued.

Intelligence of the loss of the French ship Oriental, bound from Gabon to Mozambique, has been received in Bombay by the ship Princess Somawutty, which vessel picked up her captain and crew.

The ship Abel Tasman, which left Bombay for Liverpool on April 5 with a cargo of cotton, has been wrecked at the Laccadive Islands. The captain and crew were saved.

The Scottish Education Society has opened its first school in Bombay.

"The public," says the Times of India, "will be glad to learn that the 'over-bridges' are settled at last, the contract having been let to Messrs. Wells and Glover, and it is expected that the work will be finished within a year from this date. There are three bridges, called respectively the Elphinstone, Musjid, and Carnac Bridges. The Musjid Bridge is to be 60 feet wide, and the others 50 feet; they will be carried over the line of the G.I.P. Railway in one span of 52 feet, so as to allow four lines of rails to be laid underneath. The estimated cost is between seven and eight lakhs, and it is to be paid by the G.I.P. Railway Company, the Municipality, and the Elphinstone Company, in equal portions, the Government providing whatever land requires to be purchased."

The Director of the Indo-European Telegraph has reported that the direct line was interrupted beyond Bagdad, and that the Persian line continued interrupted.

The feeling of mistrust in the Bombay money market continued unabated, and no improvement was expected until the produce markets should assume a more settled appearance.

The next arrival from India will be the Bombay mail, which arrived at Suez this morning, and may be expected in London on the 22nd inst.

We are glad to see that the threatened cessation of the extra steamers from Bombay, and consequent reversion to the old arrangements, by which there was only a fortnightly communication with that port, has been the subject of a question in the House of Commons, which would do well to take the subject seriously in hand. The Government have advertised for tenders for a weekly mail to be sent in by the 16th of September next; but in the meantime, and pending the establishment of such a service, the public must suffer extreme inconvenience. Surely it would be worth while to make a temporary arrangement with the Peninsular and Oriental Company if the directors persist in withdrawing the additional accommodation—a step, by the way, which will not increase their popularity.

WITCHCRAFT IN CENTRAL INDIA.—Every administration and Judicial report of the Central Provinces bewails the prevalence of a belief in witchcraft in the Eastern districts. It would seem to be common to all the aboriginal tribes, for it prevails in Chota Nagpore. In a recent case the Judicial Commissioner sentenced a man to death for killing one Mitla, whom he believed to be a wizard and to have made his child ill. The murderer had been told by a "diviner" that the spirit of Mitla was abroad, and that until appeased the child would not recover. The prisoner accordingly went to Mitla, and called upon him to take measures to appease his spirit. Mitla at first refused, saying that he had not the means, but after being threatened by the prisoner, Mitla sacrificed a sheep, a pig, and three fowls. As, however, the child did not get better, the prisoner two days afterwards went again to Mitla, abused him and his wife, accused them of witchcraft, and said openly that if his child died he would kill Mitla. Next morning Mitla was found dead in the prisoner's house with five severe wounds. The child died two or three days afterwards. On appeal Justices Kemp and Markby reduced the sentence to transportation for life with the remark—"We in no way countenance the supposition that such a motive is, in the eye of the law, any justification whatever of the crime, but we think that as the law has prescribed two different degrees of punishment for the crime of murder, this is a case which, under all circumstances, may be considered not to merit the severest punishment." Till we do more for the education of the people justice must be limited in this way.

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY BOMBAY MAIL.—(SOUTHAMPTON, May 11.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Ceylon, Capt. Evans, with the heavy portion of the above mails, eighty-nine passengers, £1,707 in specie, and a general cargo, arrived here to-day. She experienced fine weather during her passage. ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL, MONDAY, May 13, 1867.

INDIAN MILITARY FINANCE.

COLONEL ARTHUR BROOME, the Accountant-General in the Military Department, has submitted to the Government of India a memorandum which calls for notice in these columns. It relates to the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry into Indian Accounts on the system of audit and account now pursued in the Military Department, published in the Gazette Extraordinary of India of the 13th of October last, under the authority of Financial Resolution No. 2,695, of the 30th December in the same year. Upon some of the main matters noticed in the document Colonel Broome makes certain observations.

The more important representations of the Commissioners are classified as follows:—1st. That the Military Budget Estimates, as submitted by the Controllers of the three Presidencies, are unnecessarily elaborate and cumbersome; and that the revision and consolidation of these estimates by the late Military Finance Department, and now by the Accountant-general in the Military Department, has been and must be a source of delay and inconvenience. 2nd. That the process of business followed in the Disbursing and Examining Offices of the Military is extremely operose and complicated, requiring extensive agency, which under a similar system might be considerably reduced with very economical results. 3rd. That the accounts are so greatly in arrears as to be valueless when finally prepared, besides being actually prejudicial as well to the interests of Government as to individual officers; and that the financial returns submitted in the meanwhile are so defective as to render the expenditure recorded therein a matter of opinion rather than of fact. 4th. That the duties now performed by the Accountant-General Military Department are comparatively unimportant, and that his functions are such as do not justify the appellation of "Accountant-General" being given to him.

The Commissioners also submit a revised form of Budget estimate for adoption, and make the following recommendations:—1st. That the Comptroller of Military Accounts in the Bengal Presidency should also be the Accountant-general for India, aided by a deputy. 2nd. That the officers of Military Account at each Presidency should be consolidated and reconstituted, so as to form a Central Account Office at each Presidency. 3rd. That the officers of the Presidency and Circle Paymasters be gradually abolished, the duties of the Presidency Paymaster being transferred to the Accountant-general, and those of Circle Paymasters, for the most part, to Commissariat officers and Civil Treasuries. 4th. That the store accounts should be separated from the cash accounts. 5th. That the whole system of Military Accounts should be remodelled on a plan which is sketched in the Commissioners' Report.

Reviewing these representations and recommendations, Colonel Broome arrives at these conclusions:—While generally concurring with the commissioners that the present system of military audit and account has many defects, and is susceptible of much improvement, he considers the entire condemnation of the system, as pronounced by the commissioners, as too sweeping, being based, to a considerable extent, on an exaggerated view of trifling imperfections, on certain actual mis-statements, and on some erroneous deductions. Moreover, it appears to him that due allowance has not been made for the circumstances under which the existing system passed into its present condition, and the difficulties in the way of reform, while many improvements that have been introduced or suggested have been altogether ignored. He especially submits that as regards the accounts, many of the defects of the present system were early and fully appreciated in the late Military Finance Department, as reported upon by the chief of that department in 1861. The present arrangements, he adds, consist partly of a remnant of the system which prevailed prior to the introduction of the Budget Estimates, and partly of reforms since then effected. The period, however, since the introduction of Budget Estimates has been one of continued change, either actual or anticipated, and the Military Finance Department had to contend against heavy arrears on the transfer of the Military Accounts to its administration. With every effort to that end the necessary data for the preparation of a homogeneous system had not been available at the time of the commissioner's arrival, and after that event all measures of reform were necessarily stayed, pending their investigation. But if due consideration, adds Colonel Broome, be accorded to the measures from time to time, adopted since the constitution of the Military Finance Department, it will be found that they have been the means of effecting great savings in almost every branch of the Military Department of Government, and that in other respects they possess merits which have scarcely been sufficiently recognised in the report.

We need not follow Colonel Broome into his elaborate treatment of details. But his "summing up" must not be omitted. In considering the present condition of the Department and the system of Military Account, it must, he says, be borne in mind that both have been subjected to great drawbacks, and their efficiency been much impaired, by continual change. Of the further alterations proposed, while considering some inadvisable, he advocates others very strongly; prominent among the latter being the separation of the military from the civil books, the separation of store from cash accounts, and the preparation of the books in the new form, so as to ensure a prompt and correct record of military expenditure under the several budget headings as now sanctioned.

With the reservations thus suggested the reform of the department may without difficulty be carried into practical effect.

CORRESPONDENCE.THE BRIDGE OVER THE HOOGLHY.
TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—A short time ago (see your issue of the 20th February) I did myself the honour of commenting in your columns on the reasons given by the correspondent of the Times in Calcutta for building a bridge at Calcutta over the Hooghly. The object of my communication to you was to suggest that the bridge would be better for all reasons at Phulta than at Calcutta, and I think my letter tolerably fairly represented the advantages of so placing it.

I observe the Friend of India, in an article extracted in your issue of the 29th ult., says it would be "childish folly" to make a bridge and not give "the vast local traffic of Calcutta" the benefit of it—that a "bridge at Phulta is out of the question."

My argument, however, was, that were the terminus of the East India Railway removed from Howrah to Calcutta, there would be no traffic that a steam ferry would not amply provide for. This argument (so the Friend says) is supported by "the Committee of 1864-5;" but then, adds the Friend, "the Committee of 1864-5 were wrong." The oracle hath spoken—what further is to be said?

The Friend of India, however, goes on to say that the traffic of the Grand Trunk Road is separated from Calcutta by the want of a bridge there; but I pointed out, in the letter above noted, that the terminus of the Grand Trunk Road is in Calcutta, and that the line of that road runs for sixteen miles on the Calcutta side of the river to the north, and then crosses the Hooghly at Phulta, where I recommended the railway bridge to be.

The Friend of India further says that a bridge at Hautkola Ghat "will not interfere with the port," "nor add much to the risk of ships breaking loose from their moorings;" but what I pointed out to you, in advocating a bridge at Phulta, was that such a bridge (as at Hautkola) would interfere either with the actual port or with its expansion upwards; while the facts of the cyclone of October, 1864, were before us that numbers of ships had been driven away from their moorings long past Hautkola, even to Cossipoor.

I am glad to see that the Friend advocates, as I did, the East Indian Railway being taken to Sealdah, the same situation as that of the terminus of the Eastern Bengal Railway; but it would be clearly cheaper to combine the lines as far as Barrackpoor, as well as the termini at Sealdah, than to make all the costly arrangements involved in carrying a high-level bridge over the Hooghly at Hautkola, even if the arches be "let to traders." Besides, as regards Howrah, a bridge at Hautkola would only be a little better than one at Cossipoor (which the Friend allows to be useless), and would never stand tolls in opposition to a steam-ferry in a situation more favourable to the centres of business. A bridge at Phulta would, moreover, provide for "the merchants and clerks, &c." having homes in the "suburbs of Barrackpoor and Serampore" equally with a bridge at Calcutta.

So that, as I showed in my previous letter, any future railways or present roads from "Madras and Orissa" would be accommodated by the Phulta-bridge, the necessity or advantage of a bridge at Calcutta turns upon the question of the importance of Howrah in comparison with the advantages to be gained by having the bridge higher up the river. On this point the Friend is at issue with "the committee of 1864-65," and myself.

I, with the Friend of India, am most anxious to see a bridge over the Hooghly, but prefer advocating that arrangement which it is most possible to carry out with economic advantage; and, at present, the arguments in this respect seem altogether in favour of Phulta Ghat, unless the assertions of the Friend are to be looked upon as arguments. From what the Friend says, however, it would seem to be the jealousy of the two railway companies which prevents our having the bridge; but surely the Government could arrange that while the East India Railway Company (as is clearly their duty) built the bridge, there should be no obstruction by the Eastern Bengal Company (whose interest would, equally clearly, be met thereby) to the use of their line from Barrackpoor to Sealdah, where the two companies could have a combined terminus, much to the advantage of the public, especially if such combined terminus were made, as suggested in my previous letter, the standing point or terminus of all future suburban or metropolitan lines.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
London, 3rd May, 1867. A. F.

ARRIVAL OF THE "PERA."—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamer Pera arrived at Southampton on Wednesday last. She left Gibraltar on the 2nd May, and on the same day spoke the Delta, and on the 3rd the Nyanza. The Pera brings nineteen passengers, but no mails or cargo, having come home for repairs.

BENGAL.

SHOULD THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA BE A PARTY OFFICIAL?

The governing power of India being vested in a Secretary of State resident in England is a disadvantage to this country of no ordinary magnitude; but this disadvantage is largely enhanced when with every change of Ministry it is considered necessary to change the Secretary of State. It is true that the Secretary of State has an experienced Council to instruct and to guide him, but it is equally true that he may or may not be guided by his Council. An obstinate, self-willed, or ignorant Secretary can set at nought all the advice of his Council, and originate or sanction measures most detrimental to the interests of India. This being the case, it would be a wise policy if, after selecting the most qualified statesman to fill the appointment, he should retain it without reference to changes of Ministry. In England, when changes of Ministry take place, how much difficulty is sometimes experienced in filling up some of the appointments, although the range of selection is large, as statesmen of whatever party are generally acquainted with home, foreign, and colonial affairs. But India is a terra incognita, and few, very few, of the men who have a chance of a seat in the Cabinet are at all versed in Indian matters. Indeed, the ignorance of the House of Commons, as a body, of Indian subjects, is only to be equalled by its disinclination to learn anything about them. The first speech on any motion regarding India is, as has been repeatedly said, like the reading of the Riot Act to a mob, the signal for an immediate disappearance of the members. Of the importance of India to England very few of them have the slightest idea, and when any difficulties arise, or are merely anticipated—such as the difficulty of obtaining a sufficient number of soldiers to fill up the ranks of the army—they do not hesitate to say, "Oh! give up India!" From such a body of men has the Minister to select his Secretary of State for India, and a considerable time is required before he can become acquainted with the duties of his office, or comprehend the magnitude of the interests committed to his charge. Under such circumstances it will readily be understood how much harm may be done by changing the Secretary of State for India every time that a change takes place in the British Ministry. In less than the space of one year we have had three Secretaries of State, and in the memorial to be presented by the inhabitants of Calcutta to the Secretary of State on the subject of the abolition of the license tax, it has been gravely suggested to omit the name of Sir Stafford Northcote, as by the time it arrives he may have vacated his post. When we consider the enormous power of the Secretary of State—that with a stroke of his pen he can give half a million to the descendant of a native prince, set aside or sanction new taxes, annex or withhold the annexation of new territories, &c. we can understand how important it is that he should be acquainted with the peoples of India, its history past and present, its politics, foreign and domestic, the vastness of its commerce, the largeness of its resources, and its commanding position in the Eastern world. Apart from its commercial value, India may well be called the right arm of England in the East. Whenever the flag of England is insulted in Russia, China, or Japan, it is in India that expeditions are prepared, and armies largely supplemented with native races are promptly despatched from Indian ports to right the wrongs of England. The vast importance of India is thoroughly understood by the great European Powers, although so little appreciated by the majority of our statesmen. The conquest of India was the dream of the first Napoleon, the most far-seeing statesman, as well as the greatest soldier of his age. Its conquest has occupied the thoughts of every Czar of Russia since the reign of Peter the Great. The Government, then, of so important an empire should not be banded from one Secretary of State to another, with every ministerial change in England. There are some points on which the people of India, timid and docile as they are, can show a spirit of resistance, not to be surpassed by the sternest and most turbulent race in the world,—their religion and their pockets. A proselytising statesman or a bungling financier, and there is nothing to prevent either of these becoming ministers for India,—might throw the whole empire into confusion, or indeed lose it altogether.—Englishman, March 29.

THE FAMINE AND THE INCREASE OF CRIME.

One of the first results of the famine was, that the starving people attacked the hoards of the mahajuna, and pillaged boats and carts laden with grain, in order to satisfy the cravings of hunger. Famished wretches, with death from starvation staring them in the face, forgot the terrors of the law—and the fear of punishment which brought with it food, clothing, and lodging, was small in comparison with the dread inspired by the king of terrors, appearing in the most gaunt and terrible of his shapes. The result was, that grain riots became universally prevalent, and in those parts of the country in which the famine was most severe, additional magistrates and judges had to be appointed to deal with the large increase of crime, which was due to these unusual causes. A large number of persons were convicted, and the jails in many places became overcrowded, while the cost to the State became considerable, inasmuch as a large number of persons had to be maintained at the public expense, who did not properly fall within the limits of the criminal class. Many, too, who had nothing to eat outside the jail, willingly joined in the committal of an offence which promised an immediate relief from hunger, and a prospect of regular feeding afterwards. Notwithstanding all the preaching of the sternest advocates of law and order, there is always a feeling of sympathy for those whom hunger has driven to commit crime. It was therefore felt from the very beginning that this class of criminals should be more leniently dealt with, and that, when the crisis and danger had passed away, the clemency of the Government would most properly be exercised in granting them a free pardon, or at least abridging the period of their sentence. There are few who will venture to dissent from the propriety of such a course. When the offence was committed it was most imperative that the law should be promptly put in force lest the horrors of famine should be aggravated by other evils almost more terrible in themselves and wholly unbearable when added to the pangs of hunger. Had the law not been called into operation there is little doubt that murder, and other serious crimes, would have been the denouement of a few starved wretches obtaining a meal by disregarding the distinctions between meum and tuum. Men would be drawn into the committal of these crimes to obtain food for themselves and their children, who, in times of plenty, would be peaceful and orderly members of society. It is then fair to attribute their culpability in part to those hard times, and that terrible dearth, which for a while blinded their eyes to the requirements of law and order. Let it be then conceded that when these hard times have passed away, clemency should be properly shown to the offenders. The question with which we are concerned this morning is, whether the time has yet come for the exercise of that clemency. We believe that steps have been taken not only to release those who have been sentenced, and who have undergone a portion of their sentence, but also to discharge those who have been arrested, and not yet brought to trial. Now we are decidedly of opinion that this step is premature; and if it be so, it may be attended with the gravest results. The release of men who have broken the law, after they have undergone no punishment, or very little, will at once make them feel that the sum of their offending is regarded by the Government as small indeed. Were the same pressure to repeat the offence removed, those who were not naturally predisposed to do wrong would doubtless go and sin no more. But has the pressure been removed, has the crisis passed away, and will the remembrance of food in jail, which they cannot get outside, have no influence in leading them back to repeat their former offences, with the addition of all the evil experience acquired by contact with the denizens of a criminal jail? There is also a worse danger. The professional dacoit, and those whose trade is thieving, will take advantage of the opportunity, and the absence of the terror of punishment, to launch out into the perpetration of their old offences, and they will rapidly outdo their former exploits, while the criminal class will receive a large accession from those who will be led away by their example. We believe that the release of these prisoners just at this time is premature and ill-advised. It would have been very easy to devise a safe plan of effecting the same end—they could have been separated from the regular criminals: and the rule of jail discipline, which forbids extramural labour, being rescinded in its application to them, they could have been worked in gangs on the roads, or at the irrigation works, their labour being thus directly utilised to remove the present and impending evil, until a proper time came to release them, or they had by their own good conduct earned a speedy discharge. They could, moreover, have been released by degrees, those first let go being tried, before others were suffered to follow. By the present measure a large number of persons, among whom are assuredly many bad characters, will be simultaneously let out on the country, before it is prepared to absorb them back into their former modes of life.—Englishman, March 29.

MISCELLANEOUS.

AN OFFICIAL SCANDAL.—A letter in the Delhi Gazette, dated Lahore, 7th April, says: "It is with much regret I take up my pen to write a few lines on a most disagreeable subject; but so much has been said and sung of the so-called movement for bringing the native gentry into local contact with European society, that it is high time to tell the truth on the subject. I have nothing to say of the first meeting. It was, I believe, undertaken by the promoters in good faith, and the result was to a certain extent satisfactory. Had the return entertainment been of a similar character I should not have intruded on your space to expose the gross improprieties, to call them by the mildest term, committed by the native community in inviting the Lieut.-Governor of the Punjab and his staff to a so-called entertainment of the grossest character, at which not only songs, but dances of the most improper character, far exceeding those of an ordinary "nautch," were performed as part and parcel of the revel. How it came that Christian gentlemen of the standing of Sir Donald McLeod, Colonel MacLagan, &c., brought themselves to remain in the room where such abominations were enacted it is difficult to explain, but it is to be hoped that the promoters of this saturnalia were duly and peremptorily informed that they had entrapped the Lieutenant-Governor into countenancing by his presence the grossest of native amusements. You may rely on the accuracy of my statement. It is from the mouth of one who was there."

THE AFREEDDEES.—One of the most troublesome tribes on the North-west frontier is undoubtedly the Afreedees, and amongst the most troublesome of the Afreedees is that section which inhabits the hills in the vicinity of the Kohat Pass, and which is known as the Hussan Kheyl Afreedees. This class has of late exhibited a disposition which the Commissioner of Peshawur regarded, and rightly, as tending, if unchecked, to imperil the peace of the whole frontier, and to involve us in another Umbeyla campaign. He therefore caused it to be intimated to the clan, which can assemble some 1,200 fighting men, that unless they cleansed their territories of budmashes, paid in full the fines imposed on them for robberies committed within their precincts, and gave security for their future good behaviour, he would cause them to be attacked from Kohat, Peshawur and Nowshera, and besides harrying their country, materially increase his demands. A regiment or two was put in motion, but the Hussan Kheyls thought better of the risk they were incurring, as will be seen from the subjoined telegram placed at our disposal by the Foreign-office:—From Lahore, 9th April 1867; from Secretary to Government Punjab; to Calcutta; to Foreign Secretary. Commissioner Peshawur reports as follows:—"Hussan Kheyl Afreedees have humbly submitted and subscribed to Government terms. General has been told that troops will not be required. Blockade raised." It is satisfactory to know that the firmness and fact of the Commissioner has prevented what seemed likely at first sight to grow into another little war on the frontier.

RATHER LATE IN THE DAY.—The Gazette of India contains a letter from the Punjab Government, dated the 13th of March, copies of a letter from the Brigadier General Commanding the Punjab Frontier Force, No. 389, dated 27th February, 1867, with annexments as reporting the repulse and punishment of a large body of hill men who descended into our territory to commit a raid on the 26th January last, in the vicinity of the Hurrund out-post. The band of marauders, estimated at about 900 or 1,000 strong, were led by Golam Hossein Mussooree Bhoogtie, a noted freebooter who has long troubled the border; intimation of the intended raid had been given to our officers, and preparations were made to repel it. The Goorchani and Lund chiefs with their followers, numbering upwards of 900 men, turned out, and with the detachment of the 5th Punjab Cavalry at the post of Hurrund, under the command of Jemadar Emam Khan, pursued and came up with the robbers near the Koombee Pass. At the suggestion of the Jemadar the marauders were at once attacked, and were defeated with considerable loss; their leader, Golam Hossein, being amongst the slain. His Honour is of opinion that Major Paget deserves great credit for the admirable arrangements he made for the defence of the border, and that Jemadar Emam Khan and his small detachment of cavalry, for their soldierly bearing, merit the highest commendation. If on inquiry, which is being made, any reward be deemed necessary for the military detachment, a further reference will be made on the receipt of Brigadier-General Wilde's proposals.

THE FAMINE.—Reports on the extent of the famine, in the several districts of Lower Bengal, and on the prospects of prolonged distress, are being regularly received by Government, and published in the Calcutta Gazette. The reports have been published weekly, and now that we have read in the last Gazette the official statements regarding the distress in Singhbhum, Nuddea, and Maunbloom, we think that the opinion generally entertained by Government officials is that the distress in Lower Bengal never assumed the form of a severe famine, and that the prospects of the present year are very encouraging. The reports are scarcely worth reproducing, as they merely relate the tales we have already told, and illustrate the unfortunate apathy and caste prejudices of the native. Lord Ulick Browne's report, as magistrate and collector of Nuddea and Jessore, and Lieut. Money's report as Deputy Commissioner in the Maunbloom division, which are the latest, show very precisely the nature of the distress and the means adopted to relieve it; but the story told is almost the same as that which has frequently been raised as an excuse for many of the shortcomings of the administration. Both these officers have received the thanks of Government for their energetic aid during the season of distress. The former, Lord Ulick, seems to have devoted much time and attention to the alleviation of distress, and Lieut. Money, no doubt, did the same. We remember, however, that Lieut. Money has more than once been named in connection with the Purulia Famine Committee, which was obliged to defend itself against certain charges publicly made, one of these charges being the issue of rotten rice to the starving. Colonel Dalton, the Commissioner of Chota Nagpore, came forward at the time to deny this and other allegations against Lieut. Money, but instead of satisfactorily proving that rotten rice had not been issued, and that Lieut. Money had not left his post, he, unfortunately for his case, called attention to a letter in which it was proved that Lieut. Money's management of affairs had been regarded with apprehension by himself, the Commissioner of the district. —Indian Daily News.

PARTIAL DESTRUCTION OF THE KOOTUB AT DELHI.—1st. One result of the lightning that accompanied the late rains will long be regretted; the Kootub was badly struck on the night of the 23rd; it has been several times struck before, but it was never so extensively injured as by this last stroke. The first mark is on the hand rail at the eastern side of the summit; then the top rail is bent, and one upright completely removed; the lightning went down the rail, that is, split the stone that it rested on into small pieces; from this it went to the shaft of the building, through which it has gone nearly continuously for three stories. The upper two are very badly injured, fully two-thirds of the thickness of the shaft being thrown down towards the lower portion of the fifth story; in the fourth the shaft is most injured about half way down, where a large portion of the centre shaft is very much shaken, and in one place a large mass has been blown out so much that it is difficult to pass up; from this it descended partly by the stairs, splitting all the steps it touched, and partly by the inner surface of the outer wall, tearing down a large portion of the side of a window; in the third story, a little below this, it went through the shaft again, across the stairs, and through the outer wall; then it turned back to the inside of the wall, and went through the second story, splitting several steps in the stairs and cracking the inner crust of the outer wall till it came to the level of the top of the first story; here it again went through the outer wall, the place which escaped being plainly visible between two flutings near the right hand side of the door, then it crossed the gallery that runs round the building, shattered several large stones of the flooring of the gallery and of the parapet, turned over edge and went close under the cornice for a short distance towards the west; entered the outer wall again and descended through its substance, splitting it quite through, and throwing down the whole of one of the angular flutings to the right of the entrance door. The whole building is very badly shaken, and the lean to the west has increased; it is said to be free from immediate danger of falling, and it is hoped it will be properly repaired at once, and that now a lightning conductor will be attached to it. No doubt its proper repair will cost a good deal, but it would be an everlasting disgrace if we allow it to go to ruins. To replace the stones that have fallen down will be impossible, as all the smaller ones have been taken away by sight seers. From the quantity of rubbish on the stairs it is dangerous to ascend it, so the public will be deprived of the extensive and magnificent view from the top till the repairs are finished.

LATEST NEWS FROM BURMAH.—The Rangoon papers just to hand bring us the intelligence that the younger of the princes who sought refuge in Rangoon, the Mynegoon-dyne Mengtha, was to be removed to Port Blair. At Rangoon he has of late manifested a strong desire to escape and join his brother, the Mynegoon Mengtha, who has, as our readers know, thrown himself amongst the Shans. The removal of the prince to Port Blair, will take him out of harm's way, and at the same time relieve the local administration of a cause for anxiety. Upper Burma appears to be in a most deplorable condition. The rebellion of last August interfered very seriously with the reaping of the crops; and the consequences are now beginning to make themselves known in an amount of distress which seems likely to repeat the disaster of Orissa. There is, however, this very great difference, that whereas in the case of Orissa there was a public opinion strong enough to compel the Government to institute extensive measures of relief, in Burma the people are helpless, and the Government powerless. Bowed down by the weight of their troubles at home, the Burmese peasantry have no way of escape but to send the women and children to the woods and to form those bands of dacoits who not unfrequently set all authority at defiance, and add, by their lawlessness and cruelty, to the miseries of their fellows. The native Government never manifests any real desire to put a stop to gang robberies. Conscious of its weakness, it maintained too often some such arrangement with the robber chiefs as was kept up by the fallen Bourbons with the bandits of the Neapolitan provinces. But, under present circumstances, threatened with rebellion on all sides, and apparently counting on a war with the British, the authority of the King can scarcely make itself felt beyond the precincts of Mandalay. The people, therefore, are in a most hopeless situation, unless, indeed, aid reach them from without. Of the character of the calamity we may be able to form some faint conception when we hear that in the middle of March paddy is selling at Mandalay at Rs. 130 per 100 baskets, and rice at Rs. 4 per basket, the price at Rangoon being Rs. 2 per basket only. There are yet at least five months to harvest, and during those five months the wretched Burmese will have to go through all the stages of that bitter trial which has swept away its myriads of victims on this side of the bay. There is something inexpressibly melancholy in this grim fate hanging so imminently over a people helpless to prevent it, and even powerless to mitigate its effects; a people, too, whose home is in one of the most fertile and beautiful valleys in the world, and whose misfortune is the direct consequence of the anarchy produced by a blind and ignorant selfishness on the part of their sovereign. The spectacle is all the more sad by the attitude taken up by the King, who, by his determined adherence to customs duties and monopolies, and insane refusal to act up to his engagements with the British Government, is actually standing in the way of whatever assistance the people of British Burma might attempt to send his people.—Englishman.

DEATHS BY LIGHTNING.—Intimation has reached us of a melancholy event which took place near Almorah. The particulars, as far as we have heard them, are briefly as follows:—Captain F. O'B. Hely and his son, both engaged in the tea-planting interest, whilst out of doors, engaged probably in directing the operations of their men, were overtaken by a thunder-storm, and before they could find suitable shelter were both struck dead by lightning. The former was in the enjoyment of a trifling good service pension from Government, and the latter served, we hear, in the Bengal Yeomanry Cavalry during the Sepoy revolt, also as a volunteer in the late expedition to Peking. His young widow and child, we learn, are destitute, and it is hoped that help will not be refused in such a case, where the recipients are worthy, and the friends liberal, kind-hearted, and true.—Indian Daily News.

DEATH OF MAJOR SYKES.—We regret to notice the death of Major Sykes, of the Bengal Staff Corps, and officiating Deputy-assistant Commissary-general at Delhi, of consumption. He belonged to the cadre of the 66th Regiment N.I., and his death will promote Lieutenant R. S. Hill to his captaincy. Some changes will take place in the Commissariat Department. Lieutenant O. M. Graham will be promoted to Sub-assistant Commissary-general first-class, and Captain A. W. Muntago will be promoted to Sub-assistant Commissary-general second-class. Lieutenant-colonel Mills will probably officiate as Deputy-assistant Commissary-general in his room at Delhi, and Captain J. A. M. Biggs officiate as Sub-assistant Commissary-general first-class, in which case there will be a vacancy in the grade of officiating Sub-assistant Commissary-general.—Englishman.

ACCIDENT ON THE HOOGHLY.—On Wednesday evening last (April 9) one of the boats belonging to the officers of the Chinsurah depot was capsized in the River Hooghly. She was sailing from under the lee of one of the islands opposite Chinsurah, and, on reaching the open, was struck by a heavy and quite unexpected dust-storm, which came up suddenly from the direction of Chandernagore. Only one sail was set at the time, and that was instantly released, but to no effect; the vessel, unable to right herself, turned over, upsetting the four occupants into the river, then very rough, with a strong tide flowing. Lieut. Crookshank (the depot adjutant) and Lieut. Hadden, 23rd Fusiliers, struck out, and with some difficulty swam ashore; the other two (Lieut. Hewson, depot paymaster, and Mr. Ferris) held on to some of the spars until picked up by a dingy.—Englishman.

FASTIDIOUS GUESTS.—It appears to have now quite become the fashion for Mussulman gentlemen of rank to take refreshments at the houses of a few of their most trusted friends. To make the practice more general, it is essential that in every household a few plates, cups, and glasses be set aside by the khansama for the use of native visitors. Until this is done there will always be a suspicion of our enervating them into drinking water out of glasses in which we might have sacrificed to Bacchus, or into eating from plates from which, in a roast, boiled, dried, or smoked state, we might have consumed the "unclean animal."—Indian Public Opinion.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—An officer having accidentally killed a native whilst shooting in the neighbourhood of Indore, it has been ruled that he is to make a proper provision for the wife and mother of the man.

MR. STREACHEY, we are told, has called upon the members of the services in Oudh to contribute one day's pay to the Famine Relief Fund. He has also, it is said, suggested to the Talookadars to contribute one day's sudder jumma.

MISCELLANEOUS.

PROPOSED AMALGAMATION OF THE PRESIDENCY BANKS.—The meeting of the shareholders of the Bank of Madras, held on the 10th April, at the offices of the Bank in Popham's Broadway, went off most successfully, and resulted, as we fully anticipated, in the unanimous rejection of the proposals for amalgamation from the Bank of Bengal. The meeting was attended by nearly the whole mercantile community in Madras, Native and European. Among those present were the Hon. A. F. Brown, President of the Bank, the Hon. John Young, Messrs. W. R. Arbuthnot, W. Scott, R. C. Walker, W. B. Liddel, E. Lecot, C. A. Ainslie, C. Simpson, A. Mackenzie,

P. Macfadyen, J. C. Loch, H. Martine, A. C. Cammiade, J. G. Coleman, F. de Souza, &c. Mr. J. D. Sim, member of the Board of Revenue, and Mr. F. Lushington, the Accountant-general, Mr. Justice Collett, Col Denison and others were also present. The Hon. A. F. Brown occupied the chair, and moved a resolution to the effect that in the opinion of the meeting it was not desirable that the Bank of Madras should accept the proposals for amalgamation made by the Bank of Bengal. He (Mr. Brown) believed the day would come when this increase of capital would be required, but at present it was not. We had only to look to Bombay to see the disastrous results of too much capital. This was not the first attempt of the Bank of Bengal at amalgamation. In 1862 it absorbed the Allahabad Bank. He did not know the particulars of the transaction, but probably the bank was sick, and fell an easy prey. The Bank of Bombay was now "the sick man," and like another Russia, Bengal proposed to swallow him up. But there were no symptoms of sickness in the Madras Bank; it was, he might say, in a state of rude health, and this fact ought to have preserved it from the approaches of Bengal. The bank had just concluded an agreement with Government by which it took charge of the public loan department, and the Government had increased its maximum balance in the hands of the bank to 25 lacs. These arrangements had been made on favourable terms for the bank in compensation for the removal of the charge of the currency. It had been supposed by some that the Government, by taking away the currency, had evinced distrust in the bank, but the very opposite of this was the case. The Government in the same agreement make over to the branches of the bank the Mofussil treasury balances, which was also very favourable to the bank. The bank now had branches at Bangalore, Bellary, Coconada, Bimlipatam, Tuticorin, Cochin, and Calicut. The deposits at these branches amounted to 15 lacs, and the business carried on tended to increase dividends. As our own bank had hitherto been so successful, he considered we should do well to retain the management of its affairs in our hands, and as there was no chance of Government taking away its business so long as it was conducted so well, he thought the shareholders could not do better than follow Dr. Watts' advice and "paddle their own canoe." Mr. Cammiade, in seconding the resolution, said that some shareholders imagined that amalgamation would benefit them by raising the value of shares; but that idea had been dispelled. The formal resolution was then put to the meeting and carried without a single dissentient voice.

CHANGES UNDER THE NEW SYSTEM OF ARMY ORGANISATION.—The following circular memorandum, dated April 1, has been issued by the Adjutant-General to all officers commanding divisions and forces, for the convenience of officers who may desire to be informed of the general principles upon which regimental appointments will in future be regulated. The period during which the choice of entrance into the staff corps, opened to the officers of the local army under the provisions of Lord Cranborne's despatch, No. 159, dated Aug. 8, 1866, having closed, the changes notified in G.O.C.C. April 1, 1867, have become necessary under the new system of organisation, and have been regulated as follows:—I.—Army Rank the Guide. II.—Existing permanent appointments secured to holders, subject—in the case of those who have not passed—to qualification within six months. III.—Officiating appointments regulated at once to the new system. 2. Unqualified officers holding appointments as 2nd in command and wing officers, who shall not qualify within six months, from April 1, 1867, vacate their appointments. 3. The furlough rules regulating the retention of all general staff appointments, to be in future applied regimentally, viz.:—Officers under new furlough rule absent on sick certificate to Europe or elsewhere for a period exceeding 20 months, vacate appointments. Officers under new furlough rules absent on furlough to Europe or beyond sea, for a period exceeding six months—vacate appointments. Officers under the old furlough rules proceeding to Europe or beyond sea, either on furlough or sick certificate from date of embarkation—vacate appointments. Officers under old furlough rules absent on sick certificate in India, for any period exceeding two years—vacate appointments. 4. In cases of the temporary absence of commanding or second in command—the succession, as a general rule, to fall in the regiment. 5. In the case of the absence of a wing officer, or of his temporary employment in a higher position, wing subalterns or regimental staff are not to be nominated to the vacancies to the prejudice of their seniors who may be doing general duty in the several brigades and divisions.

CIVIL SURGEONS.—The recent unpalatable order issued to the civil surgeons of this Presidency has just been rescinded. In a long letter to Government, just made public, the principal inspector-general of the Medical Department explains that the condition in which Lord Napier found the Coimbatore Dispensary was quite exceptional, and owing entirely to the distress and famine prevalent all over the country in 1866. The subscription lists had everywhere fallen off, and the dispensaries generally were quite unable to meet the demands made upon them. Referring to the order, the inspector states that in his opinion the present arrangements for ensuring accuracy of returns are ample, and submits that the Secretary of State's suggestion that medical documents should be verified by unprofessional persons is not impracticable, but by implying a doubt as to the truthfulness of medical officers in civil employment, must necessarily tend to make such employments most distasteful to all gentlemen of honourable feeling. He goes on to add that the order, as at present worded, must react most unfavourably in keeping out of the department the class of high minded and educated medical men whom it is desirable to secure for the public service, and suggests its modification. These remarks have called forth from the Government another order which may certainly be regarded by the medical service here as satisfactory as the first one was distasteful. Making allowances for those difficulties under which the Coimbatore Dispensary laboured, and which ought to have been allowed for before, the Government have requested the Inspector-general to intimate to the officers of his department that at no time and in no form has any imputation for untruthfulness or intentional inaccuracy in the preparation of official reports been made against the medical officers of this presidency, and the Government are satisfied that the expressions made use of were not intended to convey any such accusation. They go on to say that the veracity of the officers of the Medical Department is above suspicion; and cancel the objectionable order by directing that a copy of the annual report submitted by each medical officer in charge of a civil dispensary shall be sent by him to the collector of the district for his information; the latter is to report on the general state of the dispensary, and its usefulness and acceptability to the native community, but is not to enter upon the question of professional treatment, or to certify to the accuracy of the returns.—Madras Times.

THE PETITION TO SIR STAFFORD NORTH-COTE against the objectionable license tax, which we mentioned in our last summary as being got up by the inhabitants of Madras, has been adopted, and is now lying for signature in several parts of the town. The native community also is about to hold a meeting to protest against the imposition of the tax, as also against the introduction of our proposed New Municipal Act, which, we observe, is to be read this day for the first time in the Legislative Council by the Hon. Mr. Ellis, C.B., the introducer of the Bill.—Madras Times.

THE ANNUAL CEREMONY OF CONFERRING UNIVERSITY DEGREES was held here on the 8th April, when ten graduates in Arts and six in Laws received their degrees from Lord Napier, the Chancellor. The Hon. Mr. Holloway, Judge of the High Court, made the customary address. The period for holding the Vice-chancellorship of the university having elapsed, Sir Colley Scotland, our Chief Justice, has been reappointed to the office for the usual term of two years.—Madras Times.

BOMBAY.MISCELLANEOUS.

THE AMALGAMATION OF THE BANKS.—At a meeting of the shareholders of the Bank of Bombay, held on the 16th April, for the purpose of filling a vacancy in the board of direction, a lengthy conversation ensued regarding the proposed amalgamation of the Banks of Bengal and Bombay. This discussion, though it did not eventuate in any resolution on the subject, was highly useful, as showing the feeling of the directors and the shareholders in the matter, and the exact stage which the negotiations between the two banks had reached. The directors were of opinion that the amalgamation could be carried into effect with great advantage to Bombay, and for their part had generally agreed to the proposals made by Mr. Dickson, the secretary of the Bank of Bengal—the arrangement of some points of detail on which there was a difference of opinion being allowed to stand over, to be discussed at a personal interview, when Mr. Dickson shall have arrived in Bombay, whither he set out from Calcutta about the 15th April. But though the directors of the Bank of Bombay entertain the belief that the amalgamation might be effected advantageously, they do not seem to have any very strong convictions in the matter—certainly they have not in any way committed the shareholders to that course of action; and, now that a very strong feeling in favour of reconstructing the Bank independently of aid from Bengal has manifested itself, they will doubtless consider themselves perfectly free to take the lead in any well-considered course of action, inimical though it be to the interests of Calcutta speculators. It is believed that no great difficulty would be experienced in raising fifty lakhs of new capital in Bombay if some assistance is rendered by the Local Government, which cannot but feel its obligations to stand by the Bank in which it is the largest shareholder, and which its own too lax supervision, as exercised through directors of its own appointment, has done so much to ruin. It may, therefore, be counted upon as certain that not only would the Government business be continued to the reconstituted Bank, but that, if necessary, money would be raised by Government to aid in the reconstruction, the shares of the new institution being held as security for the repayment of the money. No assurance to this effect has hitherto been received from Government; but for this the very sufficient reason can be given—that no such assurance has yet been formally solicited. The necessity of making inquiries in this direction was, however, closely pressed upon the attention of the directors by several shareholders of position and influence, who may be presumed to have been not altogether unacquainted with the views of Government on the matter; and when next the shareholders assemble to consider the position of the bank, the directors will doubtless be in a position to give such answers on this point as will show that the work of reconstruction may be undertaken with every confidence of success, and the interested generosity of Calcutta declined with thanks. It is a circumstance not altogether devoid of significance, that the opposition to the amalgamation scheme which has lately manifested itself in Bombay has mightily roused the choler of the Bengalese, more especially of that portion of them which rushed to the share market to secure investments on hearing it whispered that Mr. George Dickson had designs upon Bombay.—Times of India.

COMMERCIAL ITEMS.—Mr. Henry Maxwell (of the firm of Finlay, Scott, and Co.) has been elected a director of the Bank of Bombay, in room of Mr. Alex. Stewart resigned. At the meeting a long discussion took place concerning the proposed amalgamation with the Bank of Bengal. No resolution was proposed; but the feeling of the meeting was in favour of reconstituting the Bank, and sanguine opinions were expressed that the necessary capital could be raised for that purpose.—A meeting of the shareholders of the Back Bay Reclamation Company has been held to consider a compromise proposed by the liquidators of the Asiatic Banking Company; but it was adjourned for further information about the bank's assets.—The resolution to wind up the Bank of Guzerat voluntarily has been confirmed, and the registered office is to be removed to Bombay.—Mr. Justice Westropp has ordered the Mercantile Credit and Financial Association (of Bombay) to be wound up under the supervision of the High Court.—The project to form a new bank by the amalgamation of the Royal and Presidency banks has been abandoned.—A proposition to wind up the Elphinstone Financial Association has been negatived by the shareholders, notwithstanding the loss of £130,000 out of a capital of £170,000.

DEATH OF DR. D. COSTELLO.—We regret to announce the death of Deputy-Inspector General D. Costello, M.D., of the Bombay Medical Establishment. The latest papers received from Kurrachee reported the serious illness of this officer, but he was believed to be improving; a telegram from Kurrachee, however, has since been received, reporting his death on Tuesday afternoon from gout in the stomach. Dr. Costello served in the China war in 1840-41, for which he received a medal, and in the steam frigate Moorzuffer throughout the Burmese war, 1853; he was present at the storming of Rangoon and Bassein; proceeded in medical charge of the 1st Bombay European Regiment (Fusiliers) to the Punjab in June, 1857; and was present at the outbreak at Mooltan on the 31st August, 1858, receiving a special letter of thanks from the Commander-in-Chief for his conduct on the occasion, as well as obtaining a medal; he served with the army of the Indus in 1859 in medical charge of the Artillery reserves, and was appointed Deputy Inspector-general of Hospitals, Scinde division, on February 13, 1864. The death of Dr. Costello will probably confirm Dr. Pelly as Deputy Inspector-general of Hospitals Mhow division, and Dr. Rogers as Presidency surgeon 2nd division. It is also understood that Dr. Campbell is contemplating a return to India.

ILL-CONDUCT OF THE 1ST BELOOCH BATTALION.—Not long since we felt it our duty to direct public attention to the frequency of robberies committed by Sepoys of the 1st Belooch Battalion. To the list of depredations we then gave we have to add this one. On the 26th inst. two Sepoys of that corps, one named Narrainsing, and the other Tuckkut-sing, went to the house of one Chundoo, a carpenter, employed in the Harbour works, and who lives in Alladad-lane, in the town of Kurrachee. Narrainsing went into the premises, and his comrade kept watch below. Whilst Narrainsing was upstairs the landlord of the place, a man named Gundoo, seeing his tenant's door open, called out to see if he was inside, and on receiving no reply stepped in, when he saw the Sepoy, who immediately pretended to be drinking some water. On looking round the landlord saw property, valued at nearly Rs. 130, strewn about the floor, and he taxed the intruder with being a thief. To this the Sepoy replied that he was Chundoo's brother, and then he ran towards the staircase, when Gundoo raised an outcry which resulted in both of the Beloochees being apprehended by the police. The Naib Fouzdar investigated the matter and found sufficient grounds to commit the case to Mr. Gibbon's court, where the prisoners were found guilty and sentenced each to two years' rigorous imprisonment. We may add that when Narrainsing was searched, a bunch of false keys and a "wedge-iron" were found upon his person. We further learn that the police authorities have received information that other Belooch Sepoys are in the habit of prowling about the town in quest of plunder, and that detectives are on the look out for them.—Sindian.

SUPERNUMERARY CAPTAINS.

Major DICKSON asked the Secretary of State for War why were the captains of a cavalry regiment on its arrival in this country after service in India, who might be supernumeraries, placed on half-pay, while the captains of infantry regiments in exactly the same position were retained on full pay.

Sir J. PAKINGTON stated that the anomaly referred to was more apparent than real. The cavalry and infantry regiments returning from India did not stand upon the same footing. The cavalry regiments, in coming back to England, were reduced, but in the case of infantry regiments returning home, although they were reduced by two companies, infantry regiments going out to India were increased by two companies, so that the supernumerary infantry captains were gradually absorbed.

THE ORISSA FAMINE.

Mr. SMOLLETT wished to ask the Secretary of State for India whether he intended at once to lay upon the table of the House the correspondence that has passed upon the subject of the Orissa famine with the Indian Governments.

Sir S. NORTHCOTE replied that the correspondence relating to the famine in Orissa was very voluminous, and he thought the most convenient course would be to extract the substance, and with the report submit it in that form to the House. He had received a telegram, dated the 18th April, stating that Sir John Lawrence had laid a copy of the report of the commission before the Legislative Council. He, therefore, thought that in about three weeks the documents would all arrive in this country.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—March 10.
POSTAL COMMUNICATION WITH INDIA AND CHINA.

Mr. CRAWFORD asked the Secretary to the Treasury if the present weekly postal communication with India by way of Bombay is to be discontinued after the despatch of the mail from London on the 26th May; and if he will lay upon the table a copy of the advertisements and forms of tender for the new postal services to India and China recently issued from the Post-office?

Mr. HUNT: As the hon. gentleman is doubtless aware, it is an entirely spontaneous act on the part of the Peninsular and Oriental Company to put on extra steamers between Suez and Bombay. They have given notice of their intention to discontinue that extra service, and therefore after the despatch of the mails on the 26th of May the service will be, as formerly, twice a month to Bombay and twice a month to Calcutta. If the hon. gentleman will move for the papers, I shall have no objection to lay them upon the table.

THE CASE OF THE INDIAN OFFICERS.

India-office, London, 2nd May, 1867.

To His Excellency the Right Honourable the Governor General of India in Council.

SIR,—Para. 1. I have received and considered in Council your Military Letter, No. 48, dated 8th March, 1867, forwarding papers connected with the operation of the proposed compensation for the loss of money contributed by Officers of the Indian Army, prior to the reorganisation, towards Regimental Retiring Funds, or for purchasing out their seniors, with copy of General Orders on the subject.

2. The general principles which, on the recommendation of the Committee of Officers in Bengal, you have laid down for the guidance of the Committees at the three Presidencies, are calculated to simplify and facilitate the investigation of officers' claims. I do not consider, however, that the adoption of the general rule proposed by your Government will carry out so fully the intentions of her Majesty's Government in this respect as the more particular investigation of each case, contemplated by the instructions conveyed in the 13th paragraph of Lord Cranborne's despatch, No. 160, of August 8, 1866, and in the first paragraph of that of Dec. 15 last, No. 284.

3. To the rule laid down in para. 6, so far as it concedes compensation in full to officers for sums paid in the regimental rank which they held at the date of the reorganisation of the army, I have no objection; but it appears to me that the denial, save in very exceptional cases, of all compensation for sums paid in previous grades is inconsistent with the instructions contained in those despatches.

4. The actual investigation of each officer's claim will, no doubt, as you observe, be attended with difficulty, but the difficulty is not insuperable, and it is most desirable that the intention of her Majesty's Government, expressed in the above despatches, should be borne in mind, viz., that each officer concerned should, as far as possible, be secured from absolute loss upon the money he has actually paid throughout his entire service, with a view to the purchase of promotion; and it seems to me that this object cannot be sufficiently attained in any other manner than that described in the despatch of the 8th August last, viz., considering each case upon its own merits.

5. I should wish, therefore, that you should take such steps as may appear to you to be necessary to give full effect to the intentions expressed in Lord Cranborne's despatches of the 8th August and the 15th December.—I have the honour to be, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

(Signed) STAFFORD H. NORTHCOTE.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—No one who now seeks the perennially renewed charms and enjoyments of the Sydenham Palace will have his ideas of the beautiful shocked by the presence of those yawning ruins and charred debris, which, for a time, the burning of a portion of the edifice left behind, as a sad memento of the devastating effects of fire. All the unpleasant effects of the accident last year are, with the present season of 1867, entirely removed, and the reign of order and design asserts its influences where was lately a Dantesque aspect of confusion. The work of restoration has proceeded with amazing results, so that all is once more elegance and refinement within the colossal glass structure, while, without, the beautiful gardens look bright and fresh, with the verdure of spring, and spring-flowers. The lawns, and terraces, and lakes, and fountains, with the noble sculptures and ornamentations of Italian art form a coup d'œil unfailing in its attractions, and which is recognised with a revived sense of pleasure and gratification, no matter how often the contemplation is repeated. Such is the effect of true art, employed in the adornment of nature. With regard to the amusements of the Palace, they were probably never more lavishly and tastefully directed than now. There have been two and three grand concerts in each week during the present spring. We have heard the great artists of Italian opera, and those of our own lyrical stage vying with each other for the plaudits of an increasingly numerous music-loving public. From the Royal Italian Opera, Covent Garden, the most eminent vocalists of the season have been selected to appear in the Saturday concerts, and the subscribers have been enabled to hear such artists as M.M. Mario, Graziani, Naudin, Pettit, Bottini, and Mesdames Pauline Lucca, Fricki, Nau, and others; also our English favourites, Mr. Sims Reeves, Miss Louisa Pyne, Miss Elton, Miss Wynne (the Welsh vocalist), &c. To listen to the grand Italian airs one day, and the native melodies of our own land the next, is a musical treat to be found nowhere under similar conditions, except at the Crystal Palace. The ballad concerts have met with great success, being held in a cool and agreeable summer locale, surrounded by pleasing associations, and enjoying the advantage of being accompanied by the orchestral band of the company, directed by the energetic Herr Manns. It is only to be regretted that in so vast a space as the centre transept, neither before the orchestra or the concert hall, can the whole of the vast assemblage of visitors hear with satisfaction the voices of the performers. Nevertheless it is quite evident that everything is done by the management to assist the object of affording everyone an opportunity of enjoying these brilliant concerts. We conclude our notice by recommending a visit to Mr. Wass's excellent collection of pictures by modern artists of all schools, on view in the Palace picture gallery. It is always well worth inspection.

THE ORIENTAL FINANCIAL COMPANY.—A meeting of the above company was held on the 8th inst., at the offices of the solicitor to the company, when it was resolved that in order to pay off a call made by the London Engineering Company, and a loan of £3,000, for which 10 per cent. interest is now paid, two calls of 10s. each per share be made, at one and two months. It was stated by Mr. Crawford, one of the liquidators, that they had been in communication with Mr. Holden, and had considerable hope of coming to a settlement with him. A proposition to divide the 350 shares of the London Engineering Company among the proprietors of the Oriental Financial Company (who would be thereby enabled to attend meetings), met with considerable favour, and it was resolved that a circular be issued, accompanied by a form, to be filled up by parties willing to accept the shares, transferred to them free of cost. It appears that Messrs. Lysley and Dent are defaulters on the last call.

THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY COMPANY has received advice of the first train having arrived at Jubbulpore from Allahabad on the 2nd inst. The line from Allahabad to Jubbulpore is 225 miles. The contract for the work was let to Messrs. Waring Brothers and Hunt, in September, 1862, and the whole has been completed within the time agreed upon. As soon as the Great Indian Peninsula Company's works—which are understood to be in a forward state—are finished up to the point of junction with the East Indian Railway at Jubbulpore, the through communication between Calcutta and Bombay will be established.

THE RAILWAYS IN INDIA.—A letter received from Calcutta says:—"In the course of a few weeks the Jubbulpore line from Allahabad will be open as far as Myhere, and an engine will run the whole length of 224 miles. Already, before their completion, not ten years after the death of their great designer, the Marquis of Dalhousie, our nine Indian railways yield a revenue of four and a-half millions sterling, more than the whole revenue of Mexico, nearly that of Brazil, nearly twice that of Canada, and more than twice that of Denmark; in three years, at the present rate of progress, Indian railways will yield as much as the whole state revenue of Belgium. The sooner the great lines are finished the better, by the Rajpootana, Indus Valley, and Peshawur extensions."

THE RUSSIANS IN CENTRAL ASIA.—(ST. PETERSBURG, May 8.)—The Emir of Bokhara has gone to Samarcand, and, fearing an attack from the Russian forces, has ordered fortifications to be erected. He is said to have invited English co-operation for the reorganisation of his army. He has broken off relations with the Russian authorities. The relations of Russia with the Khan of Khokan are of an extremely friendly character.

COTTON AT SEA.—There are at present at sea from Bombay to Liverpool 64 ships, with 335,644 bales of cotton on board; from Rangoon there are 850 bales; from Kurrachee there are 3,362 bales; from Calcutta there are 19 ships, with 69,669 bales. From Madras to the Thames there are 26,048 bales of cotton afloat; from Calcutta, 26,033 bales; from China, Cochin, and Tuticorin, 28,707 bales; from Bombay and Kurrachee, 3,867 bales.

TROOPS FROM INDIA.—Two hundred invalids of different regiments and the following officers arrived at Spithead in the Shannon, Captain Watson, R.N.R., commander, on Wednesday, from India, Captain Steward, 2nd Dragoon Guards, in command; Captain Thompson and Lieutenant Pitcher, 21st Hussars; Lieutenant Bourne, 77th Regiment; and Assistant-surgeon Alfred Clarke, Royal Horse Artillery, in medical charge. The Shannon left Calcutta Jan. 29; she encountered a hurricane in the Indian Ocean, and heavy westerly gales off the Cape. Two deaths occurred during the voyage.

DESPATCH OF THE BOMBAY MAIL.—(SOUTHAMPTON, May 12.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Euxine, Captain Steward, sailed hence to-day with mails for Gibraltar, the Mediterranean, Egypt, Aden, Bombay, and Upper Bengal. The Euxine took out thirty-four passengers, amongst whom are: Ensigns Riddell, Dickenson, and Knight, Captains Graham and Jones, Commander Buddon, Major Hutchinson, Col. Kirby, Dr. Fishbourne, and Assistant-Surgeon Steele. The Euxine also took out a full cargo of general merchandise.

CONSULAR APPOINTMENTS.—(Foreign-office, May 3.)—The Queen has been graciously pleased to appoint Abel A. J. Gower, Esq., now her Majesty's Consul at Hakodadi, to be her Majesty's Consul at Nagasaki. The Queen has also been graciously pleased to appoint Marcus Octavius Flowers, Esq., to be her Majesty's Consul at Hakodadi.

This estate will be sold in one lot, in fee simple, free of all

There are on the estate a slated house, a slated factory, and a slated godown, and numerous out-offices, and a slated house or godown at Hawulbaugh for storing tea, will be sold with the estate.

land is leased in perpetuity from the Temple of Nagath on this rental.

Gardens, North-Western Provinces, Saharanpore, and on the offer being accepted, the purchaser must deposit 5 per cent. of the purchase-money, which will be forfeited if the amount

TEXTILE MANUFACTURES and COSTUMES of the PEOPLE of INDIA

BY J. FORBES WATSON, M.A., M.D., F.R.A.S.,

Reporter on the Products of India.

Imperial 4to, morocco back, cloth, with numerous Coloured Photographs. £3. 6s.

This work—by affording a Key to the Fashions of the People, and to the Cotton, Silk, and Wool Textiles in actual use in India—is of special interest to Manufacturers, Merchants, and Agents; as also to the student and lover of ornamental art.

"If the manufacturer studies this book carefully he may add thousands a year to his profits, and there are not five books in the world of which that could be said. Altogether this book is thoroughly creditable to Dr. Forbes Watson's industry and acumen, and to the liberality of the India-office."—Spectator, Jan. 5, 1867.

"The conception of this splendid work reflects the highest credit upon the wisdom of the department to which we are indebted for its publication; and the manner in which it has been executed by its author, Dr. J. Forbes Watson, is conclusive evidence of his being the right man in the right place. No one can fully appreciate the value of this work without seeing it, because neither analysis nor extracts can give any idea of the immense mass of minute facts which it contains and the admirable manner in which they are grouped and made subservient to the practical requirements of the manufacturer and the merchant, and the cravings of the student of ornamental art. The illustrations are as magnificent as they are appropriate. In fact, as mere productions of beauty and taste, they give the work the air of a book of art luxury, and we have no doubt that from this feature it will find many admirers and purchasers beyond the ranks of trade and commerce. We ought to state that the Secretary of State for India not only deserves the highest praise for having had this work prepared and distributed, but likewise for having allowed a publisher to use the type and photographic plates so as to be able to produce a certain number of copies for sale. In no other way could copies of this unique and costly volume have been offered to the public at a reasonable price."—Morning Post, Jan. 3, 1867.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Bombay mail brings us our usual files of papers from Calcutta to the 23rd of April, Madras to the same date, and Bombay to the 28th of April.

The Viceroy was to leave the Presidency for the Hills on the 24th ult. His Excellency was to be at Mirzapore on the 25th, Delhi the 26th, Umballa the 27th, and would arrive at Simla on the morning of the 28th.

Sir Cecil Beadon had resigned the reins of Government in favour of Mr. Grey, who assumes office under doubly favourable conditions. In the first place, any man succeeding Sir Cecil Beadon must enjoy comparative popularity; and in the next place, as nothing is expected from Mr. Grey there can be no disappointment at his shortcomings. His secretary will be Mr. H. L. Dampier, who lately officiated as Commissioner of the Presidency Division.

The farewell dinner to the retiring Lieut.-Governor duly took place as announced. The demonstration is described as highly enthusiastic. Indeed some of the speakers abused the privileges of flattery, and by carrying them too far interfered with the object in view. An address had also been presented to Sir Cecil. It was got up by a few leaders, was signed by 170 persons, and purported to be a testimonial from the people of Bengal!

A report had reached Calcutta that the captain and a boat's crew of the British ship Assam Valley, having landed on North Andaman Island, were attacked and overpowered by the natives (who are cannibals), and it is feared that all were massacred. The Government had despatched steamers to the island to rescue the survivors, if any remained.

It is believed that Mr. Justice Campbell, the president of the Famine Commission in Calcutta, will succeed Mr. Richard Temple as Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces.

Mr. Charles Parry Hobhouse, B.C.S., has been appointed to succeed Mr. Justice Trevor on the bench of the High Court of Calcutta.

The limit of money orders in India has been enlarged to £15.

The Governor General has exempted junior chaplains and ministers of the Additional Clergy Society from the operation of the License Tax.

Accounts from Assam state that the prospects of the tea season are most favourable.

It is stated by the Englishmen that "the news from Europe has caused Calcutta some anxiety. The certainty of a quarrel between Germany and France has led men here to think of the condition of the Indian army, and the questions which remain unsettled in the field of Indian politics, and it has led to a sterner condemnation than ever of Sir John Lawrence's inactivity."

From an official statement, it appears that the circulation of currency notes in India increased from £3,690,000 in March 1862, to £10,550,771 in December 1866, but on March 31st of this year it had again decreased to £8,656,060. Calcutta and Bombay between them absorb more than three-fourths of the total issues.

Active preparations were being made in the North-west Provinces to check the spread of cholera, which had reached an alarming height in many parts, as also in the Punjab.

The Court-martial on Captain Cunningham of the 88th Foot, for peculation in the first instance, and a complication of other charges, is still sitting. The Commander-in-Chief and the Adjutant-general are among the witnesses summoned for the defence.

The opposition to the License-tax is increasing.

The new law has added to the growing unpopularity of the Viceroy, whose answer to the address on the subject has given great offence.

Mr. Macnabb, the Commissioner of the Peshawur Division, has been fired at by three men in that district; but fortunately he was not hit.

The only item of notable news from Madras was the resignation of Sir Gaspard le Marchant, the Commander-in-Chief, at which event the local papers are much rejoiced.

In Bombay business was still very unsettled, owing to the state of affairs on the Continent.

The Afreedees have come to terms with the Government, and further measures against them will not now be necessary. Col. Merewether, the Resident at Aden, has concluded a treaty of peace with the Foudhelis—one of the Arab tribes near Aden. This officer is to succeed Mr. S. Mansfield as Commissioner of Sind. The appointment has given great offence to the members of the Civil Service. It is believed that General Russell will succeed Colonel Merewether at Aden, and that General Stock will be General Russell's successor at Bombay.

Intelligence from Central Asia states that the Russians have abandoned their intention of destroying the captured forts at Jeezikh and Ak-tippa, and falling back on the line of the Jaxartes, but will occupy them as well as Kojend. In consequence of the Russian invasion some of the Khans have thrown off their allegiance to the Ameer, and established independent sovereignty in their respective territories.

In reference to the new loan of a million and a half for irrigation, and other works of improvement at Bombay, the Friend of India says:—"This is half the amount which Mr. Massey proposed to raise this year. The other half will probably await the result of this appeal to the Indian market, before an attempt is made to raise it in England. Tenders for forty lakhs, repayable in five years, fifty in ten years, and sixty in fifteen years, must be sent in by the 20th of May next. The immediate effect of the announcement has been to send existing stocks down at least one per cent. But they still stand unusually high, for India like England finds no other sure mode of investment. The state of Bombay alone may be imagined. Without even a Government Bank it holds nearly four millions sterling of currency notes simply as a mode of secure investment or hoarding. When we reflect on this and remember that for the last tentative loan of 60 lakhs £884,500 was tendered and the whole was issued at a premium of 1-2-6, which immediately rose to 3-4, we have little doubt that Government will obtain this million and a-half at and probably above par. Those who secured the last loan must have made a good thing of it."

The state of the public health at Bombay continues very satisfactory.

The next arrival from India will be the Calcutta mail, which is due in London on the 27th inst.

THE Calcutta correspondent of the Times says, in reference to the Report of the Famine Commission, which is brought home by the present mail, that the Government of India have had a difficult task in deciding upon the several questions raised, and have held almost daily councils on the subject. "Before coming to a conclusion, the Viceroy and his advisers gave Sir Cecil Beadon an opportunity of making a second defence, submitting to him those portions of the report which affected him and waiting for his reply. The report has not seen the light here because etiquette—in this case absurd—demands that it should first be laid before the home authorities. But the tenour of the document is freely discussed, and indeed an abstract of it is in circulation among officials. It is rather long and very elaborate, and is of the character of a judge's charge, leaving the verdict to be given by the executive authorities as a jury. The facts and dates are said to be arranged with startling precision, and in a form which tells more against the responsible authorities than if the severest condemnation had been directly passed. The famine goes on meanwhile."

A portentous piece of news appeared in the papers this morning in the following telegram from Mr. Reuter's office:—

"BOMBAY, Monday, 8.15 P.M.
"Yesterday the native troops at Great (?) mutinied. Most of them, however, were captured, and order was restored before evening."

What the signallers mean by "Great" would be difficult to determine, but the reference may be to Gram, in Mysore.

MADRAS IRRIGATION COMPANY.—The report of the Madras Irrigation Company shows favourable progress, and it is believed that the negotiations progressing with the India Council will terminate favourably, and accord to the company all requisite aid to enable them to raise the capital necessary to prosecute their scheme in its entirety. The whole of the guaranteed capital of £1,000,000, with the exception of £1,499, of which £759 is in course of collection in India, and £740 is due from shareholders in England, has now been paid to the Secretary of State in Council, and it is, therefore, proposed that the necessary authority shall be given by proprietors to convert the same into "guaranteed stock;" and a resolution will be proposed for that purpose. The proposed stock will carry with it all the rights connected with the guarantee of interest which now belong to the existing shares, and by the company's last act of incorporation, passed in July, 1866, it is thus enacted:—"In the event of the said shares numbering 1 to 50,000 in the said capital of £1,000,000 being converted or consolidated into a general capital stock, the same shall be distinguished from any other capital stock of the company by being designated the 'Guaranteed Stock,' and the holders or owners for the time being of such guaranteed stock shall alone be entitled to the benefit of the agreement for payment or guarantee of interest at the rate of £5 per cent. per annum by the Secretary of State in Council under the said contract of the 3rd of June, 1863." The revenue derived from the small extent of irrigation hitherto practicable, and supplied during 1865 and 1866, has not yet been brought into account between the Government and the company, and the directors have therefore been unable to set it forth in the balance-sheet. An account of receipts and expenditure in England and India to the 31st December last has been duly audited, and a balance-sheet properly certified is appended to the report, by which a balance of £34,851 6s. 4d. cash unexpended on the above date is shown. The guaranteed capital will, it is calculated, be wholly expended in India by the middle of next month (June), from which period the expenditure on account of the agreed advance of £600,000 by the Secretary of State will commence.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

"ANOTHER MILITARY SCANDAL."

As a Bombay journal said the other day, it is really too bad that a military man cannot get into a scrape—whether through his own fault or somebody else's—without being paraded in the papers under the above heading. It is only military men who are thus treated. Civilians, as the writer remarks, form a large portion of official society; but when a civilian gets into trouble it is not the custom to describe the affair as "Another Civil Scandal." In cases of this kind the fault is laid at the door of society at large—it is not fastened on to a particular class, and assumed to be one of its particular characteristics. "If a barrister elopes with his neighbour's wife the whole legal profession is not saddled with his guilt. If a solicitor appropriates his client's money and is brought to justice, his offence is not designated a legal scandal. In like manner if a paymaster of a regiment pockets Government rupees, and is found out, it is a misnomer to call the swindle a military scandal. If the impression conveyed by the phrase was only that the culprit belonged to the military service, no exception could be taken to it; but it unquestionably amounts to more than that. Scandals that could not have arisen in any but military society, such as imbroglios between commanding officers and their subordinates, or absurd quarrels about the disappearance of a paper from a mess-room table, may be so described with propriety, as far as phraseology is concerned—although even here the generalising tendency of the title is apt to convey an injustice. The habit of prefixing to the word scandal an adjective which embraces the whole class to which the individual belongs is decidedly unfair to that class."

The latest case which has been described by the Indian papers by the familiar form in question is that of Captain Cunningham, to which reference has been already made in these columns. It is an exception to the rule of affairs which have no necessary connection with the military service; for it is certainly a "scandal," and one which could not have occurred had Captain Cunningham been a civilian instead of a soldier. The hardship in his case is that the term has apparent reference to his own conduct, whereas the military authorities appear to be the persons to blame, as far as the immediate matter under discussion is concerned.

The circumstances of the case seems to be these. Captain Cunningham was served by the authorities in question with a summons from the Civil Court at Cawnpore, directing his attendance at that Court; he obeyed the summons, of which he had been made to acknowledge the service; but was, nevertheless, by the same authorities arrested as a deserter as the consequence of his obedience. The mistake of the authorities, as has been pointed out, was in serving the summons at all; but having once served it, they should have considered that they compelled the person served to obey it. Captain Cunningham was, as our readers are probably aware, in arrest at the time, and under such circumstances the proper form of arraigning him before another tribunal would have been by an order to his custodians, supposing that the military authorities did not think proper to take the more obvious course—that is to say, signifying to the Civil Court that the person summoned was under arrest awaiting the decision of the Commander-in-Chief as to his being brought to trial to answer certain allegations against him. But instead of taking either of these courses, the military authorities served the summons upon him themselves, obliged him to go to Cawnpore, and upon his arrival at that place arrested him as a deserter on a warrant obtained from the local magistrate! Such confusion of procedure as this may well be called a military scandal; but it is a civil scandal too, for the magistrate should not have issued the warrant without making himself acquainted with the full facts of the case, and had he done so he could scarcely have committed himself to what must surely be an illegal act.

The question involved is simply this—Was the act of proceeding to Cawnpore lawful or unlawful? In the former case the charge of desertion could not be sustained. And in that case, and under the circumstances, the charges in reference to which Captain Cunningham was placed in arrest could not be sustained either. For having received the summons from the military authorities to attend the Civil Court, and having proceeded there without escort, or any conditions by which he could be considered still under arrest, he became a free man, and as such, under a well known and recognised rule of military law, could not be again arrested upon the same ground. It may be inferred from what is stated in the Englishman on the subject, that Captain Cunningham will avail himself of this plea, and in so doing he would doubtless have the law on his side. But what can be said of the authorities who should permit what may prove to be a failure of justice as regards the more serious charge, by their ignorance or disregard of forms which it is their first duty to know and to respect?

CHRISTIANITY AND GOVERNMENT.

UP to the present time the result of our missionary efforts in India has not been very satisfactory. Flourishing reports are read aloud at various meetings in and out of London, but Christianity in the East does not keep pace with our progress in any other path of civilisation. There are many reasons advanced to account for this, but one amongst others is especially worthy of notice.

The native of Hindostan requires an impressive religion; whether he be Mussulman or Hindoo, for him there must be a demonstrative and authoritative creed, and the senses play a great part in his worship. All classes bend to the powerful rule of religion. The Mussulman or Hindoo does not set at defiance the orders of the Koran, or disobey the command of his Brahmin adviser. The contrast with the English form of worship is striking. In most of our Indian churches there is a bare, cold, washhouse arrangement, very indifferent music, still more indifferent preaching. The Padre Sahib rarely is seen with the other English, and never treated with any marked respect. The service is hurried over with a monotonous formality anything but impressive. The last mail contained a short account of Bishop Milman's installation. Neither Governor-General nor Commander-in-Chief were present. There was no mark of respect shown by her Majesty's representatives to the Metropolitan of India. This is not so where the French are the paramount power; there the acknowledgment to God's ambassadors is at all times made, and in the most marked manner. The King of Kings is owned by them who fear no other God, and the symbol of Christianity is proudly planted and respected wherever the French flag waves.

It is not so in India, and Sir John Lawrence has added another slur to the many already cast upon the despised faith of the Feringhee. This carelessness about religion cannot fail to be marked by the astute natives; and surely we cannot blame them for thinking so little of Christianity when we think so little of it ourselves. There must be an effort made to elevate and impress Anglican worship in the eyes of the people of India, and we hope that the present Bishop of Calcutta will organise some scheme which will give an impulse to our "Ecclesiastical Establishments" in the East.

BENGAL.

THE DEPARTURE OF THE VICEROY FOR SIMLA.

It has been officially announced that the Governor-General of India will leave the Presidency on Tuesday accompanied by the Council. There is something ominous in the present exodus of the rulers of India from the seat of Government at this particular time. From legislation on the one hand, and want of it on the other, they leave the country in the direst confusion and dismay. Mr. Massey's Licence-tax has roused the whole community, and has evoked a general spirit of opposition and resentment which we have never before witnessed in India. If we gave insertion to all the letters we receive, denouncing the tax and exposing its innumerable inequalities and its varied forms of injustice, our columns could not hold them. On the 1st of May the tax will come into operation, but Mr. Massey will have taken refuge in the distant hills, and the local officers will be left to deal with a justly incensed public, who will throw every difficulty in the way of its collection. Indeed the difficulties that arise from the nature of the tax will require the highest discrimination for their solution, and a large measure of liberality and forbearance in their assessment. When the Governor-General and his Council depart to the hills, what authority will remain here to decide the thousands of intricate questions that will arise, and the numerous exemptions that will be claimed? Must every disputed point and every claim for exemption be referred to Simla? When Mr. Massey framed his License-tax, and passed it through the Council with such injudicious haste, he must have entirely failed to foresee the opposition that it would encounter, and the numerous difficult cases that would present themselves, when it came to have practical effect. Speaking of India, Mr. Disraeli has said that, "Able as has ever been the administration of India, considerable and distinguished as have been the men whom that administration has produced, and numerous as have been the great captains, the clever diplomatists, and the able administrators of large districts, with whom the Government has abounded, the state of the finances has always been involved in perplexity, and India, that has produced so many great men, seems never to have produced a Chancellor of the Exchequer." This is very true, but is India more fortunate in the Chancellors of the Exchequer sent from England? Assuredly not. Mr. Wilson was a mistaken enthusiast, who held firmly to the doctrine that what suited the West would do equally well in the East; and acting on this belief, he introduced the Income-tax, which was supported by his successor Mr. Laing, but finally abandoned by the Government after some years' trial, "because it could not be maintained without injustice and oppression." Now we have another English Chancellor of the Exchequer, who can devise no better method of raising money than by adopting an exploded measure of an Indian official, and reproducing it in a still more objectionable form.

The Governor-General also leaves the important tea question unsettled, and the new Act now undergoing discussion and revision in the Bengal Council is likely to be still more objectionable and more mischievous than its predecessors. When we read the clause releasing labourers from their contracts after suffering a certain term of imprisonment we expressed our opinion that such a clause would be ruinous to the plantations that depend upon imported labour. Since that time we have published letters from an experienced planter of Assam, which corroborate our opinions, and the planter regards the enactment of such a clause with the greatest alarm. He roundly asserts that by feigned desertion the labourers will get themselves imprisoned for a time, and then obtain their freedom from their contracts. Here is another element of confusion and disaster which may complete the ruin of the unfortunate planters.

Lastly, from Ganjam come new mutterings of apprehended famine, such as were so entirely disregarded last year, but we have not so much apprehension on this score. The new Lieutenant-Governor will benefit by the errors of his predecessor, and the severity of the censure that has been meted out to him. In this point of view that bitterness of attack of which the press has been accused will do good service, and it must never be forgotten that the carelessness or laxity of a Lieutenant-Governor may cause the sacrifice of a million of human beings, by the most prolonged and agonising of deaths—death from starvation.

Under the circumstances we have endeavoured to describe, the Governor-General and his Council take their departure, for (to adopt a phrase of Mr. Norman's,) pastures they love to browse in, while we are left to chew the cud of bitter taxation, and digest it as we may.—Englishman, April 19.

"DOING DUTY OFFICERS" ON LEAVE.

A correspondent of the Delhi Gazette writes as follows regarding general doing duty officers:—"Two Lieutenant-Colonels and one Major belonging to the Staff Corps, and five Lieutenant-Colonels and two Majors of the local service, are at Umballa, and two Staff Corps Lieutenant-Colonels and one Major in the local service, are at Meerut."

This is surely a case for Mr. Massey's consideration. We have already drawn attention to the fact, and we shall have occasion to do so again, that seven of the officers of Umballa have just obtained six months' private leave to the hills. In another month half the doing duty officers will be luxuriating on good pay at one or other of our hill sanatoria. The doing duty system has already been taken up at home.

The Army and Navy Gazette writes:—"How very galling it must be to a captain of over twenty years' service, and brevet-major of her Majesty's British army (we will say at Meerut), on his captain's substantive pay, and having arduous regimental duties to perform, to meet on every line or general service, Indian field officers of similar service drawing nearly double his amount of pay, with no other duty to do than a fortnightly tour of line duty."

The writer has chosen the best station to make the comparison at, as there are more doing duty officers there than at any other. Barring an occasional court-martial or committee, there is nothing for these officers to do, and it is absurd that they should be allowed to draw handsome pay and allowances whilst performing no duties. Government should send a number of its field officers who are thus employed on furlough to England on half Indian pay. This was done in 1785 to civilians. Here is the order, dated 27th January of that year:—

"The Hon. the Governor-General and Council, having thought proper to resolve on a reduction of the expense in several departments under this Government, and having been consequently obliged to remove some gentlemen in the Civil Service from their offices, and to diminish the allowances and alter the pensions received by others, notice is hereby given, that permission will be granted to persons under these descriptions, who may be willing to avail themselves of it, to return to England on leave of absence, with an allowance of half their allotted salaries payable in Bengal, and without forfeiture of their respective ranks in the service. All such persons are to enjoy their leave of absence for three years, commencing from the day of their arrival in England, on condition of their returning to service before that period, if required so to do by the Hon. Court of Directors, and all such persons are to notify to the Hon. Court of Directors the day on which they shall arrive in England, and, if not called upon to return to Bengal before the three years are ended, they are to signify their intentions in due time to the Hon. Court of Directors, whether it be to remain in England or return to India, and on failure thereof they are to lose all pretensions to the service."

We do not see in the present emergency why a number of the surplus officers should not be allowed to proceed to England on half-pay, until they have either completed the period of service entitling them to a pension, or till their services are required. Officers permitted this indulgence should retire on becoming eligible for the pension of the next highest rank to that which they held on leaving the country.

The scheme might be as follows:—

30 Lieut.-Colonels	} All to be in the Staff Corps.
30 Majors
50 Captains
Their present pay is:—
		Rs.	Rs.
30 Lieutenant-Colonels ...		at 827-14-0	3,98,035-0-0
30 Majors ...		640-14-6	2,20,726-4-0
50 Captains...		374-1-0	2,24,437-8-0
			Rs. 7,43,198-12-0

Granting half-pay to this number would save annually Rs. 3,71,599-6, or nearly four lakhs of rupees. All the officers granted the privilege to retire at once on becoming eligible to the next superior pension, the leave granted reckoning as service. This is a wiser and better plan than granting six months' leave to the hills to two-thirds of the officers doing general duty, who are drawing handsome allowances.

A correspondent in the Englishman shows that by granting admission to all officers to enter the staff corps, the promotion now received by those who choose to remain local is enormous, and the result is that staff corps officers are now superseded in promotion by their juniors. Thirty majors have been promoted this year to lieutenant-colonel, and a glance at the Army List will show, after making the promotions of thirty captains to majors, that the whole gradation list of majors, or eighty in all, will be promoted by fourteen casualties to lieutenant-colonels, eighty captains becoming majors, and eighty lieutenants captains in their room. Fourteen casualties may be expected in a year and a half, consequently a captain promoted to major to-day may become a lieutenant-colonel in eighteen months, an unprecedented and unlooked-for occurrence. This promotion as affecting local officers is very unfair, as it enables them to retire on the pension of the rank they hold after 22 years' service, whereas the staff officer cannot do so.—Indian Daily News, April 22.

BEAUTIES OF THE LICENCE TAX.

The Englishman concludes an exposure of the tax in these terms:—

If there were nothing else objectionable in the Act section 14 would give rise to an agitation against it most determined and bitter. As we have shown, Mr. Massey has forgotten to define the meaning of a "trading" company or association, and has consequently opened a wide door for discussion—and litigation. But let us see now, in conclusion, how the Act will operate. First of the exemptions:—

The whole of the Central Provinces.

The army and police under the pay of a captain of Infantry.

Junior chaplains and ministers of the Additional Clergy Society.

Government servants whose pay is less than Rs. 1,000 per annum.

Clerks and servants whose pay is less than Rs. 1,000 per annum.

All cultivators of land, in respect of the sale of the produce of such land, provided they do not keep shops.

The Presidency towns to the extent of the Municipal Licence fees already levied.

Section 2 says: "Nothing in this Act shall be construed to affect the provisions of any other law relating to Licences or Taxes;" consequently pleaders and mokhtears are exempt, having already to take out a separate licence.

Indigo planters are exempt as cultivators, in respect of the sale of the produce of their factories.

Tea companies are exempt for the same reason.

Zemindars and fundholders have been already exempted.

Who then are the classes to be taxed?

Artisans and shop-keepers with incomes of Rs. 200 and upwards per annum.

Clerks, &c. with salaries of more than 1,000 Rs. per annum.

Civil Servants.

Soldiers above the rank of Captain.

Merchants.

Trading Companies.

And out of these classes, that is, out of a section of the workers of the community, Mr. Massey expects to wring half a million of money, by an Act so loosely framed, and so carelessly worded, that before a single rupee can be legally collected the collectors must receive instructions as to what data they are to use in classifying the tax-payers, and must be taught how to reconcile sections 5 and 19 with section 15.

Such are a few of the discrepancies of this most extraordinary effort of financial genius. The sections to which we have drawn attention deserve a careful perusal, as upon the interpretation to be fixed upon them depends the whole success of the Act. Failing to see how a magistrate can determine any prospective income, we fail to see how a conviction is possible for not taking out a licence, and whilst recommending this difficulty to the attention of the Government, we would once more respectfully suggest that the Viceroy should suspend an Act, which even thus early promises to produce an amount of general irritation as well as opposition to the Government. To our thinking the two points to be borne in mind are, first:—There is nothing whatever in the Act which can make it applicable to profits, salaries, fees, or perquisites which may have accrued between May 1, 1866, and April 30, 1867.

And next:—That should the collector be so ill-advised as to follow up his illegal altering of the words of the Act, by taking any recumbent tax-payer before a magistrate, the taxpayer will, being in the position of a criminal, receive the usual benefit of such a position, that is, the onus of proving the sum upon which he should be taxed will rest with the collector! How this unhappy official may discharge this obligation in the face of section 5, we leave it to Mr. Massey to imagine.

MISCELLANEOUS.

FAREWELL DINNER TO SIR C. BEADON.—CALCUTTA, April 14th.—Last night the farewell public dinner to the Lieutenant-Governor came off in the Town-hall, and in every way it was a great success. To it flocked all classes of the community, from the members of the Supreme Council, and Judges of the High Court, to the leading merchants and lawyers of the city. Nor were the guests confined to Calcutta; all the Bengal stations up the line sent their officials down to swell the numbers rallying round the much-abused Lieutenant Governor. About 250 gentlemen sat down under the chairmanship of Mr. Justice Norman, who, after proposing the Queen and Viceroy, came to the toast of the evening, the health of Sir Cecil Beadon, which was received with tremendous applause. In a long speech he reviewed the career of the Lieutenant-Governor, and brought forward most forcibly the various measures which he had introduced, dwelling especially on those for introducing female education, trial by jury, and taking evidence in the courts. Sir Cecil was received with loud and prolonged cheering, and it was touching to look upon his sad pale and careworn face as he rose and tried to begin his return speech. He soon got the better of his feelings, and then gave us a masterly resumé of his policy, scorning the virulent and malicious attacks of the press, and declaring that all he had done had been according to the best of his judgment and ability for the good of all. When he sat down Lady Beadon and the other ladies in the gallery were duly toasted and cheered, and then the assembly broke up, all delighted with the complete success of this demonstration. In the course of a sarcastic article upon the subject, the Englishman says:—"When Mr. Norman threw himself into the breach to defend in toto the political acts of Sir Cecil Beadon, he proved himself to be one of that class who rush in where angels fear to tread. It could not surely but have raised a smile amongst some who were not altogether dead to facts, even in that assembly, to hear it deliberately stated that to Sir Cecil Beadon was due all the social improvements and political progress of Bengal during the past five years. One present at least knew better, and that one was the distinguished host of the evening. According to his friend, Sir Cecil Beadon could lay the flattering unction to his soul of being the immediate developer, or the great persistent advocate of improvement of general education in India, including female, legal and medical education, the postal system, railway organisation, the Grand Trunk Road, agricultural exhibitions, stoppage of the Churruck Poojah, and Hindu polygamy, prevention of corpses being flung into the Ganges, conservancy, waterworks. Sir Cecil must have blushed to have heard himself styled the inaugurator or the improver of all these. Yet Mr. Norman, heedless of facts, went on. He got into pastures which he said he loved, although many wondered at his browsing on such scanty commons. But his nature urged him on. He had an object to sympathise with—in fact to mourn over. He turned Belvedere, we might say, inside out in dwelling upon its pleasant memories. He was rapturous about Sir Cecil's smile—exuberant about his genial heart, and to sum up the strange eventful history which he gave of his friend, declared that he was prepared to act the part, which has hitherto been considered only a connubial privilege, of sharing his honour's sorrows. 'If he is condemned (by the Government at home) there is no one,' said his lordship in the ecstasy of his emotion, 'who will feel it more deeply than I. The blow will fall upon me,' &c., &c. Could the force of friendship further go? The reporters say that there were only cheers at the expression of this sentiment, but surely there were tears also, and pocket-handkerchiefs must have been called into play."

CONVERSION IN PRISON.—A correspondent informs us that a native Hindu having been condemned to death, the Catholic priest of the station applied to the magistrate for permission to visit the prisoner in jail, and prepare him for his last end, should he find him well disposed; but that magistrate positively refused to grant the request, unless at the special demand of the prisoner. Upon this the priest went to the jail to try and induce some of the attendants to let the prisoner know of his desire of speaking with him, and thus the condemned man might himself ask for the priest. By some mistake however on the part of the daroga, regarding the directions of the magistrate, he admitted the priest to the prisoner, who received his instructions most readily, and was baptised, and became apparently a sincere Christian; the priest accompanying him to the gallows, and remaining all the time as close to him as he was permitted. The magistrate, however, when he heard that the man had been baptised, was very indignant, and told the priest that "he did not think that he should have taken advantage of the man's being in prison to influence him in another belief." He was so much annoyed at the unfortunate man having become a Christian, that he actually dismissed the daroga from his office, whose only fault was that he had misunderstood the magistrate's orders. Now, is this conduct worthy of a man calling himself a Christian? Government officials certainly should not use their position and influence in any undue manner to compel Hindus to embrace the Christian faith; but surely the British Government of the present day does not require its servants to do the devil's work, and put all the obstacles possible in the way to the conversion of the natives. Yet this is really what many of them seem to aim at.—Indo-European Correspondence, April 13.

AN EPITOME OF THE LAWS, &c.—Mr. Markham, of the Civil Service, has published a most useful little book which he entitles "An Epitome of the Laws, Regulations, and Circulars appertaining to the Magisterial and Collectorial and Police departments of the N. W. P." It is a work very like "Tucker's Note Book." But Tucker is now out of date, and Mr. Markham's work will be found fully competent to take its place. In many respects it is more complete even than Tucker. He says his aim throughout has been to express the gist, and the gist only, of the various acts and circulars in the fewest possible words consistent with clearness of meaning. It is arranged in four parts, comprising, 1. Magisterial.—2. Police.—3. Collectorial.—4. Miscellaneous. The subject matter of each part is arranged in the form of a vocabulary in alphabetical order; and besides this it is furnished with a good index, so that it has the advantage, a sine qua non in a work of this kind, of facility of reference. It is intended by the author mainly as an aid to study for the examination for assistant magistrates, collectors, and police officers, and as a handy book of general office procedure.—Delhi Gazette.

CHOLERA IN THE PUNJAB.—We regret much to hear that something like a panic has been caused in the Punjab by the reported breaking out of cholera of a rather violent character at Umballa amongst the returning pilgrims from Hurdwar. We can only hope the report is considerably exaggerated, but are glad to hear that immediate and stringent measures have been adopted for examining all travellers crossing the Beas, and stopping those who may appear in any way infected. A cholera camp was to be formed last Sunday at Wuzer Ghat (the ferry over the Beas), under the directions of the Civil Surgeon of Umristur, aided by Mr. Roe, Assistant Commissioner, and Captain Menzies, Superintendent of Police. A sub-assistant surgeon is to be stationed at the ghat, and we trust these precautions will be successful in preventing the spread of the disease. There must have been an early apprehension of something of the kind, as we hear that some days ago the pilgrims were prevented from entering the Umballa cantonment, and directed to make a considerable detour.—Delhi Gazette.

THE CHOLERA AT ROORKEE.—Considerable anxiety, so we are informed by a correspondent, continues to be felt in Roorkee on account of the outbreak of cholera. Many of the pilgrims on their return from Hurdwar died in that station as well as in the surrounding villages. In the camp of the Maharajah of Cashmere, which is pitched somewhere between Roorkee and Hurdwar, thirty cases were reported to have occurred on the 17th instant, ten of which proved fatal. The disease has also spread to the native portion of the community at Roorkee, but is confined chiefly to those who had made the pilgrimage to Hurdwar. On the 17th two deaths occurred among the people attached to the Thomason College, one of the victims being a native student of the 3rd department. No case of cholera had up to the 18th made its appearance among the European inhabitants of that station.—Pioneer, April 22nd.

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.—REVISION OF SALARIES.—Some time ago the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces submitted to the Government of India a scheme to revise the salaries of the Director of Public Instruction, and of the inspectors of schools in those provinces. In the above-mentioned scheme the local administration at Nagpore proposed to raise the salary of the director at once from Rs. 1,000 to Rs. 1,200, progressively rising to the maximum of Rs. 1,500 a month by an annual increase of Rs. 75, and also to increase progressively the pay of the two classes of educational inspectors from Rs. 400 and 500 to Rs. 600 and 800 respectively. As the question involved a large increase of public expenditure the Government of India submitted it to the consideration of the Secretary, who, we hear, sanctioned the measure as regards the increase of the salary of the director, but with regard to that of the inspectors, Lord Cranborne declined to accord his sanction, on the ground that the case was not supported by the Governor-general in Council, who is said to be of opinion that the receipts of the Education Department in the Central Provinces, on account of schooling fees, are too limited to warrant such a heavy increase of expenditure in that department.

THE GENERAL LISTS.—The officers of the cavalry and infantry general lists do not seem to have any prospect of much promotion for some time to come. There is no infantry "general list" captain as yet, but there is one in the cavalry. In the infantry there are now two regiments with no lieutenants, one with one, and several with only two or three; casualties in the two former, viz., the 35th and 42nd, will promote general list lieutenants to captains. The officers of the army generally have, as we have lately shown, received much promotion by the staff corps having been thrown open to all comers; and we think some consideration should be shown to the general list. In the cavalry there are eleven officers' names who belong to corps of the line. In the infantry there are twenty-three who belong to line regiments, and thirteen to the staff corps. In fairness these should be struck off. Those who are in the staff corps should at any rate be removed from the general list, as it is unjust to those below them to have their names retained.—Indian Daily News.

THE QUICKEST RUN ON RECORD BETWEEN JUBBULPORE AND ALLAHABAD.—Dr. Brandis arrived in this station on the 3rd inst. from England, via Bombay and the Jubbulpore line. The quickest run on record between Jubbulpore and Allahabad has on this occasion been made by Dr. Brandis, who left Jubbulpore at seven o'clock on the evening of the 2nd, and arrived in Allahabad at six o'clock on the evening of the 3rd. This time included a halt of five hours at Moorwarra, where Dr. Brandis was met by Mr. LeMesurier's special train at seven A.M., the 3rd inst., and brought into Allahabad, a distance of 170 miles, in ten hours, over a new line of railway. The whole journey from Jubbulpore was thus accomplished in eighteen hours, excluding, of course, the halt at Moorwarra, but including all other stoppages, stations, &c.—Pioneer, April 8.

THE OUTBREAK OF FEVER IN THE BURDWAN DIVISION.—The report on the deputation of two native doctors to the fever-stricken localities in the Burdwan division, gives the following results:—At Satgachea, twenty-four cases were admitted, all of which were cured. At Oolera the admissions were 293; of this number 277 were cured, 4 relieved, 29 ceased to attend, and 7 died. The expenses incurred for native medicines and other additional medical comforts amounted to Rs. 6-3-9 only. The doctors were deputed on the 1st January last and the operations in Satgachea were closed on the 8th, and at Oolera on the 28th February last.—Indian Daily News and Bengal Hurkaru, April 11.

PROMOTION IN THE STAFF CORPS.—By the following list it will be seen that there will be twenty-five majors promoted to lieutenant-colonel in the Staff Corps during this year. In 1867 there will be no less than sixty-two promotions from major to lieutenant-colonel, so that Government will, besides having eighty-seven more lieutenant-colonels, have to pay annually, from 1868, Rs. 1,95,120 more than it is doing in 1867:—

FAVOURABLE TEA SEASON IN ASSAM.—A correspondent from Assam writes:—"All interested in the cultivation of tea in Assam will be glad to learn that the manufacturing season has set in under the most favourable auspices. In seven years I do not remember such early and profuse leaf, and general showers of rain occur almost daily, which will cause April, our month of dread, to yield well. Although last year was far from a bad one as far as quantity went, the very dry spring, succeeded by deluges of rain in July, caused a late season, and much inferior tea was made in consequence. Managers of gardens are now directing all their attention to quality, and very rightly too, for much of the trash made is not worth picking. Economy is becoming the order of the day, and I have every hope that tea, when it becomes thoroughly understood, will again resume its place at the head of all sound investments. I would advise all shareholders to stick by the ship; to insist on the utmost economy in the factories, to curtail their Calcutta expenses, and, above all, to look well into the characters of those to whose care their property is entrusted. The idle and the dissolute should be remorselessly weeded out, while any act of cruelty should be punished by instant dismissal. The better class of coolies, the villagers of Hazareebaugh and Sonthalistan, are very susceptible of kind treatment. I know many factories in this district from which no desertion ever occurs, while in others a stockade, erected ostensibly to keep out wild beasts, could not prevent it, nor any number of night chowkedars. We are all indulging in anticipations of a bumper season, and many a good ship that has been rolling heavily in the gale will again expand its wings to the favouring breeze."—Englishman.

LA MARTINIÈRE.—The annual report of the La Martinière, for the year 1865-66, has just been printed. We notice with regret that there has been a falling off in the number of scholars, but we understand that the Board of Governors, assisted by the Secretary, Dr. Macnamara, contemplate effecting several changes in the school, which will place it upon a fresh footing, and give a new lease of life to this excellent and useful institution. The report states that eighteen boys and thirteen girls were elected for admission to the school during the year. The principal of the school reported himself as generally satisfied with the results of the annual examinations.

THE NULHATEE RAILWAY.—Lieut. Wallace, Officiating Assistant Consulting Engineer, was lately deputed to obtain an approximate valuation of the stock and block of the Indian Branch Railway Company, Nulhatee line, as it now stands, with an adequate depreciation for wear and tear. The cost price is given in the directors' report as £75,813. From the report prepared by Lieutenant Wallace, in communication with Messrs. Long and Good engineers, it appears that the line has hitherto been worked at a small loss, but large reductions of establishments have recently been effected, and the fixed monthly charges now amount to about Rs. 2,200 only. The advantages derived by the East Indian Railway from the working of this branch line appear from the statistics given in the report incontestible, and the indirect profits are estimated by Lieutenant Wallace at 4½ per cent. on a sum of Rs. 7,58,130, which is the actual cost of the branch line. There also appears every reason to hope for a large increase of the traffic under improved management, as no effort has yet been made to work the line to advantage. The line is shown by Lieutenant Wallace to be in reasonably good order, and likely to work without heavy renewals for at least three years longer, and it has now been suggested that the East Indian Railway Company offer to undertake the supervision of the line (retaining the fixed establishments in the pay of the Indian Branch Railway), and guarantee the shareholders a dividend of 2½ per cent. for three years on Rs. 7,58,130 (the cost of line), on the understanding that should the receipts improve to any marked extent the guarantee will be renewed at a proportionately enhanced rate for a further period of five years, if the Indian Branch Railway Company will undertake to effect all necessary repairs prior to the renewal of the agreement.—Indian Daily News and Bengal Hurkaru, April 9.

THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT IN OUDE.—The meeting at the residence of the Chief Commissioner, last Thursday morning, on the subject of the Volunteer movement in Oudh, did all that could be expected. A committee was formed to draw up rules for a new constitution of the corps. We understand it consists as follows:—Colonel L. Barrow, C.B. President, W. C. Capper, Esq., Vice President, Lieutenant De Montmorency, Secretary. Members.—Mr. Quinton, Captain Joyce, Ensign Burgess, Major Chamberlain, and Mr. Edmund Morgan, with liberty to add to their number. The committee's first meeting is to be at 6 A.M. on Monday next, the 15th inst., at the residence of the President. The general principle is to offer some kind of advantages to both official and non-official members of the corps. The Chief Commissioner has agreed to throw as much weight as he can into the movement by his own support and encouragement. As already stated, it is proposed to lighten the drill part as much as possible, and to give closer attention to the use of arms. The members are to be protected from all expense, while the Government will be solicited to modify the rules in regard to preparing for a general officer's inspection so as to overcome the present difficulty in drawing allowances for contingent charges. Of course membership will be open to all within the province.—Oudh Gazette, April 13.

THE DARJEELING CONVALESCENT DEPOT.—The Commander-in-Chief has determined to raise the Darjeeling Convalescent Depot from a second to a first-class depot. The measure, whilst increasing the strength of the depot to three hundred men, will not affect the staff establishment beyond improving the allowance of the commandant and station staff. It is also intended to attach to the troops, stationed at Darjeeling, consisting of one mountain battery and the wing of an infantry regiment, a qualified station staff officer, upon a special allowance of Rs. 100 per mensem.—Englishman.

MILITARY ITEMS.—Lieut.-Col. H. Dinning has elected for the Staff Corps, consequently Capt. J. L. Nation, 57th; W. B. Lloyd, 10th; W. R. Girdlestone, 67th; C. F. G. Lamb, 62nd; J. E. Fraser, 4th Europeans; J. S. Rawlins, 44th; J. Smith, 51st, and W. Davis become Majors in succession to their Majors promoted to Lieutenant Colonels. Lieutenant Boyle, 10th Foot, has been permitted to retire (query, resign), and Ens. Cavaye gets his Lieutenantancy; this is the third step the corps has had this year.—Several conjectures are made as to the reason of having the 1st N. I. at Dum-Dum. It is, however, simply in conformity with an order of Government sanctioning the location of one Native Infantry regiment at that station, and dated 7th of August last.—General Fortlyce, of the Royal Bengal Artillery, who will arrive from England in a few days, will probably receive one of the Inspector Generalships of Royal Artillery.—Major Gen. Buchanan has not yet returned from privilege leave, so that he has not yet regularly taken up his command in Fort William.—Colonel W. T. L. Patterson, of the 91st Highlanders, and at present commanding the 105th Foot at Singapore, is about to return to take command of his own regiment.

WE LEARN FROM THE KANGRA VALLEY that matters are progressing favourably for the advantage of the tea planters and other European settlers in those parts, and trust that the obstacles to progress will soon be entirely removed. The forest lands will in all probability soon be available, if we may depend on the exertions of Mr. Prinsep, the Commissioner of Settlements, and of Mr. Forsyth, the chief executive in the Jullundhur Division. Moreover, we understand from our correspondent that the valley was to be visited immediately by the Financial Commissioner. There is a great future for the Kangra Valley, and we are glad to learn that there is every prospect of the new settlement of Palampur being all that Mr. Forsyth may desire.—Delhi Gazette.

THE OFFICERS OF THE MYSORE COMMISSION.—Why should the officers of the Mysore Commission not receive the same justice as those of all the other provinces? They are exactly in the position of their brethren in Berar, who are about to have their salaries raised, while the revenue is increasing at a more rapid rate. Mr. Bowring, when revising the Commission in 1862, adopted a scale of pay for assistants very small in comparison to the work exacted of them. There are only two grades, on Rs. 500 and Rs. 600, and the unfortunate official in a province which pays £150,000 a year to the Maharajah—besides half a million for his debts periodically—and nothing to the imperial revenues, may vegetate ten years before he gets a district which entitles him to only Rs. 1,000 a month.—Friend of India.

DEATH OF RAJAH RADHAKANT DEB.—The venerable Rajah Sri Radhakant Deb has died at the advanced age of 85 years. The Rajah had an extensive reputation as a Sanscrit scholar, and had been for very many years looked up to as the chief of the orthodox Hindoo Society in Calcutta. He will be succeeded, it is said, in this position, as well as in the chieftainship of the influential Deb family, by Rajah Kalikrishna.

SUBSCRIPTION ON BEHALF OF THE WIDOW AND CHILD OF THE LATE MR. HELY.—Our readers who have read of the late sad accident at Almorah, when Captain Hely and his son were struck dead by lightning, will be glad to learn that a subscription has been started on behalf of the young man's widow and child, who have been left in a state of destitution.

THIBET.—A truce has been concluded between the Grand Lama of Thibet and the rebellious Kanjas. The troops of the Lama have been allowed furlough to visit their homes, while the leaders of the insurgents have received high posts in the Government.—Englishman, April 15.

BHOOTAN.—We hear from Bhootan that the unsatisfactory state of parties at Poornakha has induced Tongsoo Penlow, or Nakhoo, to postpone, for a while, his intention of installing the new Dhurm Rajah. Angolo Forung, it is said, disappointed of receiving aid and countenance from the British, has despatched agents to cultivate a friendship with some of the Chinese chiefs of Thibet.

THE FIRST SECTION OF THE PUNJAB RAILWAY, between Delhi and Meerut, was opened on the morning of the 18th of April without any display whatever beyond perhaps an extra whistle from the engine, and the presence of a few gentlemen of the department whose duty it was to see the first train start.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.—Our Commander-in-Chief, Sir Gaspard le Marchant, who is about as unpopular as an official in his station can very well be, has at last done something which is generally approved of—he has sent in his resignation. Rumour has already disposed of the chief in this way more than once, but it is now stated on the best authority that the resignation is a fact, and has been telegraphed home. Sir Gaspard will, however, remain here, till his successor (probably Gen. Sir C. Wyndham, C. B.) arrives in November. The immediate cause of this step is stated to be, that Government have expressed their disapprobation of certain of His Excellency's measures in connection with the recent re-organisation of corps, and one or two other matters which have made the Chief the theme of all tongues. Disliked as Sir Gaspard has been from the beginning, his unpopularity has marvellously increased of late, consequent on certain appointments which have been made by him, clearly at the dictation of feelings of favouritism. Hitherto whatever was said of his Excellency, it was always allowed that he was just; he is now losing even that praise, and the general opinion is that the management of the Madras army could not possibly be in worse hands. It has been very justly remarked that if Sir Gaspard has been of no other use, he has at least demonstrated that the appointment he holds might just as well be abolished.

BOMBAY.

AFFAIRS OF CENTRAL ASIA.

We have information up to a very recent date of certain events that have happened in Central Asia, more especially in relation to Bokhara. It is proper to remark that some of the items of intelligence are from Russian sources, and must be taken with some allowance, so far as the news appears to tell in their favour. Nevertheless the narration is so much more consecutive and probable than the little sensation stories frequently received from Northern India, that we feel confident it is substantially correct. Information had already been received of the capture, some three or four months ago, by General Kryjanovski of the fortress of Djuzak or Jeezikh, and of his having crossed the Ak'tau range by the pass of Oratippa (or Ora-tepe)—a route proceeding southwest between Khojend and Samarcand. The Russians have now definitely abandoned the design which they for some time seriously entertained of destroying the forts captured at Jeezikh and Ak-tippa or Oratippa, and falling back on the line of Jaxartes. It is decided that for the present these places, and also Khojend, shall continue in their occupation. It is further stated that the fabric of the Bokhara Government appears to have completely collapsed under the shock of the successive defeats it has received from Russia. The Khan of Shuhr-i-Subz and Karshee—have thrown off their allegiance to the Ameer, and set up independent authority within their respective limits. What is of more consequence, however, is that the advent of the Russians appears to have called "the people" into political existence, and as may be supposed, their views are very different from those held by the despots by whom they have hitherto been blindly swayed and oppressed. Thus it is said that the people of Shuhr-i-Subz, envying the peace and good government which their neighbours enjoy at Tashkend, have begged to be informed of the extent to which they would be liable to be taxed if brought under Russian rule, and have even gone so far as to ask the aid of a Russian detachment to enable them to declare against their Ameer, and in favour of placing their territory under the protection of the Russian settlements on the Jaxartes on the north-east. It is also asserted that the people of Bokhara have sent more than one deputation to the Russian officer commanding at Jeezikh, entreating him to advance and make an end of their capricious and cruel master; but the request has been disallowed, it being understood that the Russians would rather see the Ameer dethroned by his own subjects exclusively, and a new government of native origin in his stead, over which the Russians, without exercising direct and open authority, may yet hold a paramount influence.

In Karshee also—a town and district about 100 miles due south-east from Bokhara—and generally throughout the "Mawur-oo-Nahr," the popular feeling is one of open discontent with their old rulers, and of approximation towards friendly intercourse and commercial dealing with the Europeans. There is even a rumour—but it is nothing more as yet—that the Ameer of Bokhara has been driven from his capital and slain in an endeavour to recapture the city from his rebellious subjects. At Kokand, Khudaljar Khan is most amicably disposed towards the Russians; he has delivered up several Russian runaway soldiers, and several prisoners captured by the Kirghizes. We are informed also that a Russian trading caravan despatched to Kokand by the well-known Russian mercantile firm of "Khludof" was very well received by the Khan, and realised a very large profit on the merchandise; albeit, we think, on arrival at Orenburg on their return journey would have been a more suitable time for the adventurous merchants to balance their books. These items of intelligence come from Russian sources, and, as we have already said, must be taken cum grano. It is quite possible, as these somewhat exciting items of intelligence go to show, that a large portion of the Oosbeg population may be sick of an unprofitable war with Russia, and anxious to secure the novel blessings of European rule, but there must also be numbers in whose minds the fire of fanatical opposition to the Christian invaders cannot be so suddenly extinguished. But even with this necessary deduction it seems tolerably clear that the ancient kingdom of Bokhara is shaken to its foundations, and must soon wholly disappear; and if, as seems likely, its fall will be due mainly to the dislike and contempt of its own subjects and tributaries, it will perish unhonoured and unregretted.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE AMALGAMATION OF THE BANKS.—The popular feeling against the amalgamation of the Bank of Bombay and the Bank of Bengal has been somewhat strengthened by a rumour, which we have reason to believe is pretty well-founded, that Mr. Dickson, as representing the Bank of Bengal, has thought fit to demand much higher terms from the Bombay shareholders than he was at first willing to accept. The popular feeling has also taken a somewhat definite shape, and what should have been done at the very beginning, when the directors began reluctantly to admit that the old bank could no longer continue to do business, has now at last been done. On the invitation of the directors the opponents of the plan of amalgamation with the Bank of Bengal have met together for private deliberation, and various schemes have been submitted for constructing a new bank. All the schemes imply, of course, the raising of capital in Bombay, and, first of all, from the shareholders of the old bank; but it is very doubtful if the money will be raised, even although one influential native shareholder has offered to take four hundred shares of Rs. 500 each, equivalent to two lakhs of new capital. The impression, however, seems to be very general, amongst the natives more particularly, that there will be no difficulty in getting the capital of fifty lakhs, which are considered sufficient to start the new bank with, if Government promises to keep on its business with the bank after its formation. At the late meeting a hearty feeling was expressed in favour of the construction of a new bank, but, as will be gathered from the resolution which the meeting passed, there was no particular prejudice against amalgamation considered per se, and the desire of the gentlemen who sat in deliberation and of the shareholders generally, is to find, if possible, some better way out of their difficulties.—Times of India.

A GROWL FROM AN OLD INDIAN.—But on the whole I am greatly disgusted with England as I find it out of London. The peasants are frightfully ignorant and debased, at least in the south-west of England, where I have been staying, whilst the respectable classes are horribly given over to their peculiar religion. Tracts are stuck about everywhere just like horses' shoes, and in waiting-rooms and railway carriages half the people are reading sensation pseudo-religious works like Dr. Cumming's last essay on the great day of His tribulation. One old lady the other day, after eyeing me for a long time, and fancying, I suppose, that I looked like it, asked me if I knew anything of "The Saint's Delight;" so I said quietly that I was a stranger from Bombay, where we were all atheists and profligates—being as much as to say I didn't know anything of "The Saint's Delight," and hoped to be excused for not. I dare say in London among intellectual men—if one had the means and ways of living among them—life might be very pleasant in England, but in the country it is very dull, unless you can afford, and with the means have the taste, to shoot, and hunt, and race. I know at least that I shall come back to Bombay with great zest, and only wish its annual temperature were two or three degrees less.—Bombay Gazette.

THE COMMISSIONERSHIP OF SIND.—Though the appointment of Lieutenant-Colonel W. L. Merewether, C.B., to the pro-consulship of Sind has not yet been officially announced, it is now generally understood that he has been selected for that post by the Bombay Government. The Commissionership of Sind has always been regarded by the members of the Bombay Civil Service as one of their peculiar and most coveted prizes, and among that body the selection of a military man has naturally been met with marked disfavour, and, we believe, determined opposition. Such, however, is the scarcity of really able men in the senior ranks of the Bombay Civil Service, and so many are the claims upon them, that not one was available for the best appointment in the gift of the Government, for which Colonel Merewether was immediately singled out by public opinion, on the appointment of Mr. Mansfield, C.S.I., to a seat in the Executive Council.

THE HON. A. J. HUNTER has resigned the office of member of the Bombay Legislative Council in consequence of his approaching departure for Europe.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL MALCOLM, C.B., has been gazetted to the command of the Sind Division of the Bombay army.

DISORDERS NEAR ADEN.—It will be remembered that about twelve months ago, a force was marched into the interior near Aden by Colonel Merewether, for the punishment of the Foudheli chief, who had closed the roads leading into Aden and plundered a caravan. On the approach of the force the chief fled to the hills, and has remained there since in a state of passive hostility. The chief's eldest son came into Aden on the 12th inst., and tendered submission on behalf of his father and his tribe. The old chief is upwards of ninety years old, and it is believed he is either dead or dying—hence the visit of his son to Aden, anxious to make peace with the British Government on his succession. Colonel Merewether was believed to be ready to make peace with the Foudheli, as he was expecting to learn of his appointment to Sind by every steamer from Bombay, notwithstanding that a stand against it was being made by the Bombay civilians. A troop of Horse, organised like the cavalry on the Sind frontier, is in course of being raised for Aden, to deal more effectively in future with runaway Arabs like the Foudheli. —Bombay Gazette.

THE COMMERCIAL BANK.—At a very thinly attended meeting of the Bombay shareholders of the Commercial Bank resolutions were adopted in favour of its resuscitation.

THE WEEKLY MAILS.—It has been officially announced that the weekly mails between Bombay and Suez will be discontinued during the monsoon.

THE DOUBLE LINE ON THE G.I.P. RAILWAY has now been completed between Bombay and Egutpoora—a distance of eighty-five miles.

FOUR PERSONS HAVE BEEN KILLED and several injured, by a collision near Amrolee, on the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway.

THE GOVERNOR HAS RETURNED TO BOMBAY from Matheran. The Commander-in-Chief is still at Mahabeshwur.

THE GOVERNOR OF BOMBAY has become the patron, and Chief Justice Sir Richard Couch one of the vice-presidents, of the Bombay branch of the Royal Asiatic Society.

THE ACT TO REDUCE THE CAPITAL OF THE BANK OF BOMBAY has received the assent of the Governor-general.

A PUBLIC PROSECUTOR has been appointed for Bombay on a monthly salary of Rs. 700.

NEW PASSAGE WARRANT.

Military, No. 15.

India-office, London, Jan. 16, 1867.

To H.E. the Right. Hon. the Gov. Gen. of India in Council.

Sir,—I have received and considered in Council para. 6 of your despatch, dated Aug. 16 last, No. 210, relating to your decisions on certain questions raised by the Govt. of Madras in connection with the new passage warrant.

2. I observe it stated in your secretary's letter to the Govt. of Fort St. George of July 17 last that in a recent despatch [No. 121, dated June 9, 1866, para. 3] it was intimated that the provisions of the royal warrant are not applicable to officers of the British service holding staff appointments in India, other than those contemplated by the passage regulations of 1819. At para. 6 of the same despatch it is stated that British officers holding civil or general staff appointments in India, other than those above referred to, must be viewed as being in the position of Indian officers while so employed.

3. With reference to these points, I must observe that the officers referred to in para. 3 of Lord de Grey's despatch, viz.:—Major gen. on the staff, adjt. gen. and qrmr. gen., deputy ditto. A.D.C., must, in common with other officers of H.M.'s British service holding staff appts. in India, be viewed in this respect as being in the position of Indian officers. That none of them are entitled to passage allowance to or from India while actually holding staff appts (subaltern officers returning home on m.c. alone excepted), but they are all entitled to that allowance if proceeding to that country to take up appts, as will sometimes be the case in the appts. above enumerated, or upon return to England on the expiration of their term of staff duty.

4. The term "civil," as used in the 1st clause of the Royal Warrant, is applicable to India, inasmuch as no officer of H.M.'s British service other than those in the staff corps, can hold civil employment under the Govt. of India.—I have the honour, &c., (Signed) CRANBORNE.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.—PAY.

Head Qrs., Calcutta, March 24.—No. 77.—The following decision by the Govt. of India, in letter, from the mil. dept., No. 551, dated 16th inst., is notified for information and guidance:—

"In adjusting the claims to the grant of the allowance by an asst. surg., who may fall into the charge of a regt. consequent on the illness in quarters of the surg., the same principle is to be followed which guides the grant of command allowance to a second in command who may fall into the command of a corps under similar circumstances; that is, the asst. surgeon would only commence to draw the temporary allowance after the expiration of one month from the date on which the surgeon was confined to his quarters through sickness."

STAFF CORPS PAY.

The following letter from the military dept., to the Comptroller of Military Accounts, No. 348, of Dec. 15, is published for general information:—

"I am directed, in reply to your letter No. 899c, dated Dec. 8 last, to acquaint you that officers entering the staff corps from Sept. 12 last, who are in receipt of staff salary in addition to pay and allowances, will, till they are promoted, or unless they are promoted by admission to the staff corps, or receive departmental promotion carrying with it higher staff salary, draw the aggregate allowances they have hitherto done; and should the higher departmental pay, combined with staff corps rates of pay not amount to as much as the full batta rates of pay and the lower staff salary, the officer so promoted may continue to draw his former aggregate salary."

Salaries of Medical Officers in India.

Fort William, April 3.—No. 370.—In continuation of G.G.O. No. 1,060, of Dec. 23, 1864, and in accordance with instructions received from the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India, H.E. the Governor general in Council is pleased to lay down the following revised scale of consolidated salaries for officers of her Majesty's Indian medical service:

2. The number of medical officers allowed for each presidency town, with its immediate suburbs, and the allotment of duties amongst them, are based on the recommendations of the Commission appointed to take this subject into consideration; but it will be open to the local Governments to modify the proposed allotment of duties, in such manner as from time to time may seem most desirable, with reference to the convenience of the service, provided the prescribed number of officers and the aggregate of salaries is not exceeded.

3. The appointments of presidency surgeons in Calcutta will eventually cease to exist, the duties being performed by the several medical officers holding appointments at the presidency who are not debarred from private practice. These officers will be required to attend those servants of Government entitled to gratuitous aid who may seek their services, and also to serve in rotation as members of standing and other medical committees.

4. Present incumbents of these or other appointments which it is proposed to abolish or absorb, will not necessarily be affected at present, and during the gradual introduction of the new arrangements, the cases of any medical officers who are unable to take up the whole of the duties assigned to them, will be individually and specially considered.

5. Officers holding the following appointments are debarred private practice:—Principals of medical colleges, principal medical storekeepers, resident medical officers in colleges and hospitals, secretaries and statistical officers to inspectors-general, secretaries sanitary commissioners, examiners medical accounts. This rule will not, however, be enforced in the case of any present incumbents who may have received authoritative permission to engage in such practice.

6. Medical officers holding appointments at the presidency, and not provided with public quarters, will be granted presidency house rent according to relative rank, and on the scale granted to officers of the staff corps holding appointments at the presidency towns. The grant of presidency house rent is limited, however, to salaries not exceeding Rs. 1,400 per mensem.

7. The allotment of civil stations and residency charges to their respective classes will be notified hereafter.

8. In order to render this scale of Indian medical salaries more complete, the salaries of the administrative appointments and regimental charges already provided for in G.G.O. No. 1,060 of 1864 and No. 901 of 1866, have been included.

9. Officers of the Indian medical service will be on the same footing as military staff officers as regards pay and allowances to be drawn while absent on leave—the pay of their rank as laid down in para. 29 of G.G.O. No. 1,060, of Dec. 23, 1864, being in all cases taken as the basis of the calculation of the moiety due to the absentee and to the officer officiating—present incumbents being allowed the privilege of receiving, during such absence, either the allowance thus due to them under the military regulations under the revised scale of regimental pay and staff salary, or that to which they would have been entitled under the old scale both of pay and staff allowances.

10. The scale of salaries now sanctioned will be brought into operation from the 18th of November, 1866, the date of the receipt of the instructions of the Right Hon. the Secretary of State, and be made to apply in all cases where there is no reduction in the present aggregate salary.

11. Present incumbents, whether drawing the old regimental rate of pay with, or the new regimental rate of pay without, staff salary, will have the option of retaining such rates, if more beneficial than those now ordered, except in cases where the salaries have been specially fixed, pending the revision now brought into effect.

HOME.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MAY 13.

INDIAN MEDICAL RETIRING FUNDS.

Mr. BAZLEY asked the Secretary of State for India what compensation the Government intended offering to the Indian Medical Retiring Funds for the losses now incurred by those institutions through the non-accession of fresh subscribers, resulting from orders passed by the home Government in 1858; and inquired what compensation was to be offered to the medical officers of the late Honourable East India Company's Service for the loss of the several valuable administrative medical appointments which had been recently transferred to medical officers of her Majesty's British army serving in India, as all the rights and privileges of the medical officers of the Indian army were secured to them by a Parliamentary guarantee when their services were transferred to the Crown.

Sir S. NORTHCOTE begged to state that the Government had offered, conditionally on the transfer of the medical funds to them, that they would guarantee to the present incumbents the pensions and allowances to which they would be entitled under the regulations now in force. But the officers and managers of the Medical Fund had been informed that if they would not agree to this transfer they might, if they pleased, retain the management of the fund in their own hands, and in that case the question would be, what compensation would be payable by the Government? The result was that after the communication made in August last the managers of the Bengal Fund agreed to the terms proposed by the Government, and they had transferred the funds in their hands at that time. With regard to Madras and Bombay the managers had not chosen to avail themselves of the offer, but had preferred to retain the management in their own hands. In regard to the second question of the hon. gentleman, those administrative medical appointments referred to were in the nature of staff appointments, and they had been reduced in number in consequence of the reduction of the force belonging to the Indian Government; but in this, as well as in other respects, the medical service had been differently treated in all the arrangements made in the reorganisation of the army. Their promotions and pensions had been increased, and all had been done in regard to the staff appointments to make the change acceptable.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MAY 14.

THE ABYSSINIAN CAPTIVES.

Mr. WYLD asked the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs whether it was true that the King of Abyssinia had refused to comply with the Queen's request that he should liberate the captives; whether, in consequence, the English engineers who were engaged to enter the King's service had returned or are about to return to England; and whether any and what further steps were being taken by the Government to obtain the release of Mr. Rassam, Consul Cameron, and the other captives.

Lord STANLEY said, in answer to the first question, he could not state that the King had refused to liberate the prisoners, because up to the present time there was no communication from him on the subject. But they had reason to know from a letter which had been received some time ago that the prisoners were still detained. In answer to the second question, Colonel Merryweather, in a letter dated the 4th March, suggested that in view of the delay which would occur, it would be better if the engineers returned, and the Government had advised their doing so, as, under the circumstances, it was not safe for them to proceed into the interior. In reply to the third question he might state that on the 16th April he had written to the King of Abyssinia expressing his regret at the non-liberation of the prisoners, and saying that unless that event took place immediately the presents which had been prepared and sent out would not be delivered.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The biddings for Government bills on India took place on Wednesday, the 15th inst., at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were: to Calcutta, 15,75,000 rupees; to Madras, 35,000 rupees; and to Bombay, 8,00,000 rupees. The minimum price was fixed as before—viz., at 1s. 11½d. on all the presidencies. Tenders on Calcutta and Madras at and above the minimum will receive in full; those on Bombay at the minimum, about 34 per cent.; and those above in full. These results show no material alteration, as compared with those noticed on the last occasion.

DISCONTINUANCE OF EXTRA MAILS TO BOMBAY.—The Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company having given notice of their intention to withdraw the extra steam vessels which have been appointed experimentally to sail from Suez to Bombay simultaneously with the packets which leave Suez about the 5th and 20th of each month for Madras and Calcutta, the last extra mail from London for Bombay will be forwarded from London on the 20th May, via Southampton, and on the 27th May, via Marseilles; and thenceforward, and until further notice, correspondence addressed to the East Indies will be despatched as it was previous to the 20th January last.

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY INDIA AND CHINA MAILS.—(SOUTHAMPTON, May 19.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Tanjore, Captain Brooks, with the heavy portion of the above mails, arrived this morning. She brings 182 passengers, 19 packages specie, £5,750, and a general cargo, including 802 bales raw silk, value £75,000, also a number of rare birds from the Punjab, for the Acclimatization Society, consisting of partridges, ducks, and specimens of the heron tribe. Some of the partridges have scarlet bills, and are beautifully marked. Some red pheasants died on the passage. About 100 birds died in the Bay of Bengal and in the Red Sea. The value of the entire collection shipped at Calcutta was about £500. Most of the birds before they died went blind. Across the Bay of Biscay and up the Channel the Tanjore experienced strong south-easterly winds and fine weather.

DEPARTURE OF THE CALCUTTA AND CHINA MAILS.—(SOUTHAMPTON, May 20.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Syria, Captain Christian, sailed hence to-day, with mails for Gibraltar, the Mediterranean, Egypt, Aden, Ceylon, India, China, and Australia. She took out fifty-seven passengers, and a full cargo of general merchandise, including bar silver, £1,365; gold coin, £1,308; silver coin, 6s. 7d.; silver three-penny pieces, £125; sovereigns, £525; and gold and silver thread, watches, jewellery, &c., £5,147. 15s.

THE CHINA TEA RACE.—The latest advices from China are to the effect that six ships have entered for the race to England, viz., the Ariel, Serica, Taiting, Taeping, Sir Launcelot, and Black Prince. Although the Ariel won the run home last year by a neck, the shippers of the new season's teas this year have to a certain extent transferred their favours to the Black Prince as the winner, but still retain the last ship of last year's race as a favourite for a place.

CAPTAIN FIELD, one of the oldest commanders in the Peninsular and Oriental Company's service, died on Friday last at Southampton, after a long illness. Out of respect to his memory the whole of the shipping in the docks and river lowered flags half-mast.

THE MYSORE RAJ.—A Parliamentary Paper, just issued contains a memorial from the Maharajah of Mysore, dated July 4, 1866, reiterating his claim to be reinstated in the government of that State, and the reply of Sir Stafford Northcote, formally announcing the decision of the Government upon the case. The purport of this decision was, as our readers are aware, communicated to the House of Commons, on February 23, by Lord Cranborne, but the task of making it known to the Indian Government appears to have been left to his successor. The despatch is dated April 16, 1867. After citing the circumstances of the case and announcing the Government policy, Sir Stafford says:—It is, therefore, the intention of her Majesty that the young prince should have the advantage of an education suitable to his rank and position, and calculated to prepare him for the duties of administration; and I have to desire you to propose to the Maharajah that he should receive this education under the superintendence of your Government. I have to request that you will communicate with me as to the mode in which this can best be effected without separating the young prince more than is necessary from those over whom he may hereafter be called on to rule. If, at the demise of his Highness, the young prince should not have attained the age which you, upon consideration, may fix for his majority, the territory shall continue to be governed in his name upon the same principles, and under the same regulations, as at the present time. Upon his reaching that age, or at an earlier period, if you should think it desirable, it will be the duty of the British Government, before confiding to him the administration of the whole, or any portion of the State, to enter into an arrangement with him for the purpose of adequately providing for the maintenance of a system of Government well adapted to the wants and interests of the people. As regards the rights and interests of the British Government, it is sufficient now to point out that, as the cost of supporting troops has largely increased since the date of the subsidiary treaty of 1799, it will obviously be necessary that the terms of that treaty should be revised, and some addition made to the subsidy. The great increase which has taken place in the resources of Mysore since 1799, and more especially since the assumption of the Government by Lord W. Bentinck, will prevent such addition being felt as an undue burden. The precise terms of the revision may be left to be settled when the young prince is put in possession of the administration.

THE EAST INDIA STATION.—It is now tolerably certain that Captain Leopold Heath, C.B., will succeed Commodore C. F. Hillyar, on the promotion of the latter to flag rank on the East India station. Captain Heath is deficient in sea time, and will, therefore, willingly resign the desirable and lucrative post of vice-president of the ordnance select committee in order to secure so desirable an object. It is rumoured that Captain Sir W. S. Wiseman, who made room for Captain Heath four years ago, at the request of the then Board of Admiralty, for the purpose of proceeding to New Zealand, where his presence, from the fact of his having acted in concert with Sir George Grey previously at the Cape of Good Hope, was calculated to produce beneficial effects, will again resume his old office. The appointment would, we believe, be popular both within and without doors, as the naval element will not be sufficiently represented in the committee on the retirement of Captain Heath.—Army and Navy Gazette.

DEATH OF AN ORIENTALIST.—M. Reinaud, member of the Institute of France, Conservator of MSS. in the Imperial Library, and Professor of Arabic in the School of Living Oriental Languages (Institute), died lately at Paris.

ARRIVAL OF TROOPS FROM INDIA.—The hired troop ship Windsor Castle has arrived at Spithead from Kurrachee with the following officers from H.M.'s regiments in India:—Major Walker, R.A., 19th Brigade (in command of troops on board); Lieut. Queen and Mrs. Queen, 79th Highlanders; Lieut. Skinner, 19th Regiment; Lieut. Drew, 7th Hussars; Assistant-surgeon, Baxter, 93rd Highlanders (in medical charge of the troops); Captain W. Strickland, and Mrs. W. Strickland, and five children, Mr. Strickland and Master Foster.

CHARTERED MERCANTILE BANK OF INDIA, LONDON, AND CHINA.—At the annual meeting of shareholders of the Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London, and China, held on Tuesday, the report was adopted. The chairman, in his opening remarks, stated that £20,000 more had been set aside for losses than the board expected would be ultimately sustained.

FEVER AT MAURITIUS.—By letters received from Mauritius, dated April 17, we learn that the fever has been raging dreadfully, carrying off victims by hundreds. The last returns show that since the 10th of March, when the fever first broke out, no less than 13,564 persons have perished by it.

THE CARRIAGE OF TROOPS AND MAILS BY THE E.I.R. COMPANY.—Difference of opinion, we hear, exists between the Government and the East Indian Railway in reference to the carriage of the mails and troops. Government being of opinion that the railway company is bound, according to their contract, to carry mails and troops free of charge, of course the railway people desire that all should be paid for, while the rule is to pay only in case of special trains. His Excellency declines to abrogate the existing rule.

CHLORODYNE.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a certain cure in Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colics, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—"So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases." From A. Montgomery, Esq., late Inspector of Hospitals, Bombay—"Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I fairly owe my restoration to health after eighteen months' severe suffering, and when all other remedies had failed."

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne; that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—See the Times, July 13, 1864.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, Dec. 31, 1864.

DR. LOWE, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec., 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered the patient recovered.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the best and most certain remedy in Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Consumption, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is publicly acknowledged by the most eminent Physicians of London to be the most effectual remedy every discovered. To prevent fraud, the Government have authorised a Stamp, with the words Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne engraved thereon, without which none can be genuine. Sole Manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London. The immense demand enables the proprietors to reduce the price; it is now sold in bottles, 1s. 1d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d. and 11s.

TEXTILE MANUFACTURES and COSTUMES of the PEOPLE of INDIA

BY J. FORBES WATSON, M.A., M.D., F.R.A.S.,

Reporter on the Products of India.

Imperial 4to, morocco back, cloth, with numerous Coloured Photographs. £3. 5s.

This work—by affording a Key to the Fashions of the People, and to the Cotton, Silk, and Wool Textiles in actual use in India—is of special interest to Manufacturers, Merchants, and Agents; as also to the student and lover of ornamental art.

"If the manufacturer studies this book carefully he may add thousands a year to his profits, and there are not five books in the world of which that could be said. Altogether this book is thoroughly creditable to Dr. Forbes Watson's industry and acumen, and to the liberality of the India-office."—Spectator, Jan. 5, 1867.

"The conception of this splendid work reflects the highest credit upon the wisdom of the department to which we are indebted for its publication; and the manner in which it has been executed by its author, Dr. J. Forbes Watson, is conclusive evidence of his being the right man in the right place. No one can fully appreciate the value of this work without seeing it, because neither analysis nor extracts can give any idea of the immense mass of minute facts which it contains and the admirable manner in which they are grouped and made subservient to the practical requirements of the manufacturer and the merchant, and the cravings of the student of ornamental art. The illustrations are as magnificent as they are appropriate. In fact, as mere productions of beauty and taste, they give the work the air of a book of art luxury, and we have no doubt that from this feature it will find many admirers and purchasers beyond the ranks of trade and commerce. We ought to state that the Secretary of State for India is not only deserving the highest praise for having had this work prepared and distributed, but likewise for having allowed a publisher to use the type and photographic plates so as to be able to produce a certain number of copies for sale. In no other way could copies of this unique and costly volume have been offered to the public at a reasonable price."—Morning Post, Jan. 3, 1867.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Calcutta mail brings us our usual files of papers, from Calcutta to the 28th of April, Madras to the 27th of April, and Bombay to the 3rd of May.

At Calcutta, on the 23rd of April, Mr. William Grey took the oaths of office as Lieutenant-governor of Bengal under the usual salute. A Gazette of India Extraordinary publishes the customary notice that his Excellency the Governor-general in Council has been pleased to direct, as a mark of respect due to the character and services of Sir Cecil Beadon, that all the honours and distinctions to which he is now entitled as Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal shall be continued to him until the period of his embarkation for Europe. In the same Gazette notice is given that the Council would henceforth assemble at Simla, and that Mr. George Campbell's services are placed at the disposal of the foreign department, at the expiration of the special duty on which he is at present engaged at the Presidency.

Mr. H. L. Dampier, as already stated, is to fill the post of Secretary to the new Government of Bengal. Captain H. H. Stansfield, formerly Adjutant of the Calcutta Volunteer Rifles, will act as his Honour's Private Secretary, and Lieutenant Wilson, R.A., as Aide-de-Camp. Almost the first appearance in public of the new Lieutenant-Governor was at a meeting of the General Committee of the Famine Relief Fund, which finds itself badly off for money, the subscriptions received being only about one-third of the sum required. It is said that Mr. Grey has given up for the present his projected visit to Orissa, and it was expected that he would soon depart in the opposite direction—that is to Darjeeling.

On the 24th the Viceroy, and suite left Calcutta for Simla. The express of the same day, the Friend of India tells us, conveyed to the Secretary of State the Report of the Famine Commission, and the decision of the Governor-general in Council on the questions, administrative and personal, which it has raised. The Council has held almost daily meetings on the subject of late. The Friend adds:—"We cannot better describe the Report than as the long and elaborate charge of Mr. Justice Campbell and his two colleagues to a jury consisting of the Government of India, Secretary of State and Parliament. Dates and facts are mercilessly arrayed with crushing force, and very severe deductions are drawn against the Board of Revenue and Inspector General of Police. But the conclusion in the case of the Lieutenant-Governor is left to Government, which has not passed sentence without hearing the further defence of the accused, the portion referring to Sir Cecil Beadon having been sent to him for his reply."

The Viceroy's progress to the Hills was to be of a private character, without any of the receptions or levees which were generally held in former years, and to which the residents of Delhi, Allahabad, and other halting-places, who do not see a real live viceroy nor even a lieutenant-governor every day, are accustomed to look forward as a social and political right. His Excellency Sir William Mansfield preceded the Viceroy to Simla, as also did the heads of departments.

It has been already noticed that the aspect of affairs in Burmah was not satisfactory, and that the king's behaviour was likely to compromise him with the British Government. His Majesty, says the Madras Times, "is uncommonly gracious towards the Resident, Captain Sladen, whom he has decorated with one of his tinsel orders, and it is reported that he feels inclined to abolish some of his obnoxious monopolies, but there is a cloud in the sky nevertheless; for a disagreeably truthful letter from the Viceroy, expressing great dissatisfaction at the course pursued by him when Colonel Phayre visited Mandalay and brought back an unsigned treaty, is said to have been received and to have remained unanswered, on one pretext or another which cannot be accepted as a sufficient excuse."

It is reported also from Burmah that an energetic protest against Mr. Massey's enhanced duty on the export of grain has been entered by the mercantile community of Rangoon. They urge that the tax on that staple has been increased six-fold within six years, and that the additional burthen will reach them more heavily than other parts of her Majesty's Eastern dominions. "This last position (says the Madras Times) may or may not be true, but there can be no doubt that an export duty on grain or any other staple article produced by a country is a violation of the laws of political economy which only extreme circumstances can justify, and that extremity has not been arrived at, when less objectionable modes of raising money are at the disposal of Government."

A sad piece of news has been received from the Central Provinces of the death of Lieutenant John Keith, R.A., who has been killed by a tiger whilst out shooting.

The court-martial upon Captain Cunningham has been adjourned sine die, in consequence of the indisposition of that officer.

The following despatch from Sir Stafford Northcote closes the Oude Talookdar question:—"I learn with much pleasure that a question so long agitated has now been settled in a manner which appears to be in every respect satisfactory alike to your Excellency's Government and to the Talookdars. I have been much gratified at observing the high terms of commendation in which you speak of the conduct of the officers at the head of the Administration in Oude, and of the Talookdars themselves, through whose joint instrumentality this arrangement has been concluded, and I trust that the result of the measure will be such as to secure the continuance of confidence and good will among all classes of the agricultural community in that important province."

Dr. H. Cayley, Assistant Surgeon in Howrah, has been appointed Agent at Leh, the capital of the Cashmere Chief's district of Ladak. The Friend of India says:—"He has a fine career before him, scientific and political. With Khoten in front, our own Lahoulee traders behind, and theascalities of the agents of the Maharajah of Cashmere around him, he will have enough to do. It may be his to open up Central Asia to our traders, and to conciliate the petty potentates who expect speedy annihilation from Russia. His duties will be chiefly commercial, but with tact he may do more than a political agent with plenary powers. On his success will depend the extension of a system of commercial agencies, which ought to exist at Bhootan, Sikkim, Nepaul, and on the frontier of Afghanistan and Beloochistan."

In Afghanistan the Ameer Shere Ali still continues to intrigue against his brother Afzul Khan, who was some time ago formally recognised by the Government. Shere Ali, it is said, has been soliciting the assistance of Persia, but the Shah refused to listen to his proposals, though he intimated that the Ameer would be welcome as a visitor at the Court of Teheran.

"The season," says the Delhi Gazette, "seems altogether disjointed, especially along the Himalayan range. We some time ago heard of a deep fall of snow at Murree, but felt almost inclined to doubt the information, but we have now undoubted authority for stating that the higher portions of the Dalhousie Sanitarium were covered with snow to a depth of two feet on the 17th of April, while a correspondent from Umritsaur states that ten days' consecutive rain had fallen at Dhurmsala."

The next arrival from India will be the Bombay Mail, which is due in London on the 5th June.

The mutiny at "Great" turns out to be a mare's nest. Sir Stafford Northcote prefaced his reply to Lord William Hay on Friday by stating that he had received within the last half-hour from India, with reference to a report which had appeared in the newspapers a day or two ago, a telegram from Bombay which contradicted the report of a mutiny having broken out in India. It stated that the report had arisen from a letter written by an insane person. The telegram published next morning added that there had been a great panic at Meerut in consequence of the report, and that the women and children of the station had been sent for safety to Delhi.

THE MYSORE CASE IN PARLIAMENT.

THE debate in the House of Commons on Friday upon the case of the Maharajah of Mysore, drew from the present and the late Secretary for India some avowals which will do a great deal of good. India is naturally jealous of the influence of party feeling in England upon the Government of the country; and a disturbance of the settlement of Mysore becoming a consequence of a disagreement of the Cabinet upon the Reform Bill, would undoubtedly be a fair ground for scandal. It is much to be regretted that Lord Cranborne was unable to make a final disposal of the question before leaving office; but the completion of the task having devolved upon his successor, it is fortunate that an opportunity has been afforded of vindicating the consistency of the course pursued. There is a growing feeling in some quarters that the Government of India ought to be independent of changes in the Government at home; and as such a result could not be effected without making the administration of the country independent of Parliament and public opinion, there is not the smallest chance of its coming to pass. It is well, therefore, that as little occasion as possible should be given for a disturbance of men's minds upon the point.

The main objects of Lord William Hay, in the able speech in which he introduced the subject, were to call attention to the omission from the India-office despatch of an interpretation of the Partition Treaty, of a decision upon the claims of the Nizam, and of provision for the future mode in which the government of the country is to be conducted. These questions were not answered quite explicitly by the Secretary of State, even when pressed upon the subject; but the explanations which he made were satisfactory, in so far as they indicated the spirit of the Government policy, and as showing that any difference in the conclusions arrived at by Lord Cranborne and Sir Stafford Northcote, relate only to the grounds upon which action should be taken, and not upon the nature of the action itself. There seems no reason to doubt that, whatever obscurity may remain in the wording of the Subsidiary Treaty in reference to the question between a dynastic and a personal application, the intention of the framers was to convey the latter effect alone, for which purpose the words "his heirs for ever" were struck out of the document. This is shown by one of the original drafts still existing, which has been seen by Lord William Hay; and although it is true that the other words relied upon by the claimants to permanency still remain—i.e., "so long as the sun and moon shall endure"—there is no ground for considering them otherwise than as a form of Oriental phraseology, no more binding in law than the words "your obedient servant" at the end of a letter. Such has been the view of the treaty always taken by the Government of India, both home and local, since it first found a place among official documents. Even Lord Canning, who valued accuracy almost beyond its worth, and was sometimes needlessly nice upon verbal distinctions, came to the same conclusion upon the wording of the treaty, which, as an anti-annexationist, he would rather, if possible, have interpreted in favour of the Maharajah. That Lord Cranborne should be of a similar opinion was natural enough; and, indeed, Sir Stafford Northcote is the first person in the highest authority who has ever expressed any doubts upon the point. His position, as he said, was a difficult one. Upon assuming office he found that Lord Cranborne had committed the Government to a policy which was not approved by a large majority of the Council, while those who did approve of it disagreed with him as to the preliminary question. It appears, indeed, from what fell from Sir Stafford upon the point, that while the majority of the Council inclined towards a policy of annexation, they were not all sure that we are in a position to adopt that policy—one of their doubts having reference probably to the claims of the Nizam. Sir Stafford himself, after a careful examination of the documents, has not been able to satisfy himself that the wording of the treaty showed it to be only a personal one. He has determined, therefore, to be guided by the spirit of the arrangement entered into originally by Lord Wellesley, and by the broad light of a general policy, rather than follow out any course which might require the support of special pleading as to the construction placed upon words. That he holds these views upon the subject sufficiently accounts for his avoidance of the legal argument upon the question. With regard to the claims of the Nizam, he does not express a decided opinion; but his ideas upon the subject are indicated by the remark which he made in answer to Lord William Hay, that the treaty with the ruler of Hyderabad had a certain bearing on all the proceedings that have taken place, and that we ought not to assume that the fact of the arrangement with the Maharajah of Mysore being a personal one gives us an exclusive right to the inheritance of his dominions. Sir Stafford has no doubt, however, that the right of declaring forfeiture—of stepping in and setting aside an incapable prince—is established under the subsidiary treaty; but the exercise of this right he considers to be quite distinct from the question of annexation. The latter policy he evidently believes to be contrary to the spirit of Lord Wellesley's; and nothing could be more just than his remark upon the mistrust excited by a course of action which makes our interference for the good of the people a stepping-stone to the acquisition of the State for ourselves. With regard to the future Government of this country, "his noble friend (Lord Cranborne) had left this question open till the child who was adopted should attain the age of 18 or 20—that was for the next 14 or 15 years. It seemed to him (Sir Stafford Northcote) that this policy was impracticable and mischievous. What were they to do during these 14 or 15 years? Everything would be kept in uncertainty. The Government was at present carried on in the name of the present Maharajah, and at his death they must declare in whose name it was to be carried on. On this point he had received a strong opinion from Mr. Bowring, the present resident at Mysore, who said, 'What will be my position in such an event? The people will ask me what is to be done. I can only tell them to wait and see; and the effect produced on their minds will be—that means we are waiting till the proper time comes for annexation.' Confidence would thus be destroyed, and the position of the young prince would be uncertain; he would imbibe feelings of dissatisfaction and discontent; and he would be brought up not as an expectant king but as a pretender. But more than that, they would be losing most valuable and precious time. They ought to spend the fourteen years not only in the careful education of the young prince, but in devising such regulations for his administration when he came to the throne as would ensure proper and good government."

It appeared to be the impression of some of the speakers on Friday that the policy of Sir Stafford Northcote in this matter is inconsistent with that of his predecessor. But Lord Cranborne silenced any cavils upon this head by expressing his cordial approval, not only of what Sir Stafford said, but of what he was doing. For the late Indian Secretary, although taking the view of the treaty which has been generally adopted by our statesmen, in considering that it gives us the right to annex the territory, is no more disposed than is his successor to put that right into execution. On the contrary, he desires the maintenance a native Government, and warned the House against giving way to the belief that new systems upon European models, however superior in our eyes, are uniformly acceptable to the inhabitants of native States in place of their own institutions. It is satisfactory to find that not only is the policy adopted one likely to satisfy the people of the country, but that there is no chance of the present settlement being disturbed by any practical difference of opinion between the present Secretary for India and his predecessor—and this fact Lord William Hay has done good service in bringing to light.

THE REPORTED MUTINY IN INDIA.

BOMBAY, May 22 (6.19 P.M.).

A telegram from Agra states that the reported mutiny of native troops at Meerut is not true. The report was caused by the receipt of a letter by the collector stating that an outbreak would happen. On Sunday evening all the women and children were sent to Delhi, causing a great panic. The writer of the letter, who was said to be insane, had arrived at Meerut.

GOVERNMENT IN NEED OF PECUNIARY ASSISTANCE.—In reply to the memorial of the merchants and shippers of Rangoon, Moulmein, and other adjacent places in British Burmah, against the additional duty imposed upon export of grain, which memorial was supported by the Chief Commissioner, the Governor-general in Council has declined to accede to the prayer of the memorialists on the ground that the money market is very dull, and that the Government stands very much in need of pecuniary assistance.—Indian Daily News and Bengal Hurkaru, April 18.

BENGAL.

ANOTHER CHANCE FOR BENGAL.

Bengal has one chance more. For the fourth time a secretary and member of Council is entrusted with the government of the largest, wealthiest, and most populous province in Asia, including the capital of India. Mr. Grey owes his appointment to the accident of the office falling vacant at the end of April, instead of a few months later, when Parliament will have pronounced sentence on the system and the men who have, in Orissa and Assam, in the Board of Revenue and the seat of the Lieutenant-governor, so utterly broken down. Had England possessed an ordinarily strong Ministry, and been less occupied with internal Reform, there can be little doubt that it would have been the will, as it is certainly the duty, of the Secretary of State to sanction only a temporary arrangement until the pleasure of Parliament is known. It would have been well for Bengal had Mr. Grey been appointed to officiate only until the end of the year. We say this not because he is not likely to make a good and successful ruler—we believe he will surpass his three predecessors. But when the late Lieutenant Governor leaves office with the public declaration that Bengal has never had a government adequate to its wants, and in saying that honestly expresses the universal opinion of all men, from the Viceroy to the schoolboy, it is playing with the progress of the country, it is sacrificing the weal of millions of Asiatics and hundreds of Englishmen, to patronage, or service cliquerie, or English indifference to India, to make any permanent appointment till the administration has been reorganised and radically reformed. As it is, the duty of suggesting or of carrying out reforms will fall to Mr. Grey. He is fortunate in enjoying opportunities denied to all other administrators, and the fact that he succeeds men whose administration has been a failure will give full value to any good he may do. These reforms are twofold, in territory and in system. To carry them out Mr. Grey possesses two qualifications of consistent uprightness and familiarity in Council, with the higher details of Government.

First of all, then, Bengal is too large. The province contains no less than eleven commissionerships, embracing fifty-six districts with a population of forty millions. In this vast and varied jurisdiction is the capital—a city of a million of people, and with a trade of forty millions sterling. Not only are the imperial buildings and thirty thousand Europeans and Indo-Europeans of Calcutta and Howrah subject to the Lieutenant-governor, but in his province are all the settlers and English capitalists in India, except the coffee planters of Mysore and Wynad, and the tea-planters of the North-Western Himalayas. To him falls the supervision of the largest and most important railway communications in Asia. Except in the one department of political relations on the frontier, the management of feudatories and the care of military operations, the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal without a council rules interests equal in importance to those of all the rest of India combined. The mere statement of this fact of magnitude, the mere figures of forty millions of people and 245,120 square miles, are sufficient to justify immediate action on the part of the Indian and Home Governments. There must, on territorial grounds alone, be disintegration. And nature points out clearly how that should proceed, while the experience of Lord Canning points us plainly to the agency by which it may be successfully effected. The valley of the Burhampooter, embracing the Assam, the Cooch Behar, part of the Dacca, and the hilly portion of the Chittagong divisions, should be made a chief commissionership. The Valley of the Mahanuddy, or all Orissa, Sumbulpore, and Chota Nagpore, must be made another chief commissionership. The suggestion which we have more than once made, of adding Orissa to the Central Provinces, is hardly defensible. Nagpore is separated from Cuttack by half the breadth of India; the Mahrattas have nothing in common with the Ooryas, and these provinces have already an outlet to the sea by the Godavary. Ultimately they will be absorbed in Bombay, as Oudh will be in the North-Western Provinces. The solitary argument in favour of annexing Orissa to Nagpore is that the time cannot be far distant when a railway will be made parallel with the Mahanuddy valley from Calcutta to Nagpore as the crow flies. But that will not be begun for a decade, and the fate of Orissa is a question of the hour. We shall then have the following results:—

Chief Commissionership of North-East Bengal.

	Square Miles.
Sylhet and Cachar	9,535
Cooch Behar Division	18,062
Chittagong Hills	5,917

69,440

Chief Commissionership of South Bengal.

	Square Miles.
Cuttack... ..	3,062
Balasore	1,876
Pooree	2,698
Tributary Mehals	16,068
Chota Nagpore	42,500
Sumbulpore	2,664

68,868

Population 5,000,000

This would still leave Bengal with as large a population as that of the North-Western Provinces, and as large an area as that of Madras. It would still be as big as France.

We feel assured that a sense of what is due to himself, as well as to the empire, will lead Mr. Gray to recommend some such plans as we have suggested for enabling him to do his duty conscientiously. But, if not, we are content sadly to wait till another series of calamities force the supreme authorities to do justice to Assam, Orissa, and Chota Nagpore.

"WHY I BECAME A PAUPER."

Under this heading a letter in the Delhi Gazette makes a curious revelation:—

"I was a Messman attached to the 3rd Rifle Brigade when Lord Canning visited Agra. A supper for his lordship was proposed by the Rana of Dholpore, and Lieutenant Buckley earnestly requested me to take the whole management in my hands. Knowing well that there would be a great difficulty in realising the money I was quite unwilling to accept the offer, but the Lieutenant urged on me to accept the undertaking, as he assured me, to be a very profitable one. He further promised to be responsible for all payment. The supper was to come at Taj, and I, two months before the Viceroy's arrival, set to work. Nothing was advanced to me, and I had to provide and prepare everything out of my own pocket. After all the supper came on with great eclat, and everybody seemed satisfied. I presented my bill, which amounted to three thousand four hundred and forty-nine rupees and fourteen annas, but lo! to my utter astonishment nobody took an interest in it, and the bill was considered to be a false one, and it was thought proper to pay me seven hundred and fourteen annas only! Such was my reward for all my endless troubles and expense. Three years after this sad loss I was requested by Messrs. Harvey and Brown to establish a mess at Buttesur during the fair there, but the burnt child dreads the fire. I positively refused the perilous undertaking, under the plea that my hotel work at Agra would be totally neglected. The above mentioned gentlemen then proposed that they would willingly manage and superintend everything at Buttesur if I sent the provision and men only. I did not like to offend my 'Hakims' and accepted their request. But what was the result? Why, worse than I ever dreamt. I never got a farthing up to this day. Mr. Pollock is well aware of this affair.

"Soon after this Mr. Pollock wished me to take charge of the club, but I kept myself aloof, which might have caused some annoyance to Mr. P.

"Major Ward afterwards requested me take the management of the Metcalfe Testimonial into my hands, which I also refused; but the Major being one of my greatest patrons I offered my services as far as general superintendence and physical labour was concerned.

"The last kick a carcass received was in February last. Just before opening the Agra Exhibition, Mr. Pollock sent for me and requested me to open refreshment rooms on the Exhibition grounds. I was well aware of the consequences of such an enterprise, and was therefore quite unwilling to accept the offer. But Mr. Pollock repeatedly assured me that I will never be a loser, and that he will himself look after my interest, and that I shall not only make a good profit but get a handsome reward from the committee. He said he is well aware of the losses I have sustained in serving out the Viceregal supper and sending out provisions at Buttesur fair. These promises stimulated me to try my ruined fortune once again. I opened the business from the 21st January, and all went on well till the 4th of February. On that unlucky day I witnessed a scene which I never dreamt before. From twelve noon the "Loot" commenced and continued till three P.M., when Mr. Pollock most kindly came forward for assistance. Every one helped himself, and took whatever wine and food he chose. On Mr. Pollock's arrival he requested Messrs. Moore and Thomas to restore order and look after my shop. These gentlemen and Lieutenant Logan soon restored the peace, and for full three or four hours they superintended the business themselves. I am highly thankful to them; had they not come forward there would have been an end to my shop that very evening. Those who 'looted' my property have never thought of paying me anything yet. I do not remember receiving any payment on that day excepting from the Commissioner, Mr. Drummond, and the officer in charge of the Commissariat Department. In submitting my bill to the committee I have not charged them for the large quantity of wine, spirits, food, &c., plundered on the 4th February last, but still my bill has been returned as perhaps an exaggerated one, and a sum has been offered to me which on no account is adequate to the expense I have incurred. On my complaining bitterly Messrs. Moore and Robinson have taken pity on me, and are carefully looking over my accounts, and I have every hope of getting a redress from their hands. I also as yet implicitly depend on Mr. Pollock's words and promises, and earnestly hope that he will still take my grievances into his favourable consideration.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE VICEROY'S REBUKE TO THE KING OF BURMAH.—On the 21st March the Viceroy's letter of rebuke to the King of Burmah was delivered in state by our agent, Captain Sladen, after his Majesty had made several endeavours to obtain a copy, or a knowledge of its contents, privately. Two Woundouks and a large body of officials waited on Captain Sladen in the morning. An imposing procession then set out. The correspondent of the Rangoon Times describes the scene. The first elephant conveyed the letter with four golden umbrellas and the British flag over it, followed by Captain Sladen in his court uniform on another elephant, and attended by a body of Kallas and Burmans. Next came two Woundouks with their retinues and followers and several officials on elephants. The streets were lined with soldiers, and there was music of all descriptions. The letter was taken from a box covered with the British flag and placed on a gold stand resting on a magnificent carpet. The ministers looked very uneasy, and were foiled in their efforts to prevent Captain Sladen from delivering the letter to the King in person. After turning back he was permitted to place the document in the King's hands and it was read out. Warning the King of the ill effects of bad faith to allies, the letter declared that the only chance of effectually securing peace and retaining his dominions against internal commotion and annexations by the British Government was to appease his domestic enemies by a just system of government, and to unite together the interests of the Burmese with the British by commercial and political treaties and hold the ties sacred. The King's Armenian Chamberlain, Mr. Camaratta, has addressed a silly letter to the Rangoon papers, praising his Majesty, promising a new tariff, and expressing his Majesty's anxiety to continue his friendship with the English.

AFFRAY BETWEEN SOME SOLDIERS OF THE 5TH LANCERS AND NATIVES.—During the past few days we have been startled by a report from more quarters than one to the effect that some European soldiers proceeded from cantonments to a village some five or six miles distant; got intoxicated and had a regular pitched battle with the villagers. One soldier was killed on the spot; a second was brought back only to die in hospital, and two companies of Europeans had been sent to invest the village pending a proper investigation into the case. This version is generally current among natives in the city. That portion of the report which relates to the despatch of two companies of Europeans to invest the village, pending investigation, of course bore with it its own contradiction; yet, as all rumours, however wild, have some latent truth as a basis, we have been at no little pains to discover the grounds of this improbable report. The following will, we think, prove to be the foundation of the story:—About the 25th ult. some soldiers of the 5th Lancers wandered out into the country in the direction of Ghooaingun (a Police Thanah); they stayed at a Kulwar's (liquor vendor's) shop and procured liquor there. As might be expected, a row ensued; lathees were used on both sides, and a good many hard knocks were received and given. One of the soldiers concerned in the row was taken to the police-station, and his comrades absconded. A short time afterwards a corporal of the Lancers came to the police-station and took charge of the man, and took him into cantonments. The helmets of two other men were also forwarded to the Brigade Major, and all the papers regarding the case were eventually forwarded to the military authorities, and there the matter ended as regards the civil or police authorities. Had death resulted on either side we should, of course, have heard more, but there has been no death from any cause whatever among the lancers since the date of the occurrence. The report, which is believed in the city, is of such a mischievous character that we take the earliest opportunity of contradicting it. These reports could not obtain the currency they do if the police had not discontinued the old practice of leaving reports in important cases at the disposal of the press. —Oude Gazette, April 24.

A GREAT REFORM is going on silently in every district and sub division of India. The uniform tables of statistics, based on those recommended by the International Congress, and drawn up by Mr. Laing's Statistical Committee, are being filled up by all the district officers of Bengal, the N.W. Provinces, and the Punjab. We have no information from other provinces, but we believe that there also the good work is going on. The result will be that, for the calendar year 1867 and the financial year 1867-8, we shall see for the first time the materials for a uniform and detailed picture of our administration, capable of being compared with the returns of European States but superior to them in some respects. We trust the Local Governments will for once direct special attention to the compilation from these tables of their administration reports. The reports for 1866-7 are now about to be compiled, and in some cases at least the writers might make use of the new tables. How necessary they are let this fact testify; we have striven in vain, after days of toil, to compile uniform tables of the litigation, crime, police, and prisons of India during 1865-6 from the last published administration reports; the materials are not available or are not capable of comparison; and yet they abound in record rooms and in periodical statements which never see the light and are never utilised.

MORE EXEMPTIONS IN THE LICENSE ACT.—As we stated on the first reading of the Bill, the Governor-General has used the exemption clause of the License-tax Act in favour of junior chaplains, who receive Rs. 500 a month, exclusive of fees, and the ministers of the Additional Clergy Society, who are paid about Rs. 300 a month. A fortiori, it is clear, all missionaries must be exempted and the secretaries of their societies should apply at once. A missionary receives only subsistence allowance, yet in most cases, though charitable societies were exempted, they paid the income-tax for their agents in India. Missionaries receive monthly salaries varying from Rs. 340, as in the Free Church Mission, to Rs. 200 a month, with house rent and small allowances for children. Some, like the Germans, live as Carey, Marshman, and Ward did, on from Rs. 30 to Rs. 50 a month. No one will object to such exemptions, but what shall we say of a general Act under which the exceptions are so many as to form the rule?—Friend of India.

THE TELEGRAPH.—Since the first wire was laid in 1850 India has spent £1,345,328 of capital and £1,218,443 in working expenses on its telegraph. It has received as revenue only £708,887, and has thus lost £509,556, besides the interest on the capital. It has now 13,400 miles of wire. In the course of the sixteen years 817 miles have been abandoned, and owing to the mutiny 918 had to be reconstructed. Colonel Glover, the temporary head of the department, is of opinion that this result is satisfactory, if the difficulties of the country and the political and administrative objects of the line be considered. The Governor-General in Council, more cautious, considers the financial results to be "not wholly unsatisfactory." If the value of the free messages be not too highly fixed, India has paid half a million sterling for her telegraph. When we remember the little telegram sent from Delhi on the morning of May 11, 1867, to which Col. Glover points, we cannot deny the "importance" of the department. But the price paid might have been smaller, the failures fewer, and the consequent grumbling of the public less chronic, had it been better managed. It is satisfactory to learn that in December last the percentage of error in 29,968 Indian messages was 2½, of which only ¼ was serious, while in 1,978 Indo-European messages it was 9½, of which 1½ was serious. But the chief cause of complaint is the time taken by messages in transit and delivery. The telegraph department has been emphatically one of promises, but we hope the last will be soon realised—that, by the close of the present working season, a special wire will be available between Kurrachee and Bombay, if not between Kurrachee and Calcutta, for European messages. Meanwhile, the ministry seem to have taken no action on the recommendations of Mr. Crawford's committee as to the telegraph, though they are about to burden India with an extra charge of threepence a letter to pay for a weekly mail.

SERIOUS CHARGES AGAINST EUROPEANS.—The Criminal Sessions, which have just terminated, brought to prominence two cases of culpable homicide, the circumstances connected with which are, unfortunately, not of unfrequent occurrence. In one case the captain of the British ship Astrea, and the chief officer, and one of the crew of another vessel, the Duke of Wellington, were charged with the murder of three natives. They had gone ashore somewhere at Chittagong, and whilst out shooting perpetrated "a lark" by carrying away a goat. The natives turned out and attacked them, the result being that in defending themselves with fire-arms three natives were shot dead. In the exaggerated anxiety of Government to demonstrate to the native its impartiality in bringing Europeans to trial, these men were sent up prisoners to Calcutta on a charge of murder. The result has been the acquittal of the prisoners; and the native press is already clamouring for that justice which might have been obtained if the men were tried on a less serious charge. The other case is that of a sailor on board an American vessel, the Nomanton, who stabbed and killed the chief officer. The evidence against the prisoner was very conclusive, but, at the same time, showed such extreme provocation on the part of the murdered man towards the prisoner that the special jury returned a verdict of not guilty in this case also. —Indian Daily News.

CURIOUS STORY.—A curious story has reached us from Rampore. There was a man named Futteh Mahomed Khan, who used to be employed in attending upon European travellers and others passing through the Rampore State. There is some doubt as to his parentage. He is by name a Mahomedan, but the Mahomedan name and address some say was only assumed as a disguise during the mutiny. His own connections declare he is the son of a certain colonel, of the British Indian Army, one of a large family whose names are well known in India. This man was in the service of the former Nawab of Rampore, but left the place on the Nawab's death, and went and resided in British territory, where he engaged in business, and appears to have become pretty well known. Some little time ago he was induced by promises and solicitations to return to Rampore and enter the service of the Nawab. He did so. But on the day of the Nawab's installation some of the arrangements for the ceremonies being placed in his, Futteh Mahomed Khan's, hands, he offended one of the Nawab's family, and some altercation ensued. Who were to blame of course we should be very sorry to take upon ourselves to say; but the offence does not appear to have been anything very serious. The man, however, was incarcerated by the Nawab, and has been in prison now a whole year, chained with fetters that weigh "a pucca maund," and otherwise subjected to torture and pains and penalties which the unhappy wretch has been condemned to undergo for ten years. We deem it a case in which the British authorities should interfere, but whatever is done should be done promptly, as we are informed that there is great danger, if it is known that the British authorities are about to interfere, of the prisoner being destroyed by poison. There is a good deal of unwholesome intrigue and domestic fraud going on in and about the Nawab of Rampore's court, and it is not impossible this story may have been exaggerated with a view to throw blame upon the Nawab's party. But anyhow it is a matter that ought to be inquired into.—Delhi Gazette.

MUTTRA, APRIL 21.—With deep regret I beg to communicate to you, for the information of the public, the death of the lamented Sir Rajah Radah Kant Deb Bahadour, at Brindaban, on the morning of the 19th inst. He retained his senses till his last breath, and was so conscious of his approaching death that he did not think it worth while to take any medicine while he was sick. He was aged between sixty-five and seventy years, and was a profound Sanskrit scholar, for which he was well known even in England and Germany. He has left behind him his valuable voluminous Sanskrit Dictionary, known as "Subdo-Kulpo-Droom," which he compiled in upwards of twenty years, and distributed gratis among his friends both in Europe and in this country, which cost him, I am told by a reliable authority, more than two lakhs of rupees. He left Calcutta about five years ago to pass the latter end of his days in this Hindoo holy city. He was the President of the Calcutta British Indian Association for a long time, and all the success that institution has gained was during his charge. He was a great advocate of the Hindoos, and was foremost in every thing by which native rights and liberties could be regained, hence his death cannot but be a serious loss to his countrymen, especially to Bengalees, whose sole patron and head he was all this while. His death will cause a great sensation in Calcutta, as he was the first citizen of the city. He was knighted on the 20th November last at your station, and received the honour of a second class Star of India."

COLONEL ROBERT RENNY, C.B., Bengal Staff Corps, has joined his new appointment as Assistant Adjutant-general of the Oude Division at Lucknow, and taken over the duties of his office from Colonel Barwell, appointed Officiating Commandant of the 16th Regiment N.I., quartered at Fyzabad. Notwithstanding the unusual heat, the troops generally in that large station are very healthy. The cantonments are in capital order, and every attention is paid to conservancy matters, and the dry earth system is being fairly tried.—Delhi Gazette, April 25.

NEW CANTONMENT CHURCH AT ALLAHABAD.—We understand that the Government has decided to grant Rs. 40,000 for the new Cantonment Church at Allahabad. This, although a larger sum than was at first spoken of, falls very far below what we hold to be the reasonable expectations of such a station as this. A church which is to accommodate at least 1,000 worshippers, and to be built for the sum we have mentioned, can only be a mean and starved structure.—Southern Cross, or Indian Church Gazette, April 20.

DOCTOR MUNRO, C.B., of the 93rd Sutherland Highlanders, who for thirteen years has been surgeon of this regiment, was entertained at a farewell dinner by the officers at Jhansi on the 12th April. Dr. Munro has been appointed Deputy-Inspector-General of Hospitals of the Sirhind division (Bengal). Few men have more honestly and thoroughly deserved the promotion that has now been bestowed upon him.

LAMENTABLE SPREAD OF DISEASE.—The Delhi Gazette says:—"We are sorry to see from the following letter from Mooradabad that the excellent sanitary and other arrangements which were carried out at Hurdwar during the recent 'mela,' and for which the Government and their officials deserve every credit, have been unsuccessful in warding off the almost inevitable consequence of such an enormous gathering of people. All that can now be done is to afford all the relief possible to the suffering, and by prompt quarantine measures, and jealously watching the progress of the epidemic, to prevent its spread as much as possible. Our worst fears are being realised. The calamitous results of the great mela at Hurdwar are upon us. When you first predicted the evil which such a gathering would be likely to produce, people considered you an alarmist, but now they are fully convinced of the truth of your assertions. If you pass along the Bijour and Bareilly roads the dead and dying may be seen on every hand. When such is the case here, so far from the scene of gathering, what must be the horrid state of things in the districts adjoining, where millions have congregated within the last month. Native doctors, compounders, and vaccinators, are busily engaged night and day distributing cholera pills and other medicines to the sick and dying, but their efforts prove almost fruitless against the mighty contagion."

ALLEGED CURE FOR THE BITE OF THE COBRA.—A contemporary gives the following account of the case of a woman who had been bitten by a cobra:—"A grown-up woman of the jala caste, passing by a drain or khal with a basket full of fishes upon her head, all on a sudden fell senseless on the ground, and, strange to say, immediately collapsed. Instantaneous measures were adopted by the doctors (of whom there were more than one I believe) and other gentlemen present, to bring her to her senses, but to no effect, the disease itself not being at that time recognised. Just at this time the village chowkedar, who happened to pass by that way, examined her, jumped into the khal, brought some leaves from under the bushes that grew there, wrung their juice, and administered it down the throat of the woman, and when that was found to be impracticable, as life was almost extinct, down the nostrils and cavities of the ears. This was continued for some moments, after which the woman appeared to move slightly, and then, in a few minutes more, perfectly recovered. She picked up the fish that lay scattered about, felt abashed at the sight of so many gentlemen attending on her, and bowed away. After great importunities the chowkedar told them that it was the juice of the plant golghosh or holkhosa that he had used. It is a small plant, the flowers of which are used by the Bengalees in the worship of Saruswaty, and found in cornfields.—Bengalee, April 13.

MR. GEORGE CAMPBELL AND MR. DAMPIER.—We announced in our overland edition the appointment of the two civilian members of the commission to high office—Mr. George Campbell to be Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces and Mr. Dampier to officiate as Secretary to the Government of Bengal. Both appointments are probably the best that could have been made, and both are deserved. Mr. Campbell, it is well known, has always preferred administrative to judicial work. The present position of the Central Provinces requires those very qualities in their ruler which Mr. Campbell possesses. Mr. Temple has proved a splendid pioneer, infusing energy into every department, dragging out the obscure into the light, giving an impetus to progress and doing the rough work of administration with an ability no man in India could have equalled. Detailed and even polished administration and an attention to legality and rule, which would have been pernicious before, will prove most beneficial now if not carried too far. Neglected Gondwana may look for no less attention at the hands of a chief commissioner with ethnological tastes than it received from Mr. Temple, who used the Nagpore missionaries to introduce civilisation into its darkness. We trust Mr. Campbell will continue to the educational department that earnest and liberal policy under which it has already accomplished so much. Mr. Dampier will supply Mr. Grey with that knowledge of the details of district administration in which the new Lieutenant Governor of Bengal is deficient. He is both industrious and competent, while the very prevalent fear that he may not prove high principled has been removed by the great independence which, we believe, he has shown as a member of the Famine Commission. Captain H. H. Stansfeld, Adjutant of the Calcutta Volunteers and in the cadre of the 6th European Regiment, has been appointed Mr. Grey's private secretary. He is said to be a good linguist. The duties of his office are more of a social character than anything else, and if he discharges them with half the ability and success of Colonel Raban, the public and Lieutenant-Governor alike will have reason for satisfaction. Mr. Grey will not, as has been said, visit Orissa at present, since Mr. Molony is accomplishing all that can be done there. He will shortly make a tour in some of the rural districts, and proposes to pay a visit to Assam next September.—Friend of India.

KULIN POLYGAMY.—Most of the Indian journals have expressed disappointment at the report of the committee appointed to consider the subject of Kulin Polygamy. To many of our readers possibly Kulin Brahmins are but a name. There are four classes of Kulinis, and it is among one of these classes, the Bhangra Kulinis, that the monstrous practices complained of chiefly exist. The number of wives of a Kulin Brahmin is stated in the report to be as many as fifteen, twenty, fifty, and even eighty. The men of this class contract marriages, sometimes more than one in the same day, for the sake of the presents they receive with each wife. The report which has been issued, while declining to recommend a declaratory law, or the registration of marriages, or any other expedient for lessening the abuses which have been brought to light, "gives a deplorable picture of the present state of the law of marriages among Hindus, to which a remedy must, sooner or later, be applied." These are the words of the Lieutenant-governor of Bengal, and we can only regret that the committee did not see their way to framing a draft Bill, which would deal with the subject at once.—Southern Cross.

MORADABAD, April 25.—The epidemic has at last broken out among those also who had not joined the great mela. It is raging horribly in the city now. As a precaution to prevent its further spread sentinels have been posted on all the public roads leading to the cantonment to cut off communication between the city and the regimental lines. In consequence of the occurrence of one or two cases in the 29th Native Infantry, two companies of the regiment have already been removed to a site about three miles to the south-west of the lines better known as the Ramleela ground. The other companies will also follow in a day or two. Colonel T. R. Snow, who was in command of the station for some time, has left for the hills, making over the command to Lieutenant-colonel Hunter, of her Majesty's 36th Regiment.

THE VICEROY AND SUITE AT DELHI.—DELHI, April 26.—The Viceroy and suite arrived at the station about eleven A.M. to-day, but I may mention that from seven A.M. a large number of the principal European and native residents had been in waiting at the platform ready to receive his Excellency. About 7-30 A.M. it was discovered through the telegraph department that the special train conveying the Viceregal party was at Toondia, so that the crowd dispersed to breakfast, and returned at ten to await the arrival of the party. The morning was intensely warm, and many an anxious eye was directed towards the bridge to catch the first glimpse of the smoke, and they had to wait a very long time; but at last it appeared, and the "special" ran up glibly to the office, as if it had been the ordinary mail train. The carriages were still in motion when Sir John stepped on to the platform, and after shaking hands with Colonel McNeil, Commissioner of Delhi, and a few others who happened to be near, at once entered the carriage in waiting, and drove off to the Hamilton Hotel, followed by the Members of Council, Secretaries, Aides-de-Camp, &c., &c. It was remarked that all the party looked pale and weary, and although the Viceroy is said to be in good health, his appearance does not exactly bear out the statement. But the whole party seemed to have undergone the process of par-boiling during their journey, and the horrible Mr. Massey looked particularly unwell, as if a heavy load of license tax was lying on his chest. There was a regular scramble for carriages to convey the party from the station to the Hamilton Hotel, but at last all got off, and I have no doubt that a comfortable bath and breakfast put them into good humour again. His Excellency will leave to-day at five P.M., but most of the staff remain until to-morrow and next day. We have had one death from cholera in the 79th Highlanders, I am sorry to say, and I have heard of some cases among the native community, but cannot vouch for the number. The weather looks stormy, and I should not be surprised if we get a dust-storm this evening. A little rain would make it pleasant for the travellers. There has been a great disturbance at Patoudie, a small State in this district. Some round-shot were fired, and some villages destroyed; but, as the case is under judicial investigation, I say no more about it at present.—Delhi Gazette.

PESHAWUR, April 26.—Cholera, which commenced among the natives here about a week ago, has spread to the Europeans, and one officer and one soldier of the 94th Regiment, and one soldier of the 11th Regiment (attached to 94th) have succumbed to it. Poor Mercer! his funeral took place yesterday evening, but in such dread is the chance of infection or contagion held by the P. M. O., or General here (I don't know which), that orders were given not to have the usual carrying or firing parties, or a band, it being intended by these worthies that natives should bury him. This the officers of the 94th (as fine a lot as ever stepped) very rightly would not stand, and some half-dozen of them took the coffin off the gun carriage, shouldered it, carried it to, and let it down into the grave themselves. The funeral was very numerously attended by officers of all branches of the service, testifying to the respect in which this amiable young man was and the 94th are held. I am ashamed to say that while this funeral was going on a band was playing waltzes and galops in the Paget Park, about a mile off. The 94th have been in camp for the last three days, and, as far as I can hear, have no more cases, neither have the Artillery nor Hussars.

MR. H. TAYLOR, of the Trigonometrical Survey, has been tried at the Agra Sessions, and found guilty on all the counts accusing him of doing grievous hurt, rioting, and abetting rioting, and acquitted on the counts accusing him of committing culpable homicide. He was sentenced to four years' penal servitude. The report of the trial has not been published, but it appears that there was a fight between the villagers of a place called Kakoba, near Agra, and the followers attached to the Survey camp under Mr. Taylor's charge. The fight must have been a severe one, and arose in the first instance, we believe, about some camels grazing in a sugar-cane field. Several men were wounded and one has since died.

MAJOR GULLIVER, R.E.—A Lahore paper informs us that Major Gulliver, R.E., Superintendent of the Baree Doab Canal, has been appointed to conduct the irrigation operations about to be undertaken in Orissa. Our contemporary is correct except as to the implied permanency of the appointment so far as present arrangements go. Major Gulliver will only organise the works and return to the Punjab, but it is possible they may hereafter be permanently placed in his charge. In the meantime Major J. Fulton, R.A., takes Major Gulliver's place, and it is probable that Lieut. R. Palmer may return to the Baree Doab Canal as officiating executive engineer, Lahore branch, in the place of Major Fulton.—Delhi Gazette, April 25.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—We regret to announce the death of Mr. G. W. Archer, of the firm of Anderson, Wallace, and Co., which arose from a very singular circumstance. Mr. Archer was visiting the house of a friend, and was playfully pursuing a cat. He ran into a portico, and by some means fell over and broke his arm, and sustained other injuries which ultimately proved fatal. His remains were interred yesterday in the burial ground Circular-road.—Hurkaru, April 23.

GREAT DISTRESS IN THE DISTRICTS BORDERING ON NEPAL.—It is reported that some of the ryots from the districts bordering on Nepal have crossed the frontier, and under pressure of want sold their children to the Ghorkas. The matter is under enquiry.—Englishman, April 24.

HOUSE RENT of their rank has been sanctioned to the officers belonging to the regiments stationed at Alipore from the date of the order granting it.

LIEUTENANT S. D. LOCKWOOD.—The resignation of Lieutenant S. D. Lockwood, of the General List Cavalry, is announced.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE HOT SEASON.—We are now in the beginning of the hottest season of the year, and perforce the dullest. The most noticeable, if indeed not the only, public feature is the usual exodus to Ooty or Home. Amongst those temporarily leaving for the latter is Sir Adam Bittlestone, Puisne Judge, who goes on leave for six months. In the constitution of the High Court it is laid down that not less than one-third of the judges shall be barristers. Just now the civilian element is greater than it ought strictly to be, and the appointment therefore of another civilian to act for Sir Adam would in all probability call down the wrath of the Home authorities on our local Government. The barristers eligible for the post are either too well off to accept it, or too little practised to be fit for it. The Government, therefore, much to the chagrin of those who consider the strict letter of the law should be adhered to, escape the difficulty by not appointing an acting judge in Sir Adam's place. The Hon. L. C. Innes, Judge of the High Court, has also taken leave to Europe for fifteen months. Mr. G. H. Ellis, who acted during Sir Colley Scotland's recent absence, has been appointed to act for Mr. Innes. This latter appointment is also far from being relished by two or three local gentlemen of the long robe.—Madras Times.

THE OBNOXIOUS LICENSE-TAX still occupies a prominent position in men's minds both here and elsewhere. Here, the petition against it to Sir Stafford Northcote is to be forwarded to England by the present mail. It has received about eight hundred signatures. This for Madras, where the general tax-paying community is comparatively small, is saying not a little against it. In Calcutta the public are more than ever opposed to it, and are preparing to resist its collection from the 1st of May. Actions will be defended on the ground that the Act taxes profits accruing after the 1st prox., the annual value of which cannot be assessed until the termination of one year. Section XV. of the Act, say they, cannot be complied with, as the Act gives the collector authority to estimate the annual profits only.—Madras Times.

OUR LOCAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL has introduced a Bill to provide for the examination and settlement of claims against his Highness Prince Azim Jah Bahadur. Fifteen lakhs, it will be remembered, had been allowed by Government, to liquidate the Prince's debts, and a commissioner has been appointed to investigate and report upon, and as far as possible, settle the claims. Part of the present Bill consists in creating the machinery necessary to enable the commissioner to prosecute his investigation. The debts, nominally, at least, far exceed the sum allotted by Government, but until the report of the commissioner is sent in, it will not be known how the payments are to be distributed—whether the money will be distributed rateably, in proportion to the amount proved in such case, or whether some debts or classes of debts will be more favourably treated than others. Mr. Clarence Roberts, of the civil service, has been appointed commissioner.—Madras Times.

A NEW SUGGESTION FOR AMALGAMATION.—A shareholder in the Madras Bank suggests that a branch of the bank should be opened in Bombay, and the uncalled-up capital of 64 lacs should be called up to form the capital of the new branch. He further suggests that the Bombay Bank should be liquidated, but that the Bank of Madras should have nothing to do with the realisation of its assets or payment of its debts; and that, when Bombay feels strong enough to form a new bank, it should take over the Madras branch as a nucleus. It seems to be thought such an arrangement as this would be of service to both Madras and Bombay; but whether the suggestion will find favour with the directors of our local bank, or with the commercial community in Bombay, remains to be seen. Bombay Bank shares are now quoted at Rs. 180 per share; and the Bombay Saturday Review estimates the value of the bank's capital to be nil.—Madras Times.

THE MAILS BETWEEN MADRAS AND BOMBAY.—In October last our local Chamber of Commerce brought to the notice of Government the serious delays that often occur in the transmission of the mails between Madras and Bombay. The Supreme Government has just informed the Chamber that steps have already been taken to improve the state of the line, but the difficulties in the way are so great that it is apprehended that but little increase of speed can be looked for till the completion of the line of railway. In the meantime, everything will be done, say the Government, to keep the communication in as efficient a condition as possible, and, with this view, directions have been given for a still further increase to the number of horses employed, so as to bring on, as far as possible, all the important portions of the mail together. As all our mails now come and go via Bombay, quick communication with the latter is of more importance than ever.

SALAR JUNG.—We learn from Hyderabad that the reply of the Viceroy to the absurd and pretentious letter of the Nizam has had the effect of suspending his Highness's system of insulting and dishonouring Salar Jung. Since the receipt of the despatch the Nizam has called the minister to several personal councils, and seems for the moment to manifest a desire to do away with the impression he has so thoughtlessly created in the minds of the English authorities.

BOMBAY.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE AMALGAMATION OF THE BANKS.—A committee, consisting of certain influential shareholders of the Bank of Bombay, was recently appointed to consult with the directors as to the best plan of carrying out a reconstruction of the bank, instead of accepting Mr. Dickson's plan for uniting a new Bank of Bombay with that of Bengal as the basis of one State Bank for all India. The joint committee reported on the 1st inst., and have recommended to the public a complete scheme for establishing a "new Bank of Bombay," the capital to be one crore of rupees (£1,000,000), in 20,000 shares of Rs. 500 each, and for half the number of shares they invite applications at once, both from the old shareholders and the general public; but the former are to have the preference in the allotment, in the proportion of one new share offered for every two shares in the old bank. The interests of the shareholders are still further concerned, under the arrangement proposed by the committee, by the entire reserve in their favour of the second issue of 10,000 new shares. The scheme keeps primarily in view the necessity for at once creating a bank of sufficient strength for all the demands upon it; hence it is required that the applications for shares shall be accompanied by a deposit of 5 per cent., which on allotment is to be at once made up to half the price of the share, and the balance is to be paid two months afterwards. Stringent terms as to interest and forfeiture are laid down in regard to this first issue of shares, as 50 lacs will be obtained by this first issue, and as—notwithstanding the enormous lock up or loss of the old bank's capital—there are now available funds sufficient to meet all deposits except the treasury balance, the new bank will start with ample means for all prudent business, more especially as it is not proposed to reopen the branches so recently closed by the present bank. The date of issuing the second batch of new shares is to be made dependent, in the first instance, on the commencement of realisations from the dormant assets of the present bank. The second allotment will be made when the sum realised is sufficient to admit of the distribution of Rs. 100 for each old share, which will be credited to the holders; and further sums of Rs. 100 each share will be distributed to them as the assets are liquidated, which is to be done by the new bank. It is hoped that no call will be needed on this second issue of shares, the committee being of opinion that sufficient will be obtained from the wreck of the present bank to make up the requisite Rs. 500, which is the sum the shares are now nominally reckoned at—and the committee are even so hopeful of the result as to put on record a promise to repay to the old shareholders "any surplus" there may be over the par value of the shares. The feasibility of this project of reconstruction may be fairly inferred from certain spirited offers that have already been made to take up the first batch of shares; but its practicability seems dependent on the Local Government consenting to transfer their deposit account to the new bank, at least for the remainder of the term of nine months, during which the present Bank holds its agreement. As this reconstituted Bank will start free from all liabilities, under good auspices, and is likely to prove the means of restoring a healthy feeling to the monetary affairs of Bombay, it is in the last degree unlikely that the local Government will do any other than cordially support the project. His Excellency Mr. Seymour Fitzgerald is to receive a deputation from the joint committee next Monday morning. Mr. Dickson, the manager of the Bank of Bengal, is on his way to Bombay, accompanied by the chief native accountant of that establishment, who is probably preparing himself for the task of pulling to pieces the old Bank of Bombay, and putting together a new and composite structure as designed by Mr. Dickson in his famous minute. It now seems probable that these two able men will find themselves arrive "a day after the fair."—Times of India, May 4.

THREE DIRECTORS OF THE BROACH BANK who were recently sentenced to three years' rigorous imprisonment and a fine of £1,000 each, upon a charge of criminal breach of trust, have appealed to the High Court of Bombay against the decision, but the appeal was rejected.

MR. JUSTICE ARNOULD has discharged the order of the Bombay High Court for winding up the Bombay branch of the Commercial Bank.

THE JUDGES OF THE HIGH COURT OF BOMBAY have urged the Government to increase the jurisdiction of the Bombay Small Cause Court from £100 to £500.

THE VICTORIA GARDENS.—It is very satisfactory to know that the difficulties which, despite the exertions of an indefatigable secretary, have so long beset the Victoria Gardens, are now likely to be removed. The fountain, indeed, could never be made to play at Mazagon, and has consequently been disposed of to the municipality for the ornamentation of Elphinstone Circle. Care will be taken in erecting it to prevent its playing too much and making the Circle a puddle, after the manner of the Wellington Fountain, while, at the same time, it will be seen to that it plays steadily, instead of once a month, after the manner of the High Church intermittent "squirr" at the door of the Cathedral. The unfinished state of the entrance to the gardens has long been an eyesore to the public, but Government has been solicited to assist in completing the works, and will, no doubt, under the circumstances, accede to the request. The community generally, and the younger members of it especially, will also be glad to hear that a couple of young bears have been added to the zoological collection in the gardens. The mother of these cubs was shot a few days ago in the Sattara districts of Major Parr.—Times of India.

THE GOVERNOR.—The Right Hon. Mr. Seymour Fitzgerald paid a flying visit to Mahabaleshwar, but does not, it appears, intend this season at least to pass the hot weather so far from the presidency town, the affairs of which in these days of its weakness stand greatly in need of a little looking after, especially as certain men have been sent by Calcutta "to spy out the land," and, if possible, deprive Bombay of its financial independence. His Excellency has therefore removed merely to Matheeran, the most accessible and not by any means the least pleasant of the hill stations of Bombay, where he attends assiduously to his duties, and where he is to receive a deputation on Monday next, to confer about the affairs of the Bank of Bombay, and the best means of effecting a reconstruction of that institution.—Times of India.

LOSS OF THE "ABEL TASMAN."—The agents to Lloyd's received a telegram yesterday from Cannanore, informing them that the Dutch ship Abel Tasman, 596 tons, Captain Ryken, which left Bombay for Liverpool on the 5th inst., is ashore on the Byramore Reef, N.E. of the Laccadives. We are glad to be able to state that the captain and the whole of the crew were saved.—Bombay Gazette, April 18.

EXPORT OF COTTON.—During the month of March last 65,433,216 lbs., or 83,460 candies of cotton, valued at £2,639,860, were shipped from the port of Bombay. Of this nearly 7,000,000 lbs. were forwarded by the overland route.

THE BOMBAY TELEGRAPH OFFICE has introduced a plan for fastening the telegram envelopes with eyelets instead of sealing-wax. It is more economical, the envelopes are more quickly fastened, and tampering with their contents is rendered impossible.

THE STATE OF THE PUBLIC HEALTH IN BOMBAY continues very satisfactory. The deaths last week were 328, being 113 less than the corresponding week of last year, and 222 less than the mean of the corresponding week of the last five years.

THE LIQUIDATORS OF THE CENTRAL INDIA FINANCIAL CORPORATION have reported that £9,000 will be available for distribution among the shareholders, and that the first dividend will be payable next week.

THE LIQUIDATORS OF THE ALLIANCE BANK OF BOMBAY have reported that the ultimate yield of the Bank's assets is likely to be about Rs. 20 a share, and that the first distribution will take place within three months.

AN APPEAL against the judgment of Sir Joseph Arnould in the celebrated "Khojah case" is to be made to the Privy Council.

THE ROYAL BANK OF INDIA is to be wound up voluntarily.

INDIAN BRANCH RAILWAY COMPANY.—The Secretary of State for India has officially announced that he is prepared to enter into a guarantee arrangement with the Indian Branch Railway Company, in so far as their line from Cawnpore to Lucknow, and, probably, to Fyzabad, is concerned; and the Government have thus commenced, it is to be hoped, a series of concessions that must have come sooner or later. If the Board of the Sind Railway Company would but take up the question of the three branches urgently required for the Delhi and Punjab lines, and which have been dwelt on as most desirable in these columns on several occasions, there is but little room to doubt that the Secretary of State would see and recognise the great advantages to be derived from a similar concession in respect to these branches which, collectively, are more than twice as long as the line from Lucknow to Delhi, while two of them at least might be carried out at considerably less cost. It is said that this Lucknow line was to be opened on the same day as the Meerut section of the Delhi line, but no account of such opening has yet appeared.—Railway Times, April 20.

REPORTED MUTINY IN INDIA.

Mr. STANSFELD wished to ask the Secretary of State for India if he could give any information to the House on the subject of the telegram received yesterday from Bombay, reporting a mutiny of native troops at some place whose name was not very intelligibly transmitted by the wires.

Sir S. NORTHCOTE said he had received no information on the subject except what appeared in the newspapers. There appeared to be some confusion in the telegram, and he could not help thinking some mistake had been made.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MAY 24.

THE MAHARAJAH OF MYSORE.

Lord WILLIAM HAY called attention to the despatch of the Secretary of State for India relative to the claims of the Maharajah of Mysore, by which he directs that the territory shall continue to be governed on the same principle as at present until the young Rajah becomes of age. The Maharajah, he stated, was raised to the musnud by virtue of the partition treaty of 1799, but that treaty he contended was not a dynastic but a personal treaty. It granted the territory to the Maharajah, but conferred no rights whatever on his heirs. It would be folly, he considered, for the Government not to take advantage of the treaty. He thought they should do this, and endeavour to make Mysore the exemplar of what a native State ought to be, and this they could do by gradually introducing native agency in the administration of the Government.

Mr. SMOLLETT considered the despatch as one of the most honest and straightforward that had ever emanated from the India-office. He strongly condemned the practice of annexing native states.

Sir H. RAWLINSON said if the partition treaty were a personal treaty, the effect of it would have been nothing more nor less than our making a life king, which would have been a monstrous proceeding, repugnant to the feelings of the Hindoos, and unparalleled in our history.

The discussion was continued by Colonel SYKES, who condemned the policy of annexation; by Mr. LAING, who pointed out that the policy of successive Governors-General of India had been overturned by a statesman who, by the exigencies of party in this country, became Secretary for India, and who had not been a fortnight in office when he arrived at this decision, and who advocated the annexing of native states; and by Sir T. E. COLEBROOKE, Mr. H. SEYMOUR, and Mr. STANSFELD.

Sir S. NORTHCOTE said he had within the last half hour received a telegram from Bombay stating that the report which appeared in the newspapers two days ago of a mutiny of native troops in India was untrue, and was caused by a letter written by a person who was insane. Then, referring to the question before the House, he defended the course he had pursued, contending that he had acted in the spirit of the arrangement made by Lord Wellesley. His predecessor left matters open till the young Rajah was eighteen or twenty years of age. That, he thought, would be exceedingly mischievous. When the Rajah died things would have been thrown into confusion, and the young Rajah would have been brought up, not as a King, but as a pretender.

Lord CRANBORNE said the Council for India was in a most anomalous position. It had the power to veto any despatch or order of the Government in which the expenditure of money was involved. He thought that these matters should not be removed from the control of the House. He concurred in the policy enunciated by his right hon. friend when he stated that he did not intend to change the administration of Mysore, and he warned the House of the danger of prematurely attempting to settle anything in a country which was in a state of rapid transition.

THE INDIAN BRANCH RAILWAY.

The following correspondence with regard to the Indian Branch Railway is of interest:—

TO THE UNDER SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA.

May 20.

Sir,—The directors of the Indian Branch Railway Company having further considered the subject of their letter of the 29th ult. (No. 123), and understanding that the Secretary of State in Council is not able to extend the 5 per cent. guarantee to the Nulhatee line, I have the honour to state that the board are prepared to accept the guarantee for the construction of their lines of railway in Oude and Rohilkund, such guarantee to include the whole of the expenditure incurred by the company up to the present time, less a sum of £50,000 to be written off as the estimated loss on account of the Nulhatee line, which will be abandoned, and the road returned to Government.

(Signed) WM. DENT, Deputy-Chairman.

India Office, May 23.

Sir,—I am directed by the Secretary of State for India to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 20th inst., and to state in reply that he is prepared, in accordance with the terms of the draft contract, which accompanied my letter of March 7, to accept your proposal, and to guarantee the lines of railway in Oude and Rohilkund, such guarantee to include the whole of the expenditure incurred by the company up to the present time (which will of course be properly certified by the auditor), less a sum of fifty thousand pounds (£50,000) to be written off as the estimated loss, on account of the Nulhatee line, which will be abandoned, and the road returned to Government.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant, (Signed) HERMAN MERVILLE.

Wm. Dent, Esq.

[The £50,000 to be written off is equivalent to 10s. per share.]

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE P. AND O. STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.—It is notified that at the half-yearly meeting of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Company, to be held early next month, the directors will not be in a position to make the usual recommendation with regard to an ad interim dividend, the amount of which declared at that period has usually been 3½ per cent. for the half-year. The chief cause of this unfavourable state of things is a falling off in the company's revenue through a decrease in the shipments of specie, as well as in the general movement of silk and other important articles of commerce, consequent upon the prolonged crisis in the Eastern trade. At the same time, an increase in coal freights outwards, and in other items, has tended to enlarge the company's working expenses. There can also be no doubt that the company's interests have been prejudiced by the active competition of the Messageries Impériales Company, which is subsidised to the extent of more than four times the sum assigned to the Peninsular and Oriental Company.

EAST INDIA IRRIGATION COMPANY.—The report of the East India Irrigation Company has been issued, preparatory to the meeting to be held on the 30th instant. It details the progress of works, which is, on the whole, satisfactory, and sets forth an account of the receipts and expenditure in England up to the 31st of December last, and in India up to the 31st of October last, by which a balance of cash in hand on these dates is shown of £72,867, and by which it will be seen that the total amount of interest paid out of capital to that date was £51,777 only. An arrangement with the Government for prosecuting works in Orissa has been made.

HOMEWARD-BOUND TRANSPORTS.—According to the latest advices from India there were no fewer than fifteen ships on their voyage to England with troops, invalids, and time-expired men, in addition to two others on the eve of departure when the despatch left. The ships on passage are:—The Sir Jamsetjee Family, from Bombay, with invalids, left on the 2nd February; the Hotspur, from Calcutta, with invalids, left on the 7th of February; the King Arthur, from Calcutta, with invalids, left on the 15th of February; the Trafalgar, from Bombay, with troops, left on the 19th of February; the Cowasjee Jehangee, from Bombay, with invalids, left on the 19th of February; the Alumbagh, from Calcutta, with part of the 34th regiment on board, left on the 27th of February; the Tweed, from Bombay, with the 97th regiment on board, left on the 28th February; the Lord Warden, from Madras, with time-expired men, left on 2nd of March; the Devonport, from Madras, with invalids, left on the 8th of March; the Walmer Castle, from Madras, with time-expired men, left on the 10th of March; the Delaware, from Bombay, with invalids, left on the 11th of March; the Marchioness of Londonderry, from Bombay, with remainder of 34th Regiment on board, left on the 20th of March; the Bolingbroke, from Madras, with invalids, left on the 22nd of March; the Sussex, from Bombay, with invalids, left on the 23rd of March; the Melville, from Calcutta, with invalids, left on the 26th of March. The Edwin Fox and the Surrey are the two ships mentioned as being about to sail when advices left.

TROOPS FROM INDIA.—The sailing Indianman, the Sir Jamsetjee Family, Capt. Wilson, belonging to Bombay, arrived at Spithead on Thursday last from Bombay, bringing invalided troops and the following officers in charge of them:—Lieuts. Stirke, R.A.; Power, 6th (Inniskillen) Dragoons; Blair, 102nd Regt.; Isaacson, 1st Royals; Asst.-surg. Kilroy, R.A.; and Mrs. Kilroy.

LONDON, BOMBAY, AND MEDITERRANEAN BANK.—A meeting of the creditors of the London, Bombay, and Mediterranean Bank (ordered to be wound up last year) was held on Thursday last, to receive a report and statement of accounts of the official liquidators, Sir Thomas Parkyns, Bart., and Mr. James Cooper (of the firm of Johnstone, Cooper, Wintle, and Evans), as to the complicated questions arising out of the amalgamations between this bank, the Continental Banking Corporation, and the London and Mediterranean Bank. After a lengthy discussion as to the course to be pursued to avoid the evil consequences likely to ensue from the continuance of the three separate liquidators, a committee of creditors was appointed to concert steps for some combined scheme of liquidation.

THE SCINDE, PUNJAB, AND DELHI BANK.—Messrs. Young and J. H. Norman, the liquidators of the Scinde, Punjab, and Delhi Bank Corporation (Limited), have announced that a second return of capital to the shareholders, viz., ten shillings per share, on which the sum of £5 or £10 has been paid, will be payable on Thursday, the 30th inst., and on any subsequent Thursday.

DISTRESS IN THE GANJAM DISTRICT.—The Collector of Ganjam clearly anticipates the recurrence of distress in that district during the course of this year. He has written a letter to the Madras Government suggesting that all exportations of grain by sea from ports in Ganjam should be prohibited until January, 1868, giving as his reasons for suggesting this step that in addition to the rice and paddy sent into Bengal by the Chilka Lake, no less than 120,613 bags have been shipped for Europe and Madras. In ordinary years rice in considerable quantities is imported from Cuttack and Pooree, but as this cannot be the case this year, and no stores of grain were left in Ganjam, any drain, in the shape of exportation, the Collector states, will most probably render Government relief again necessary. Mr. Molony, the special Famine Commissioner, has written to the Collector of Ganjam, requesting him not to stop the exportation to Orissa, as the quantity sent has not been of any great extent.

SELECTED FROM THE LIBRARY OF

DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D.,

AND FOR SALE BY

MESSRS. WM. H. ALLEN AND CO., 13, WATERLOO-PLACE, LONDON.

* * In ordering from this List, please state the Number, first word of Title, and Price.

168. PADMAVATI.—This is a curious work composed in the older form of the Hindustani language. The author's name was MUHAMMAD JA'ISI, so called from the city of Ja, in the Kingdom of Oude. Sayid 'Abdullah, a native of that province, tells me that he himself is a direct descendant from the poet, but he knows not the precise period when the author lived. I am authorised, however, in inferring that he lived in the reign of Sher Shah, of Delhi, between A.D. 1540 and 1545, as one of his poetical pieces is a panegyric on that monarch. The subject of the work is the history of Padmavati, Queen of Chitor. The MS. is in a good state of preservation, written in a distinct Ta'lik character, on good Indian paper, with marginal corrections and additions. Large 8vo., wanting the first leaf and one or two leaves at the end, pp. 400, ll. 20. £2. 2s.

169. MUNTAKHABU-L-LUGHAT.—"Abridgment of the Dictionaries," a very highly-esteemed Lexicon, Arabic and Persian, by 'ABDU-L-RASHID HAMADANI, who lived in the time of Shah Jahan, about the middle of the seventeenth century. This MS. is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a small, beautiful Ta'lik character, all the Arabic words written in red Naskhi. Dr. Lumsden held this work in high estimation. He thus speaks of it:—"The Muntakhabu-l-Lughat, though undoubtedly defective in the number of its words, has the advantage of being generally and justly considered as an authority of unquestionable accuracy, and being more easily consulted than any other Dictionary of Arabic Words, it is on that account peculiarly adapted to the use of beginners. Every native is in the constant habit of having recourse to its aid. Small folio, pp. 477, ll. 28. £3. 8s.

170. DIWANI SA'IB.—"The Diwan of Sa'ib." This is a very fine copy of the work of an esteemed poet already described under No. 29. The MS. is in the most perfect state of preservation, written in a fine Ta'lik character, on superior glazed Indian paper, with margins tastefully and richly ruled. Small folio, pp. 537, ll. 17. £3. 8s.

171. AKHLAKI NASIRI.—"A very celebrated System of Ethics," by the famous astronomer NASIRU-L-DIN, of Tus, composed about A.D. 1225. It is a translation of an Arabic work, written about the middle of our tenth century, and entitled "Kitabu-l-Taharat; or, Book of Holiness," by ABU 'ALI MUHAMMAD, of Mecca. The work is in a good state of preservation, written on glazed Indian paper, with ruled margins, in a fair Ta'lik character. Transcribed in A.D. 1675, with numerous various readings or corrections in the margin. 4to., pp. 224, ll. 17. £2. 2s.

172. KULLIYATI 'URFI.—The whole poetical works of 'Urfi. This is a very beautifully written copy of a work which we have already described under No. 147. It consists of—1. A Book of Kasidas. 2. The Romance of Khursu and Shirin. 3. A Book of Ghazals. 4. A Book of Rubais. It is in a most perfect state of preservation, written on fine strong Indian paper, with richly ruled margins, and four beautiful 'Anwans. Transcribed in A.D. 1645. Small 4to., pp. 542, ll. 14. £3. 13s. 6d.

174. MUFARRIHU-L-KULUB.—"The Exhilarator of Hearts." This is a translation, or rather an imitation, into Persian of the Sanskrit Hitopadesa. The translator says it is done from the Hindi language, by which I believe he means the Sanskrit, in which it was originally composed. It is very plainly and distinctly written in the Ta'lik character, approaching the Shikasta, on good Indian paper. 8vo., pp. 120, ll. 15. 15s.

175. BAHARI DANISH.—"The Spring of Knowledge," by 'INAYAT ULLAH. This is a copy of a work which we have already described under No. 31 and elsewhere. It is in a most complete state of preservation, written in the Shikasta character, on fine glazed Indian paper. It was transcribed in A.D. 1785. pp. 647, ll. 16. £2. 2s.

176. MALFUZATI TIMURI.—"The Autobiographical Memoirs of Timur," translated from the Turki language into Persian, by ABU TALIB AL HUSAINI, in the reign of Shah Jahan of Delhi. Portions of this work have been translated into English by various hands. This MS. is in a complete state of preservation, written in a distinct Ta'lik character, on fine Indian glazed paper. Large 8vo., pp. 450, ll. 17. £2. 12s. 6d.

178. INSHA'E ABU-L-FAZL.—"The Writings of Abu-l-Fazl." This is a very fine copy of a work which we have already described under Nos. 63 and 99. It is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a beautiful Nasta'lik character, on finely glazed Indian paper of various tints. It contains Abu-l-Fazl's correspondence only, not the miscellaneous portion, called the Kachkol, generally appended as part of the work. 8vo., pp. 810, ll. 15. £1. 1s.

179. SHA'HI MASNAVI.—"A Commentary on the Masnavi of Jalalu-d-Din Rumi," a celebrated work which we have already described under No. 124, etc. This is a valuable if not an absolutely necessary work for the thorough understanding of the numerous Sufi expressions and allusions occurring in the Masnavi. The MS. is in a good state of preservation, written on ordinary Indian paper, in a plain Ta'lik character. Transcribed in the seventeenth year of the reign of Muhammad Shah, of Delhi, about A.D. 1786. 4to., pp. 327, ll. 19. £1. 11s. 6d.

180. BOSTANI SA'DI.—"The Fruit Garden of Sa'di." This is a well-known work, celebrated over all the East. It treats of Morality, Politics, etc., somewhat like the author's Gulistan, already described under No. 96, only this is entirely in verse. It is in a complete state of preservation, written in a beautiful Ta'lik character, on very fine Indian paper, with richly ruled margin. 8vo., pp. 170, ll. 15, with five additional couplets written on the margin. £2. 2s.

181. JOG BASHISHT.—A work on Hindu Philosophy, translated from the Sanskrit into Persian, by order of Dara Shikoh, the eldest son of the Emperor Shah Jahan, of Delhi, about A.D. 1666. The MS. is in a state of thorough preservation, written in a fair Ta'lik character, on good Indian paper. 8vo., pp. 232, ll. 19. £1. 11s. 6d.

183. SIRAJU-L-LUGHAT.—"The Torch of Dictionaries." A valuable work by SIRAJU-L-DIN 'ALI, explanatory of all obscure idioms, phrases, and allusions occurring in the Persian poets. The work is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a very fair Ta'lik character, on good glazed Indian paper. The words and phrases are all arranged in alphabetical order. 8vo., pp. 445, ll. 17. £2. 2s.

184. SHAHZADAGIE SHAH JAHAN.—"The Princehood of Shah Jahan," being an account of the event of the early years of that prince before he ascended the throne of Delhi, by MU'TAMAD KHAN. It is preceded by another historical tract of the latter years of Shah Jahan's predecessor, by 'INAYAT ULLAH, which is unfortunately rendered almost illegible in consequence of damp. The rest of the work is in a very fair condition, written in a beautiful Ta'lik character, on finely glazed Indian paper, the headings of the various chapters written in red ink. 8vo., pp. 275, ll. 15. 10s. 6d.

185. SIKANDAR NAMA.—"The Sikandar Nama," by the celebrated poet NIZAMI. This is the last of the Five Select Poems, vide Nos. 38 and 39. It is extremely popular in the East, and frequently to be met with by itself independent of the rest of the poet's works. This copy is in a fair state of preservation, written in a very distinct Ta'lik character, on strong Indian paper, with numerous marginal notes. 8vo., pp. 474, ll. 15. £1. 1s.

186. DIWANI HAFIZ.—"The Diwan of Hafiz." This is a beautiful copy of a highly esteemed work, which we have already described under No. 70 and elsewhere. The MS. is in the most perfect state of preservation, written in a very fine Ta'lik character, on finely glazed Indian paper, with margins richly ruled. Transcribed in A.D. 1664. 8vo., pp. 368, ll. 15. £2. 12s. 6d.

187. INSHA'E MUNIR.—"Forms of Epistolary Correspondence," by NUBAWAH MUNIR. This is what we would call "The Complete Letter Writer." It is composed in a very florid style, something like the schoolmaster's letter in "Peregrine Pickle," and consequently the MS. has got numerous marginal and interlinear notes explanatory of the text. It is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a plain bold Ta'lik character, on good glazed Indian paper. 8vo., pp. 401, ll. 13. £1. 1s.

189. KASA'IDI 'URFI.—This is a fair copy of the Kasidas or Panegyrics of 'Urfi, a poet whose works we have fully described under Nos. 147 and 172. This MS. is in a good state of preservation, with the exception of a few pages that have been exposed to damp. It is written in a very fair Ta'lik character, on fine straw-coloured glazed paper. 8vo., pp. 184, ll. 13. 10s. 6d.

190. DIWANI HAFIZ.—A very fine copy in the original Oriental binding of a highly esteemed work, which we have already described in more places than one. It is in the most complete state of preservation, written in a beautiful Ta'lik character, on glazed straw-coloured Indian paper, the margins neatly ruled. 8vo., pp. 370, ll. 15. £2. 12s. 6d.

191. KHAYABANI RAIHAN.—"The Parterre of Odoriferous Herbs," a Masnavi or Romance, by RAIHANU-L-DIN, of Bengal. It appears to be a versified edition of the "Guli Bakawali," a very popular work in the Hindustani language, by NIHAL CHAND, which was published at Calcutta in 1815, by T. Roebuck, Esq. This MS. is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a beautiful Ta'lik character, on good Indian paper. Small 4to., pp. 362, ll. 15. £2. 2s.

192. TARIKHI NADIRI.—"The History of Nadir Shah," by MIRZA MUHAMMAD MAHDI KHAN, of Astarabad, who was sometime secretary to that atrocious conqueror. It gives a very clear and detailed account of the life and reign of Nadir Shah up to the year of his death A.D. 1747. Nearly a hundred years ago the work was translated into French (somewhat curtailed) by Sir WILLIAM JONES, for the benefit of the then King of Denmark. This copy is in a perfect state of preservation, written on European paper, in a clear and distinct Ta'lik character. 4to., pp. 568, ll. 15. (Bound up with No. 192a.)

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Bombay mail brings us our usual files of papers, from Calcutta to the 8th of May, Madras to the 6th, and Bombay to the 14th of that month.

In Calcutta the Licence Tax was still the exciting subject of conversation. A meeting of subscribers to the proposed "Defence Fund" had been held at the house of Mr. Wyman. Upon that occasion it was announced that subscriptions to the amount of 1,000 rs. had been made by the leading members of the Trades Association, and that further subscriptions were called for. The object of the Defence Fund is to secure the best legal advice in defence of any of its subscribers who may be prosecuted under the Licence Act. "We have no doubt," says the Englishman, "that the Defence Fund will be largely supported, and we are of opinion that its expenditure will be exceedingly small, as we cannot suppose that, in the present state of public opinion, the collector will proceed to enforce the law."

In a later number the same journal adds:—"The 1st of May has come and gone, and the collector has found himself compelled to pause. At the last moment it was discovered that as the payment of salaries to Government servants would occupy the first half of the month, it would not be fair to the general public to take proceedings against them until the 15th inst. Meantime the Chief Commissioner of Oudh has suspended the Act altogether in his territories until 1st June; while the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces has, in his instructions to collectors, laid down the startling rule that the tax is leviable upon incomes which accrued between 1st of May, 1866, and 30th April, 1867, in other words, that it has retrospective effect. The collector of Calcutta has adopted the same interpretation, so that the questions in dispute between the public and the authorities have been considerably narrowed. But this is not all; the Commissioner of Assam recommends the exemption of the traders of the Cossyah and Jynteah Hills. The Viceroy, too, has exempted all missionaries as not exercising a profession according to the terms of the Act, a decision which has provoked new and unfavourable comments, since a profession is defined to be an office which yields any profits, salary, fees, or perquisites. The Defence Committee is quite strong in funds, and is supported by the members of the trade, so that unless a telegram from England abolish the tax altogether, the interpretation of the Act will have to be finally settled by the magistrates of Calcutta."

There was a rumour of the latter contingency having come to pass—induced by the suspension of the Collector's operations.

Another rumour was to the effect that the Viceroy had written to the Secretary of State for India offering to "have a run over" to England at the fall of the year for the purpose of affording personal explanations of little matters of difficulty that have arisen during his Excellency's administration. It is also said that his Excellency expresses a wish to retire from the cares and responsibilities of his high office, while, on the other hand, it is declared that Sir John Lawrence would not object to a "renewal of his lease." The papers only profess to give these rumours "for what they are worth," which we fancy is not much.

In the meantime the Viceroy had reached Simla in safety, accomplishing his journey in seventy-two hours. A wonderful rate of travelling truly; but we must remember that the traveller was a Viceroy running away from the cholera.

The state of the River Hooghly is again causing considerable anxiety in connection with ships of large draught.

Toungso Penlow is once more to the front. He has announced his determination to place the young Dhurm Rajah on the throne of Bhootan as soon as the rains set in. The Deb-Rajahship has remained vacant since the death of its late occupant.

The extension of the East India Railway from Allahabad to Jubbulpoor was opened on the 2nd of May. The only gap that now remains in the railway communication between Bombay and Calcutta is between Khundwah and Jubbulpoor, and every exertion is being made by the engineers of the G. I. P. Railway speedily to complete this section. The extension from Kundwah to Hurdah is nearly ready for traffic, and with other portions the contractors are also making rapid progress. Very formidable obstacles have had to be encountered on this section, among the chief of which, besides the unhealthiness of many places on the route, was the erection of long bridges and viaducts. It is expected that in May, 1868, a junction will have been effected with the East India Railway at Jubbulpore, with the exception of perhaps a slight break at Sukkur, which would be temporarily supplied by a tramway.

A Special Irrigation Department has been formed in Bengal under the charge of Colonel Rundell, agent of the Cuttock Irrigation Company.

Captain Cunningham's defence, which was made before the state of the prisoner's health necessitated the adjournment of the Court, has proved a new cause of scandal. Some account of this audacious document—which has not yet been published—will be found elsewhere.

The cholera in the North-west is fast subiding.

The King of Burmah is still clinging to his determination not to fulfil the obligations of the Treaty of 1862. The period of grace allowed him by one of its articles expired on the 1st of June, and the Government of India have allowed it to be known that it would do nothing until after that date, so as to give his Majesty full time for the introduction of the reforms to which he pledged himself. Taking advantage of the state of Upper Burmah, he is reported to be gathering up his resources, and to be preparing for hostilities.

The Madras papers announce the approaching visit to England of Lady Napier—not happily on account of ill-health, but on "urgent private affairs."

Some severe hailstorms have taken place in the Northern districts of the Madras Presidency, by which much damage has been done to the growing crops.

The Nizam has made overtures for a reconciliation to Sir Salur Jung provided the latter dismissed certain officials obnoxious to his master, which has been done.

The plot thickens in Afghanistan and Central Asia. It is reported that Sirdar Faiz Mahomed Khan is about to invade Cabul with a force of 20,000 men and twelve guns. The Russian forces at Tashkand have been reinforced by another corps d'armee. Mr. Bean, manager of Romanini's circus, has been murdered at the Khyber Pass.

In Bombay the weather was unusually hot, but the public health continued to be generally satisfactory.

Mr. Dickson, of the Bank of Bengal, was in Bombay. He has had several interviews with the directors of the Bank of Bombay, and is awaiting instructions from Calcutta regarding some suggested alterations in the terms for amalgamation first offered by the Bank of Bengal. A deputation from the Bombay Bank shareholders has had an interview with the Governor. His Excellency expressed objections to the State being shareholders in any public company, but promised a reply as early as possible regarding the support that a "new Bank of Bombay" might expect from Government.

A telegram had been received by Government stating that the lighthouse at Pondicherry was being destroyed by fire.

A great fire had broken out in Byculla, Bombay, and destroyed property to the value of a lakh of rupees.

The market for Government paper was a trifle firmer, but in shares there was still much depression. Business generally was a shade better.

The next arrival from India will be the Calcutta Mail, which is due in London on the 12th inst.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

TUESDAY, June 4, 1867.

EXAMINATIONS FOR THE CIVIL SERVICE OF INDIA.

THE regulations for the Open Competition of 1868 have just been issued by the India-office. As they vary from year to year it will be well to call attention to them in detail.

The Examinations will be held in London on the 31st of March, 1868, and following days. A certain number, not yet fixed, will be selected for the Presidency of Bengal, for the Upper and Lower Provinces, for Madras, and for Bombay.

Any natural-born subject of her Majesty, who shall be desirous of entering the service, will be entitled to be examined, provided he shall, on or before the 1st of February, 1868, have transmitted to the Civil Service Commissioners, Dean's Yard, London, S.W. :—

A certificate of his birth, showing that his age on the 1st March, 1868, will be above seventeen years and under twenty-one years;

A certificate, signed by a physician or surgeon, of his having no disease, constitutional affection, or bodily infirmity unfitting him for the Civil Service of India;

Satisfactory proof of good moral character; A statement of those of the branches of knowledge hereinafter enumerated in which he desires to be examined.*

In any case in which a doubt may arise as to the eligibility of a candidate in respect of age, health, or character, such inquiries as may be necessary will be instituted by the Civil Service Commissioners.

The Examination will take place only in the following branches of knowledge :†—

	Marks.
Language, Literature, and History of England—	—
Composition ...	500
History, including that of the Laws and Constitution ...	500
Language and Literature ...	500
Language, Literature, and History of Greece	750
" " " " Rome	750
" " " " France	375
" " " " Germany	375
" " " " Italy	375
Mathematics, Pure and Mixed ...	1250
Natural Science; that is, Chemistry, including Heat, Electricity and Magnetism, Geology and Mineralogy, Zoology, Botany	500

* Candidates are at liberty to send in their names and evidence of age as soon as they think fit to do so; but evidence of health and character must bear date not earlier than the 1st January, 1868.

† It should be understood that candidates are at liberty to name at their pleasure any or all of these branches of knowledge, and that no subjects are obligatory.

* * The total (500 marks) may be obtained by adequate proficiency in any one or more of the five branches of knowledge included under this head. Moral Sciences; that is, Logic, Mental and

Moral Philosophy	500
Sanskrit Language and Literature	375
Arabic Language and Literature	375

The merit of the persons examined will be estimated by marks, and the number set opposite to each branch in the preceding regulation denotes the greatest number of marks that can be obtained in respect of it.

No candidate will be allowed any marks in respect of any subject of examination unless he shall be considered to possess a competent knowledge of that subject.*

The Examination will be conducted by means of printed questions and written answers, and by viva voce Examination, as may be deemed necessary.

The marks obtained by each candidate, in respect of each of the subjects in which he shall have been examined, will be added up, and the names of the candidates who shall have obtained a greater aggregate number of marks than any of the remaining candidates will be set forth in order of merit, and such candidates shall be deemed to be selected candidates for the Civil Service of India. They shall be permitted to choose, according to the order in which they stand, as long as a choice remains, the Presidency (and in Bengal, the division of the Presidency) to which they shall be appointed.

Selected candidates before proceeding to India will be on probation for two years, during which time they will be examined periodically with the view of testing their progress in the following subjects:—

Marks
Oriental Languages:—
Sanskrit	500
Vernacular Languages of India (each)	400
The History and Geography of India	350
Political Economy	350

In these examinations, as in the open competition, the merit of the candidates examined will be estimated by marks, and the number set opposite to each subject denotes the greatest number of marks that can be obtained in respect of it at any one examination. The examination will be conducted by means of printed questions and written answers, and by viva voce examination, as may be deemed necessary. The marks obtained at each of such periodical examinations will be added to those previously or subsequently obtained. The last of these examinations will be held at the close of the second year of probation, and will be called the "Final Examination." By the merit then shown it will be decided whether a selected candidate is qualified for the Civil Service of India.

* * Nothing can be further from our wish than to hold out premiums for knowledge of wide surface and of small depth. We are of opinion that a candidate ought to be allowed no credit at all for taking up a subject in which he is a mere smatterer.—Report of Committee of 1854.

† Full instructions as to the course of study to be pursued will be issued to the successful candidates as soon as possible after the result of the open competition is declared.

No candidate will be permitted to proceed to India until he shall have passed the Final Examination, and received a certificate of qualification from the Civil Service Commissioners, or after he shall have attained the age of twenty-four years.

The selected candidates who at the Final Examination shall be found to have a competent knowledge of the subjects specified in Regulation 9, shall be adjudged to have passed, and to be entitled to be appointed to the Civil Service of India.

The seniority in the Civil Service of India of the selected candidates shall be determined according to the order in which they stand on the list resulting from the Final Examination.

No person will, even after passing the Final Examination, be allowed to proceed to India unless he shall comply with the regulations in force, at the time, for the Civil Service of India, and shall be of sound bodily health and good moral character. The Civil Service Commissioners will require such further evidence on these points as they may deem necessary before granting their Certificate of Qualification.

Applications from persons desirous to be admitted as candidates are to be addressed as usual to the Secretary to the Civil Service Commissioners, Dean's-yard, London, S.W.

It is added in a note that the Secretary of State for India in Council has authorised the Civil Service Commissioners to state that it is his intention to allow the sum of £100 for the first year of probation, and £200 for the second year to each selected candidate who shall have passed the required examinations to the satisfaction of the Commissioners, and shall have complied with such rules as may be laid down for the guidance of selected candidates.

All selected candidates will be required, after having passed the second periodical examination, to attend at the India-office for the purpose of entering into an agreement binding themselves, amongst other things, to refund in certain cases the amount of their allowance in the event of their failing to proceed to India. If a candidate is under age a security is required.

After passing the final examination each candidate will be required to attend again at the India-office, with a view of entering into covenants and giving a bond for £1,000, jointly with two sureties, for the due fulfilment of the same. The stamps payable by civilians on these documents amount to £3. 10s.

Candidates rejected at the final examination of 1870 will in no case be allowed to present themselves for re-examination.

THE WEATHER IN BOMBAY is warmer this season than has been known for several years, but the state of the public health continues very satisfactory.

BENGAL.

MR. WILLIAM GREY.

Mr. William Grey has now been entrusted with the Government of that Presidency which his predecessor pronounced too large for the control and direction of a single individual. Of the antecedents of Mr. Grey we know little, except that he has held high appointments, and that he has not been distinguished by any particular excellence or remarkable ability in his administration of any one of them. At the same time, we are bound to say that we have not heard of his failing in his work or being unequal to the discharge of the duties of his various offices. His official career hitherto may be designated as one of respectable mediocrity. His is believed to be strongly imbued with all the prejudices of his order, and opposed to that policy of progress and encouragement of European enterprise initiated by Lord Canning, and considered to be so necessary, not only to the development of the wealth of the country, but to the expansion and consolidation of the English power in India. But it is not the first time we have seen statesmen trained in the school of non-progression, or "finality," as it was termed some years ago, cast off the trammels of early education and habit, and distinguish themselves by the advocacy of the largest and most liberal measures. * The greatest reforms of the present century, Catholic Emancipation, the abolition of the Corn laws, and Free Trade, were finally carried out by those statesmen who were at one time their greatest opponents. Mr. Grey may be made of the same plastic material, and, wisely submitting to the pressure of circumstances and the force of public opinion, he may adopt a policy of progress and encouragement of European enterprise which will stamp his administration, as the best and most successful that Bengal has hitherto known, and will assuredly redound greatly to his honour and fame. He has one of the best opportunities of distinguishing himself ever presented to the ambitious aspirant for office. He assumes the government of a presidency which has lately suffered from the greatest calamity it ever experienced, and is still threatened with a return of that calamity. In two important provinces he will find a great industry perishing, as it is asserted, from erroneous legislation. If he succeeds in warding off the threatened calamity, and restoring the decaying industry to its pristine prosperity, he will earn all the honours that will be bestowed upon him. He must discard from his mind the official idea that the Europeans, as a class, are unjust and harsh to their labourers. There seems to be a law which governs the idiosyncrasies and acts of the whole human race, and condemns a section of every class to be the victims of bad passions and criminal propensities. The law is so exact and so unerring in its operation that the averages of the suicides, the insane, and the criminals of a population can be calculated with almost mathematical certainty. But it would be the height of folly and injustice to legislate for all as if they were insane or criminals. Yet this is the legislation that has been meted out to the Europeans in the tea countries, and for the errors or criminal acts of a few the whole body are made to suffer.

Since writing the above, we have received a letter claiming for Mr. Grey the credit of being the consistent champion of the onward policy of Lord Canning as worked out in Oudh, and that he supported Sir Charles Wingfield in the dignified stand which that distinguished administrator made on some of the most novel and important questions of the day, and especially in respect to the Oudh tenure compromises which Mr. Grey supported in the Council Chamber. We readily give publicity to this letter, and although we have been accused of blind and unreasoning opposition to the administration of civilian governors, Mr. Grey will find that we are prepared to do him the fullest justice, and judge him only by his public acts.—Englishman.

THE UNION OF THE BANKS AND THE GOLD CURRENCY.

The Chamber of Commerce has taken the opportunity of the proposed amalgamation of the Banks of Bombay and Bengal to press upon the Government of India the necessity of an immediate introduction of a gold currency. Some months have now elapsed since the Currency Commission closed its labours, and published in Blue-book form the results of its inquiries, and the conclusions the Commission had arrived at. Their report, dated 4th October, 1866, states "that the demand for gold currency is unanimous throughout the country;" "that the introduction of gold would facilitate the establishment of the currency notes, outlying treasuries being assisted by such a measure towards the convertibility of the notes;" and "that the opinion is general, almost unanimous, that the currency should consist of gold, silver, and paper." This is the substance of their report, and yet we find, six months afterwards, that nothing has been done by the Government of India towards giving effect to their recommendations. The Governor-General in his reply to the Chamber of Commerce, under date 20th April, 1867, says "that in any proposals which the Governor-General in Council may submit to her Majesty's Government founded on the report of the Currency Commission, his Excellency will not fail to advert to the views of the Chamber of Commerce on the important subjects dealt with in the report." From the expression "may submit," we must infer that nothing has been as yet submitted, and that a measure of such vast importance to the commercial prosperity of India has not yet received the attention of the Government. We shall not, however, regret the delay if it will enable the Government to take advantage of the favourable opportunity, pointed out by the Chamber of Commerce, of simultaneously, with the introduction of a gold currency, transferring to the proposed amalgamated bank the entire management of the note circulation of the country, on principles analogous to those which control the note circulation of the Bank of England. The Chamber of Commerce is of opinion that a paper currency is of little practical advantage to the country, unless the notes can be converted into cash, without discount, at one or more centres in every province and district of India; and further, that this system cannot be successful until the department for the issue of the paper currency with its cash balances be entirely separated from the Government treasuries. We believe that the views of the Chamber of Commerce have the unanimous concurrence of the commercial community, and we trust that measures of such large importance will be pushed forward vigorously by the Government of India, and the legitimate demands of the people with regard to the introduction of a gold coinage, and the efficient working of the paper currency, be complied with.—Englishman.

OUR RELATIONS WITH CASHMERE.

The Maharaja of Cashmere is about to seek an audience of the Viceroy at Simla as the Dewan of his Highness did last year. Sir John Lawrence's reproofs to the latter for the obstructions put in the way of trade contrary to treaty were sufficiently emphatic, but we fear they have resulted in nothing. Action and not advice, or action following unheeded advice, will alone be effectual. The root of the evil lies in the fact that the Maharajah's highest officials, if not he himself, engage in trade contrary to the injunctions of Sir Henry Lawrence as well as to all sound policy. All our efforts at improving trade must fail so long as his ministers are allowed to command the market and compel traders to bring goods to them and to sell them at their own prices. They cannot do justice in cases of insolvency disputes, because they are themselves creditors of the estate. An attempt was made by a Kangra planter to get his tea into the Cashmere market, but Kripa Ram, being a trader in that article himself, has kept out all teas save his own. These ministers heap all kinds of illegal taxes on other traders' goods, whilst their own go free; thus they reap an enormous harvest, and are directly interested in keeping up high rates of duty. Although it may be true, unfortunately, that we cannot directly interfere to put a stop to this state of things, at all events we can, and are bound to, point out to the Maharaja the iniquity of the proceeding. It seems an extraordinary thing that, whilst we keep a strict watch over other States, and saddle even small principalities with agents, we leave Cashmere quite unwatched, and are chary even to timidity of offering advice. There is a gulf of difference between interference for our own interests, which is looked upon as the prelude to annexation, and remonstrance with a feudatory for the benefit of our subjects and of trade generally. Any amount of this latter kind of interference is only wholesome, and need excite no suspicion regarding our intentions. As the paramount Power we are bound to see that our tributaries exert themselves to give to the people entrusted to them the blessings of good government. It is mistaken kindness and a blunder in policy to yield to the opposition of these Rajahs to Western enlightenment. Such concessions are only interpreted as signs of weakness.—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE COMMISSIONERSHIP OF CUSTOMS.—Mr. Wigram Money, C.S., Commissioner of Customs, has, under the rule which limits a civilian's service to thirty-five years, been obliged to retire from a department in which he has laboured energetically and judiciously for many years past. The discussion as to his successor is still being carried on between the three local Governments concerned and Sir John Lawrence. We believe that the Central Provinces and the Punjab have remonstrated against Mr. Hume's appointment to the vacant post without their having a voice in the selection. At first it was thought that the matter of nomination would be settled by the appointment being broken up into three, the Governors of the North-West, Punjab, and Central Provinces being thus left to nominate their own men, but Sir John Lawrence has decided otherwise. He will not divide the existing appointment, and as the three provinces are not unanimous in their selection of a commissioner, he has, we believe, taken upon himself to issue decisive orders in the matter. The North-West, the Punjab, and the Central Provinces have each been invited to submit the names of their favourites for the post, and from among the three the Viceroy himself will elect the successful candidate. Under these circumstances we do not anticipate that Mr. Hume's nomination to the vacancy will be favourably considered by the Supreme Government.—Pioneer.

MORADABAD, April 29.—The unremitting exertions of our Collector, Mr. Manderson, have proved successful in checking to a great extent the progress of the fatal disease (cholera) which, I am glad to say, is decreasing gradually. The 29th Punjab Infantry have left the lines, as I told you in my last, and her Majesty's 36th have everything ready for moving should it be necessary, but I hope they will have no occasion for a change. The vernacular paper published here recommends the use of native medicines in preference to the cholera pills, as the former, it is stated, are better adapted to the inhabitants of this country. It also adds that the mortality among the patients who use the pills has been greater than among those treated by native physicians; it would be worth while to inquire into the matter and ascertain which of the two remedies is the most effectual.—Delhi Gazette.

SIR CECIL BEADON, it is said, has written a defensive minute on the report of the Famine Commission, and has brought to the notice of the Indian Government that he received a private letter from Mr. Ravenshaw in June last, showing that even up to the date of the letter the Commissioner, though he had advised the importation of rice into Orissa, was still impressed with the belief that there was ample in the country to last until the next harvest. The following is an extract from the private letter above alluded to:—"People are beginning now to say there is little or no rice in the country, though up to the present month I have received the most confident assurances from all classes that there was ample to last until next season's crop. I still think there is, and it will probably be more evident when the Government rice arrives, as I feel confident the effect will be to lower the local market price, which has gone up to its present rate partly through combinations among the dealers, who have very naturally taken the opportunity to make a harvest, and partly from a vague idea among the zemindars and groundholders that worse times are coming, which has induced them to keep their stores instead of selling. This is also natural. I was called on by the board to advise whether Government should import rice, and after careful consideration of the exceedingly uncertain state of the local market and the excessive distress, I decided on advising importation. In this I have been subsequently supported by replies received from collectors."—Indian Daily News.

FORGERY AND FALSE PRETENCES.—At the Agra High Court Mr. F. Goldsmith has been tried under the following circumstances:—On the 12th of February Mr. Goldsmith went to Mr. Ellis (senior) and produced a paper purporting to be a telegram from the agent of the Oriental Bank of Bombay to himself giving him authority to draw on that bank to the extent of Rs. 1,200 on account of dividends. The prisoner then gave a cheque for Rs. 1,200 on the Bank of Bombay, out of which he told Mr. Ellis to pay himself Rs. 781-8 and return the balance. Mr. Ellis replied that he was not then able to pay the money, when he (Mr. Goldsmith) urged him to let him have Rs. 118-8 to pay his servants; this amount he agreed to pay him the following evening, and the remainder when he recovered the money from the bank. Having reason to suspect the genuineness of the telegram, he sent his son to make inquiries at the telegraph-office, when it was ascertained that no such telegram had passed through the office. It seems that the prisoner owed Mr. Ellis Rs. 781-8 for goods sold, cash lent, furniture on hire, &c., which sum he promised to pay from the branch of the Oriental bank. After giving the telegram to Mr. Ellis, Mr. Goldsmith it seems left the station, when a telegram was sent to the branch bank at Bombay, inquiring if the prisoner had any assets or funds there, and whether the agent had authorised him to draw Rs. 1,200. A reply was received to the effect that "Goldsmith has no account here, and we never telegraphed to him to draw on us." The jury returned a verdict of guilty against the prisoner, who was sentenced to nine months' rigorous imprisonment.

NEW LIGHT-SHIP FOR THE MUTLAH SANDHEADS.—The Government of India has sanctioned the construction in the Government Dockyard of a new wooden light vessel at a cost of Rs. 90,000 for the Mutlah Sandheads to replace the Saugor light-ship, which has been reported to be in an irreparable state.—Indian Daily News and Bengal Hurkaru, May 2.

COURT-MARTIAL ON CAPTAIN CUNNINGHAM.—Letters from Rawul Pindee tell us that the Court-martial on Captain Cunningham reassembled on the 23rd ult., when the prisoner proceeded to read his defence. This, one of informants adds, was a document of "enormous length," so that after about seventy pages had been got through the Court adjourned till the following day, when the remainder was put in. We have different accounts of the defence, some saying it bore very little on the charges, but contained severe animadversions on several individuals, especially the officers of the 88th; other accounts describe it as annihilating Captain Cunningham's adversaries. As we intend to publish the report of the proceedings when they reach us, and we are told they are on the way, we commit ourselves to neither party, and think it better, with due thanks to those who have furnished us with their impressions, to defer publishing anything on either side till the report is before us. At the conclusion of the address for the defence the Court adjourned to Saturday, the 27th, to enable the prosecutor to reply. We may remark, in passing, that the sooner this practice of adjourning courts to enable people to reply is abandoned the better. Why adjourn a court to enable a man to reply? And, on the other hand, we may ask, why keep an officer under arrest for eleven months without bringing him to trial at all? The whole affair is bad. But to proceed. When the 27th arrived the prosecutor was ill, and could not reply! So the prosecutor and the Judge-Advocate had had the defence they were to reply to before them for three or four days, after which the prosecutor fell sick, and could not reply at all till he got well!—Delhi Gazette.

—The Pioneer adds on the same subject:—From what we can learn the scene in the Court-martial-room at Rawul Pindee during the reading of Captain Cunningham's defence must have been exciting to a degree. The document from which he read the defence consisted of eighty pages of foolscap closely written, the reading of which occupied about five hours. The defence was both searching and elaborate—not to speak of the very objectionable manner in which the names of several gallant officers and honourable men were introduced—touching every point which had the most remote bearing on the facts of the case at issue, and lashing with unsparing severity every officer of the gallant 88th who was in any way connected with the prosecution. Nor did the Judge Advocate-general who watches the proceedings, nor the prosecutor, Colonel Betts, escape their share of the ridicule and vituperation so freely indulged in. It is not too much to say that if the allegations contained in the defence be true, several officers will be seriously compromised, and the case of Captain Cunningham will be as fruitful in sowing dragons' teeth as was, a year or two ago, the case of Paymaster Smales. After all it is well, perhaps, that these huge military scandals should crop up year after year. Without them society would have nothing to talk about, nothing with which to wile away the long dreary hours of an Indian summer. Everything has its use in the economy of nature, and Captain Cunningham's Court-martial, if it serves no better purpose, will at least afford food for conversation and amusement in every mess-room in the army for some months to come. We believe it is his intention, immediately the Court closes its proceedings, to send a petition to Parliament against the illegality of the trial, and, what he considers, the unfairness of the proceedings, though on what grounds, or with what prospect of success, we are quite at a loss to discover.

THE ESTIMATE FOR THE BUDGET FOR PUBLIC WORKS for the year 1867-68 is published in the Gazette of Saturday, from which we see that the increase under this head of expense exceeds that for the previous year by £417,500. The increase is principally under the heads of military, civil buildings, and agricultural works, whilst the principal decrease is under that of communications. This decrease arises in a great measure from the expense of many of the roads having been transferred to the local funds, although much remains to be done to relieve the revenue of this charge in Bengal, the Punjab, Central Provinces, British Burmah, and Oude. The increase under the head of military is owing to the advanced state of the arrangements for the permanent barracks; and in future years this item will be much reduced, as well as, it is to be hoped, that for civil buildings, which is at present swollen by the construction of large central jails all over India. The total estimate for agricultural works amounts to Rs. 946,900, showing an increase of Rs. 322,225, and is the largest amount that the Government considers could be expended with advantage at present. The grant for repairs is £54,081 less than in the previous year, owing, as in the case of communications, to the transfer of these works to civil and local funds. The expenses of the establishment have slightly increased, and amounts to 15.57 per cent. on the total grant, a percentage less than in the three previous years. The mysterious charge of contingencies is reduced nearly £7,000, and there is a slight reduction under the head of Tools. The total estimate amounts to £14,259,000, and the charges have been very properly distinguished as ordinary and extraordinary, thus enabling it to be seen at once what may be considered as the permanent necessary outlay for public works in this country.

PUNJABI POETRY.—Indian Opinion attempts, in a translation, to convey to the English reader an idea of a Punjabi ballad recently sung in the streets of Delhi. After Nicholson's reception of Sir John Lawrence's commands to take Delhi and his death have been described, the ballad goes on:—

When Nicholson to Delhi came, right solemnly he swore,
If God will only spare my life, her name shall be no more,
Proud Jumna's flood shall wash her streets, her battlements I'll raze,
And nought but blacken'd mounds shall meet the wond'ring traveller's gaze.....
But British hearts are merciful, and vengeance is forgot, E'en injur'd serfs obtain their rights, and bless their happy lot;
Where erst a vicious Emperor sat, an honest ruler sways, Aiding the ruined citizens, who murmur grateful praise.
Nicholson's dying message to Sir John to care for his native troops is then given, and an account of Sir John's letter to the Queen:—
The Queen, with gentle sympathy, with tears his letter read,
And then her Chieftain's mother called, whose only son was dead.
She soothed the mother's bitter grief, and from her royal neck,
Weeping, a priceless necklet took, her sobbing guest to deck;
"Oh! mother's heart be comforted, nor mourn thy soldier son, God owns thy child, in England's Queen thou hast a mother won."

There can be no doubt, says the Lahore journal, of the spontaneity and sincerity of this testimonial.

MURDER OF AN ENGLISHMAN IN THE KHYBER PASS.—PESHAWUR, April 28.—Mr. Bean, the manager of Romanini's Circus, is dead. He died last Monday morning, another and the last victim of Afghan treachery. Thus ends the latest tragedy played in the valley of Peshawur. It is impossible, and it would be unjust, to ignore the part which General Haly has played in it. A kinder hearted general it would be difficult to find in India; and, therefore, he will feel the death of Mr. Bean the more keenly. But kind-hearted people are not always the wisest, and General Haly was very far from wise when he patronised so warmly as he did the murderer of Mr. Bean. Nay, more, the general was very unwise, for, in spite of warnings given, it is said, by the local authorities, he would be stubborn and patronise Koomadan Auzim, the murderer of Mr. Bean, when that villain came down from Cabul to this place and represented himself as the commander-in-chief of the Cabul army. Regarding Koomadan Auzim as a friend of the general's, and, therefore, as a friend of the English, Mr. Bean, after pressing solicitations, was induced to accompany Koomadan when he left Peshawur for Cabul. He took with him his circus; and Koomadan promised him he should realise a fortune at Cabul. At the Khyber Pass, however, Koomadan threw off his mask, became a murderer, and poor Mr. Bean was his victim. Without further teaching henceforth General Haly should know how far to be courteous and patronising and entertaining to Afghan visitors. If what he now knows will not teach him, then he will not be taught, though one rose from the dead. The whole community have come forward most handsomely with their aid for the relief of the widow and orphans Mr. Bean has left behind him to mourn his loss; and General Haly has generously responded to the call.—Delhi Gazette.

THE RIVER HOOGHLY.—The state of the river Hooghly is again causing considerable anxiety with reference to the passage up and down of ships and steamers drawing a large draught. The P. and O. screw steamer Golconda arrived in the river on Friday last, and on the evening of that day reached Diamond Harbour, from whence the passengers and mails were conveyed to town by the steam-tug Atlas. The Golconda, however, has brought much merchandise, the delay in the delivery of which has, as a matter of course caused considerable inconvenience. The pilot of the Golconda, we are informed, is of opinion that the steamer will not be able to leave her present anchorage until to-morrow. Under these circumstances it is the duty of the Banks and authorities to publish such a statement of the condition of the different channels of the river as shall satisfy the public that the fault is with the river, and that the pilot is in no way to blame. If it be shown that the river is just now impassable to ships drawing nineteen feet and upwards, the public will have a fair ground on which to demand from the Government of India some attempt to improve the navigation.—Englishman, May 3.

SALE OF GOVERNMENT JEWELS.—Messrs. Hamilton and Co. will sell by public auction the presents made to the Government at the late Durbar at Agra. Amongst them are some remarkably fine specimens of native jewellery and cloths. There are many things that would be of interest to the curious that would scarcely otherwise find purchasers amongst Europeans. There is a round shield with four bosses. These bosses are in reality four pistols. They are rather pistol mortars, for they have no length of barrel to speak of. The idea is rather fanciful than one of utility, we should think. There are some peculiar silks that merit attention, even though they would not commend themselves to European taste. Remarkable for delicacy of workmanship are the large ivory chowries, to form which the ivory is split into narrow threads little thicker than horse-hair. It must be an operation of considerable delicacy to form these, as also similar articles in sandal wood.

DELHI, May 7.—I am sorry to say we had two funerals last evening, one of which was the result of cholera, the victim being Captain Coghlan, of the 106th regiment, who appears to have taken the disease on his way down from Meen Meer, and died at the Victoria Hotel, after about twelve hours' illness. The remains of the ill-fated officer was buried with military honours, the highlanders, headed by the 25th P.I. band, forming the funeral party.

The other was that of Mr. Hodges, brother of Lady Rundheer Sing, of Kuppoothulla, who died apparently of some disease of the heart, but not of cholera, and his death was very sudden. I am sorry to say that cholera appears to be increasing; this is probably owing to the heat which has now set in, and it is not likely that we shall be able to show a clean bill of health until the monsoon sets in. But we must hope for the best.

THE GRIEVANCES OF THE PILOT SERVICE.—The Commission sitting at Bankshall for the general adjustment of grievances in the pilot service has as yet eventuated in nothing except display. All the paraphernalia of inflated officialism has been paraded before the wondering gaze of the somewhat mystified pilots, but without producing any substantial results. We have been informed that a hue and cry has been raised in respect to ferreting out the antecedents of those who have within late years joined the service, but with what object is as yet unknown. We do not exactly approve of this delicate curiosity; it had better be left alone, except the crucial test of eligibility to the distinguished position of an appointment in the Bengal Marine be applied indiscriminately to all connected with it. If such a movement is likely to do good it should have been initiated before; the time has been allowed to slip by when it might have been turned to good account. However, if such be the pleasure of the ruling powers, we say amen, and hope to see the Bankshall Test Act put in force from the Master Attendant downwards. It is not improbable that some awkward disclosures will creep out in the course of examination. It is said that incongruous elements have been smuggled into the service, and that the genealogical Test Act will bring more to the surface than the commission has yet fathomed. This would not be strange; in all large services we may meet individuals whom accident or good fortune has placed in uncongenial positions, but this in no way obstructs their honourably distinguishing themselves and acquiring the goodwill of their fellows. It would not be inconsistent for the Bankshall in playing out their farce to require baptismal certificates of age, and good conduct testimonials from parish clergymen, to vouch for the steady and regular habits of their employes. This farce of the marine authorities reminds us of the bestowal of the doctor's degree at Cambridge. Query "Quid est creare?" Answer, "Eunihil facere." Ergo te doctorem creamus." Satisfactory, perhaps, but hardly complimentary. We remember a caution about glass houses and stones. A word to the wise!!—Indian Daily News, April 26.

IMPORTS AND EXPORTS.—The Gazette contains a return of the total imports and exports of India, including articles free of duty from the years 1860-61 to 1865-66. During the last year the amount of seaborne exported goods paying duty amounted to Rs. 11,79,36,395 on which a duty of Rs. 49,18,072 was realised, whilst the value of exported articles free of duty was no less than Rs. 50,79,77,619. The amount of duty realised was considerably less than in any of the previous years returns. The total value of seaborne goods imported liable to duty in 1865-66 was Rs. 25,99,69,247, and of articles free of duty Rs. 3,51,85,009. The duty on the former amounted to Rs. 3,12,97,150, a sum smaller than that realised in any of the other years with the exception of 1860-61.

THE HOFF MEMORIAL.—At a meeting of the District Grand Lodge of Bengal, held on the 21st March last, we learn from the Indian Freemasons' Friend, that the report of the Hoff Memorial Committee was read and approved. The family of the deceased Mr. Hoff suggested that the funds collected should be expended in the erection of a monument at the cost of Rs. 600 in the Scotch Cemetery, of a mural tablet in St. Andrew's Kirk, and the balance of the money be expended on a suitable memorial in Freemasons' hall. The Committee objected that the adoption of this course could end only in the insignificance of each memorial, and therefore recommended that a "handsome monument, fit to preserve the memory of the late esteemed Brother," be erected in the Scotch Kirk; a drawing of the memorial to be hung in Freemasons' Hall, and a photograph of it sent to every lodge in the province. The District Grand Master approved of the Committee's recommendation, believing it would be more satisfactory that a handsome memorial should be set up in the Scotch Kirk, where it could be seen alike by masons and non masons, as a proof of the respect and esteem in which Mr. Hoff was held, not by Freemasons only, but also by every one who knew him, and especially by the members of St. Andrew's Church, of which he had been an elder.—Pioneer, April 24.

CHOLERA AT UMRITSUR.—It affords us much pleasure to announce that on the 2nd of May no new cases of cholera had occurred in Umrtsur, where the sporadic outbreaks had been somewhat extensive both among the pilgrims and the inhabitants who had not been to Hurdwar. The total number of cases was, we believe, close on one hundred and eighty, and of deaths somewhere about seventy. The measures taken to meet the threatening evil are not only highly spoken of by our Lahore correspondent, but confirmed from the Umrtsur district, and we congratulate the Government of the Punjab on having succeeded in arresting the progress of a disease which, if unchecked, might have carried death into thousands of families throughout the length and breadth of the land.—Delhi Gazette.

THE "CRUSADOR."—We hear that a vessel recently arrived in port fell in, off Ceylon, with the Crusador, bound for Calcutta. The latter steered to westwards, and disappeared. Shortly afterwards smoke was seen in the direction of the Crusador, as if a steamer were approaching. However, this did not continue long, for though what appeared from the mast-head to be smoke and flame shortly disappeared. It is possible that a vessel may have perished from fire or explosion, as nothing more was seen of it. Of course, it is possible that this smoke or fire was not from the Crusador, but if that vessel does not turn up shortly the fears respecting it may be realised.—Indian Daily News.

THE LATE ACCIDENT IN THE HOOGLEY.—We have lately heard a rumour, to which, however, we can scarcely give credence, that Captain Taylor, late of the Calcutta, has been again appointed to the command of a steamer by the railway company, in addition to his having received his pay during the time of his imprisonment, and having had his law costs paid. Rumours of this kind are always to a greater or less extent prejudicial to a public company, and we trust, therefore, that the board of agency will lose no time in setting the public right upon the point.—Englishman.

THE DEB RAJSHIP is vacant in Bhootan. The arm of the Penlows, and Jungpeas and Prepenlows is directed towards the Deb Rajship. Angdafring is at present the most powerful, and has collected a good number of troops, threatening every one, in case of his non-election, to plunder the interior of Bhootan. All other Penlows, including the noted Tongso-Penlow, are exerting themselves also to secure for themselves the higher dignity. The council are in favour of the former.—Indian Daily News.

MR. T. OLDHAM, LL.D., Superintendent of the Geological Survey of India, has been directed by the Government to proceed to Europe accompanied by his assistant, Dr. Stoliczka, on duty connected with the Geological Survey. His absence will last six months, and will terminate before the beginning of the next field season.

EARNINGS OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.—The return of traffic for the week ending April 14, 1867, shows the coaching receipts to have been £15,222. 17s. 10d., and the goods receipts, £33,073. 15s. 11d.; total, £48,296. 13s. 9d., or per mile of railway, £42. 14s. 1d. The total earnings during the corresponding week last year were £44,979. 11s. 11d., or £39. 16s. 8d. per mile open.

THE 88TH CONNAUGHT RANGERS.—The head-quarters and 400 men of the 88th Connaught Rangers, together with 250 of the 3rd Battalion Rifle Brigade, have been ordered to proceed from Rawul Pindee as a working party to the hills for the purpose of making the road between Murree and Abbottabad.—Delhi Gazette.

MR. F. MACNAGHTEN, the Judge of the Small Cause Court, at Jubbulpore, died at Mussoorie on the 27th April. The administration have lost in him an efficient Civil judge, and Jubbulpore one of its best beloved residents. His epitaph may be briefly written—"He never harmed any one."

THE ACCIDENT TO LIEUTENANT KEITH, R.A.—We regret to state that Lieutenant Keith, of the Royal Artillery at Kamptee, when out shooting tigers in the Wurdah district on Monday last, was mauled by one he had shot. It appears that that officer was out hunting with two others, and wounded a tiger, which turned upon him and bit him severely about the legs. No bones were broken. The animal was dying at the time, which will account for Lieutenant Keith having escaped with his life. He was brought in by the railway on Wednesday morning last, and is now doing well. We are told he got off cheaply, but the shock he has received and his general indifferent health may compel him to take a furlough to Europe. Since the foregoing was in type we have to announce that Lieutenant Keith after his arrival at Nagpore gradually sank from sheer exhaustion and expired at a quarter to three o'clock P.M., at the Nagpore Hotel. Captain Mac-Grigor, R.A., and Mr. Dempster were present. His remains were removed to Kamptee on Wednesday evening, and were interred with military honours on the following morning. The latest particulars connected with the death of the lamented officer appear to be that Lieut. Keith with two brother officers went out for a shikah about three weeks since. A fortnight ago they were after a large boar which, suddenly charging Lieut. Keith, who was mounted, bowled him and his horse over and over. He had his right arm and side paralysed by the fall, was insensible for about thirty hours, and totally disabled for sport for ten days. On the 22nd instant about 2 P.M. the party was on a beat in high jungle; the two other gentlemen got up into their trees, but Lieutenant Keith had not strength to climb the one allotted to him. He consequently stood at the foot of it in high grass. A large tiger bounded by, which Lieutenant Keith mortally wounded. It passed him about twenty yards off, but having spied, turned and attacked him. Keith had not the power, so weak was he from the effect of the recent accident, to cock his second rifle. The beast knocked him down by a blow on the side, and after seizing him three times with his mouth in the thigh and leg died on the top of that officer. He was, however, able to crawl away and await the arrival of his brother sportsmen, who immediately sent him in here with all despatch. The real cause of death was not the result of any injuries actually inflicted upon him by the tiger, but the shock that the nervous system must have received within a frame already weakened and shattered by the previous accident. — Central India Times, April 27.

LORD NAPIER ON JAIL HOSPITALS.—The Madras Times says:—We have had another minute from the pen of Lord Napier on one of his pet subjects. His inspection of various jails and hospitals throughout the presidency has not satisfied him that proper precautions are taken by the Government for the welfare and comfort of the prisoners. His last minute appears to have been the result of a visit to the Guindy Jail, which Lord Napier found entirely destitute of hospital furniture. The sight of a wounded man "lying on a rug on the floor with his foot supported on two bricks, while a circle of ashes had been laid round the fractured member in order to repel the aggressions of the ants," would appear to have impressed Lord Napier with the necessity of providing bedsteads for all patients in hospitals. He objects to laying the sick on the ground; the floor may be damp; the earth may be impregnated with offensive or infectious matters; in cases of sores or fractures it must be painful to the sick person; it must be inconvenient to medical attendants to handle patients deposited on such a low level; and finally the practice is repugnant to European decency and civilisation. These are Lord Napier's chief reasons for desiring to improve the condition of Jail hospitals; and though they are highly creditable to his humanity, we think his lordship is somewhat too sensitive on the question of natives lying on the bare ground. To a European such a practice may be suggestive of infinite wretchedness, but to the majority of those who are provided with accommodation in our Indian jails mother earth is a far more natural resting place than the iron bedstead which Lord Napier's philanthropy would supply. His lordship is also of opinion that prisoners should not be kept in chains. In connection with the subject of jail accommodation throughout the Presidency a committee has been appointed to inquire into the whole question. Messrs. Sim, of the Board of Revenue, R. S. Ellis, the Sanitary Commissioner, and Colonel Wilson, the Inspector-General of Jails, form the committee.

CAROLINA PADDY.—The Collector of North Arcot has reported some interesting experiments in the cultivation of Carolina paddy, tending to show that this rice may be cultivated in India with considerable advantage to the natives, who have expressed very favourable opinions on it as an article of food. In this case the cultivation was carried out in the same way as with the native paddy, and the result was that the out-turn in every case was considerably in favour of the Carolina rice.

THE SHOE QUESTION AGAIN.—We read in the Bangalore Herald:—We observe that the shoe question is again likely to be brought forward. The Maharajah of Cashmere is reported to have applied to the Supreme Government to insist that every British officer who may be introduced to him should take off his boots, and sit on the floor before him. And again, Mr. Temple is not likely to let the matter rest as his predecessors have done—that is, if we understand anything of his rather tough disposition. Any way, we cannot see the propriety of Englishmen so humbling themselves before native princes. Government shirking a rather disagreeable question has, as yet, done nothing to vindicate the honours of its officers, and it therefore rests with Mr. Temple to put lines in rest and demolish the ugly bugbear that others before him have discreetly refused to approach. We are not aware that the Maharajah of Mysore exacts this mark of respect from the commissioner, or any other Government official, or military officer; and we are persuaded that were the matter represented in a proper light not even the Nizam would care to object to the custom being done away with. If we mistake not, Mr. Temple is just the man to strongly object to his own dignity being compromised in any way; and we are sure his countrymen would warmly applaud, and have a still greater respect for him, were he to refuse to appear in stockings before the Nizam. The question is one of much interest, and as luck would have it, Mr. Temple, by the exercise of a little decision, has the opportunity of setting it at rest once and for all, and of thus deserving all sorts of kullos at the hands of all Anglo-Indians, official or non-official.

TREMENDOUS HAILSTORMS IN THE NORTHERN DISTRICTS.—In the early part of last month the Collector of the Kistna district reported to Government that on the evening of the 27th March there occurred a storm of wind, accompanied by rain and hail, at the village of Goveravaram, in the Nandigama talook in this district. The hailstones were as big as limes. They continued to fall for about a quarter of an hour, and lay on the ground to the depth of a span. Men and cattle were reported to have been severely bruised by the hailstones, which remained in heaps unmelted till nine o'clock A.M. the next day. The Collector of Bellary also reports that on the afternoon and night of the 28th and on the 29th March, a very severe hailstorm passed over this district. In Adoni, to the north of the talook, at Nukkulmittah and other villages, the hail is described as being of the size from cocoanuts to woodapples, and lying to one foot in depth, in some places destroying the wet and dry crops. In Gooty at eight P.M. on the 28th the hail was described as ranging from the size of bullets to limes; some sheep were killed and crops destroyed. The villages indicated are Hunchinbal, Karakamookkala, and Konacondla. In Anantapur talook the size of the hail stones is apparently incredible. I give, however, the local report, that in a field of the village of Bondalavada some of the stones were two-thirds of a cubic yard in size; in the village of Chadula a cubic span, and in other villages of 6 seers, or 3 lbs. weight; this last was verified by the Tahsildar. Two men, 2,470 sheep, and eight cattle were killed, and some thatched houses were destroyed. In Alur on the 28th and 29th March, to south of the talook, at Goommanur and other ten or twelve villages, the hail was described as ranging from the size of cocoanuts to mangoes, and lying half a yard in depth in some villages, destroying the dry crops; two men were killed, and one was carried away by the flood in a nullah close to Goommanur. Looking from the talook of Hospett on that evening, a vast pile of electric clouds was seen towards the east, similar to those which collect on the western coast before the commencement of the monsoon. I have had no intelligence of hailstorms in the western talooks, or from those furthest south, so that as far as I am at present informed the storm must have extended over the north, centre, and south-east of the district. When further details are received regarding the loss of crops a report will be made, if any, and what consideration should be shown to the sufferers. The collector of Cuddapah reports that a severe storm, accompanied by hailstones of extraordinary size, was experienced in different villages of the three talooks, Pulivendala, Royachoty, and Kadiri. In the Pulivendala talook seven individuals received serious wounds and lost their lives. The storm in the other villages swept away the standing crops and stacks, and also killed some sheep.—Madras Times, May 2.

LADY NAPIER, it is announced, will depart for England by the French steamer which leaves Madras about the beginning of June. We are happy to say that this visit home is not undertaken for sanitary reasons, her ladyship enjoying very good health in this climate, but purely on account of private and family affairs. Dr. Porteous, deputy inspector general of hospitals, and the medical attendant on the Governor, will accompany her ladyship to Europe. It is expected that the Governor will start on his tour to Bellary and Kurnool soon after Lady Napier has left Madras. We believe her ladyship's stay in England will extend over a few weeks only.—Madras Times.

THE OPERA.—During the last week Madras has had a decided novelty in the matter of public amusement. Some of the leading members of the local Philharmonic Society played a portion of Verdi's Il Trovatore at the College-Hall Theatre on Friday evening last. Considering the enormous difficulties of the undertaking, and the comparatively limited resources at command, the result was most satisfactory. The performance is to be repeated twice more, so that Italian Opera may be said to have made a footing even in an out of the way corner of the world like Madras.—Madras Times.

TRIAL FOR FORGERY.—There have been few cases of general interest at the present sessions, which are expected to close this week. An East Indian clerk in the Oriental Bank named Yelsmore was tried for forgery, and sentenced to five years' rigorous imprisonment.

THE HON. W. RIERSON ARBUTHNOT has taken his seat as a member of the Legislative Council in the place of the Hon. John Young, who recently proceeded to England. Mr. Arbuthnot is a member of the local mercantile firm of that name.

DEATH OF LIEUTENANT DUNCAN.—The death at the Presidency of Lieutenant George Duncan, Quartermaster 3rd Battalion 60th Rifles, is announced. His death is attributed to the bite of a dog which is said to have had hydrophobia.

RUMOURED CAPTURE OF THE NEPHEW OF NANA SAHIB.

The correspondent who supplies the Delhi Gazette with Jottings from the Deccan writes to that journal as follows:—

"The capital of his Highness the Nizam's dominions seems to be still regarded as a good rallying point for fugitive rebels, as one Venkut Rao, calling himself a nephew of the Nana Sahib, has just been arrested in the town. You may remember that some fourteen months ago an agent of the Bithoor faction was captured in Malwa, which led to some most important discoveries in this province. The treasonable correspondence which was seized established the fact beyond any doubt that intrigues for the purpose of rekindling the flames of rebellion were still being carried on by the Rao Sahib and his agents, and that amongst other plans they hoped to be able to form a district in the Nizam's dominions, with a view to the establishment of a quarter from whence they could carry on their schemes with less chance of detection than within British territory. This information was communicated to the Resident at Hyderabad by Colonel Meade, the Governor-General's agent in Central India; but the Nizam's Government were not disposed to attach much importance to it. Ultimately, however, a rumour arose in the capital itself that an emissary of the Nana's was actually in the city. But the movements of the agent were so guarded, that it was difficult to obtain the slightest clue to his precise whereabouts. For some time, therefore, the authorities could only suspect what was going on and remain on the alert. At length one of the Rao Sahib's followers, a Poorbeah, and apparently a discharged sepoy, was apprehended, and with difficulty it was obtained from him that his master, one Kishen Rao, had, during the mutinies, held command of a large body of rebels in Central India, which had eventually dispersed near Oojein, on the approach of a British column. Kishen Rao had fled from the neighbourhood of Oojein, with about ten followers, making his way through Baroda, Poona, and Sholapore, and eventually reaching Hyderabad, where he had set himself to work to excite a rebellion against the Nizam and our Government, and when his promises of large reward had, it is believed, enlisted for him a large number of sympathisers, who would have become his followers the moment his standard was raised. This was the information procured from the arrested Poorbeah, and which no doubt furnished the incentive to the great pursuit after the Nana, which ended so disastrously at Cawnpore. Some time unfortunately elapsed before the Poorbeah could be persuaded to disclose his master's place of concealment, and during that interval Kishen Rao managed to effect his escape. He was at once followed, and on several occasions the police were close on his track, but he succeeded in escaping, and all trace of him was for some months lost. Subsequently Major Nuttall, the superintendent of police at Sholapore, apprehended at Python, on the Godavery, immediately on the frontier of the Sholapore collectorate, a Brahmin who was recognised to be Kishen Rao. About thirty-five of his followers were arrested in Hyderabad and sentenced to various punishments. There cannot now be any doubt respecting the false scent upon which the police were let loose, the alleged Nana being neither more nor less than one of Kishen Rao's gang, and very remotely indeed connected with the arch-fiend of Bithoor. Kishen Rao seems to have been confounded with the Nana, to whom he was related, hence all the blind Brahmin's revelations about the Nana Sahib having been in Poona and other places that he named. All that was previously dark and mysterious has since been made clear. Kishen Rao was the Nana to the blind Brahmin, being the legitimate heir to the throne of the Deccan, after the heir by adoption, Dhundoo Punt, had died in the jungles of the Terai. With all these plain and stubborn facts before them, and with the report of the Nana's death confirmed by the Nepaulese Durbar, most people were astonished that the Bombay Government ever entertained any belief in Kishen Rao, as it was only in the event of the Nana's death being clearly established that Kishen Rao, the heir presumptive to the honours of Mahratta royalty, dared have advanced the claim which so effectively misled the police spies of Major Nuttall. It is to be hoped, now that Mr. Temple is in Hyderabad, the real facts of this new emissary of the Nana's will be gone into quietly, and not raise false alarms of the Nana's being alive. I will keep you informed of what transpires on this man's trial. I believe myself he is one of Kishen Rao's gang."

THE PROPOSED AMALGAMATION OF THE BANKS.—A committee, consisting of certain influential shareholders of the Bank of Bombay, was recently appointed to consult with the directors as to the best plan of carrying out a reconstruction of the bank, instead of accepting Mr. Dickson's plan for uniting a new bank of Bombay with that of Bengal as the basis of one State bank for all India. The joint committee reported on the 1st inst., and have recommended to the public a complete scheme for establishing a "new Bank of Bombay," the capital to be one crore of rupees (£1,000,000), in 20,000 shares of Rs. 500 each, and for half the number of shares they invite applications at once, both from the old shareholders and the general public; but the former are to have the preference in the allotment, in the proportion of one new share offered for every two shares in the old bank. The interests of the shareholders are still further conserved, under the arrangement proposed by the committee, by the entire reserve in their favour of the second issue of 10,000 new shares. The scheme keeps primarily in view the necessity for at once creating a bank of sufficient strength for all the demands upon it, hence it is required that the applications for shares shall be accompanied by a deposit of five per cent., which on allotment is to be at once made up to half the price of the share, and the balance is to be paid two months afterwards. Stringent terms as to interest and forfeiture are laid down in regard to this first issue of shares. The feasibility of this project of reconstruction may be fairly inferred from certain spirited offers that have already been made to take up the first batch of shares; but its practicability seems dependent on the Local Government consenting to transfer their deposit account to the new bank, at least for the remainder of the term of nine months, during which the present bank holds its agreement. As this reconstituted bank will start free from all liabilities, under good auspices, and is likely to prove the means of restoring a healthy feeling to the monetary affairs of Bombay, it is in the last degree unlikely that the Local Government will do any other than cordially support the project. A deputation from the joint committee has waited upon his Excellency the Governor at Matheran, with a view to ascertain what support the new bank might expect from the Government. His Excellency expressed himself unable then to make any definite promise in the matter; but assured the deputation that the Government of India should be clearly informed that a reconstruction of the bank was possible, if no difficulty should be experienced in raising funds. Mr. Dickson, the secretary of the Bank of Bengal, has arrived in Bombay, and has had several interviews with the directors of the Local Bank regarding his amalgamation project. No definite arrangement one way or the other has yet been arrived at; but Mr. Dickson has telegraphed to his directors asking permission to modify to some extent the terms originally offered to Bombay. As soon as possible a meeting of the shareholders will be held, when they will be requested to decide between reconstruction and amalgamation.—Times of India.

JUNG BAHADOR.—It will be remembered some months ago there was mentioned an intention on the part of Sir Jung Bahador, the Rajah of Nepal, to proceed to Europe on another visit to England. That intention fell through, and it would be supposed—as in the case in our own Presidency of the Chief of Jumkhundee the other day—that Jung Bahador's courage had failed him at last when he had to take the final step. This, however, we are assured was not the real cause of the Nepal chief giving up his very wise and commendable project; but a correspondent informs us it was by the Indian Government that he was constrained to remain at home. It seems on the face of it inexplicable that either the Viceroy or the Foreign-office should check the Nepal chief from a step which could scarcely fail to be of great service both to himself and his outlying principality. But we are assured that such was the case; and, moreover, the method in which our warlike tributary was cowed into submission was the reverse of dignified on the part of the authorities. After discussions had proved unavailing, the threat was conveyed to the chief—indirectly, no doubt—that if he went to England the scale of salutes that he is entitled to should be reduced by two guns. This had the desired effect, for Jung Bahador knew that the reduction in the scale of outward honour would be construed by his own people and the neighbouring chiefs into a serious mark of disfavour, rather than endure which he chose to remain in his hilly fastnesses. We repeat, the purpose of such a paltry and invidious proceeding cannot even be surmised, but these, we are assured, are the facts.—Times of India.

THE CIVIL WAR IN AFGHANISTAN.—Such of our readers as are interested in Afghanistan news will remember that about the same time in January last when Ameer Shere Ali advanced from Candahar against the Cabul party, Fyz Mahomed, who had also set up for independence in Balkh, was (from the north) also moving against Cabul, in nominal alliance and co-operation with Shere Ali, and that he inflicted a severe defeat on Surwar Khan, Azim Khan's son, who had been sent to guard the passes of the Hindoo Khoosh towards Bamecan against his approach. Shere Ali's defeat, the evacuation of Candahar and flight to Herat, rendered it for some time doubtful whether Fyz Mahomed, notwithstanding his success, might not be obliged to tender his submission to the Cabul rulers. News, however, has been received that on the 23rd April Fyz Mahomed scattered Surwar Khan's force to the winds; that the latter, with eighteen mounted followers, had fled back to Cabul, all the rest of his men having either been killed, captured, or induced to desert to the enemy; and that Fyz Mahomed now openly declared his intention of marching straight on to attack the capital. There is much talk of Shere Ali proceeding to join Fyz Mahomed, but as yet he is still at Herat, his son, Zakoob Khan, being in command at Furrah. In Cabul the Ameer Afzul Khan is greatly disturbed by Fyz Mahomed's victory, and is anxiously calling up his son, Abdool Rehman, with reinforcements from Candahar. It will thus be seen that the bits of glass in the kaleidoscope have tumbled into a new figure; but Afzul Khan, whom the Indian Government recognised, holds his own as yet.—Times of India.

THE VICEROY arrived at Simla on the 27th April, considerably sooner than was expected, having made no halt at some of the usual resting places on account, it is said, of cholera. The journey from Calcutta occupied only seventy-four hours, inclusive of a stoppage of twelve hours on the way. So speedy a transportation from the vapours of the Hooghly to the healthful breezes of the Himalayas will be difficult of realisation by "old Indians," who, in their day, would have considered the accomplishment of the journey in a fortnight or three weeks very good work indeed. It must not, however, be supposed that because a Viceroy can perform the journey in three days any ordinary traveller can do the same. Experience teaches ordinary travellers otherwise, though the improvement that is gradually manifesting itself in all the Indian railways, affords good reason to expect some approach to punctuality by-and-by. The members of Council, and the whole machinery of Government have also reached Simla.—Times of India.

THE NATIVE TESTIMONIAL TO SIR CECIL BEADON.—A letter from Calcutta in the Bombay Gazette says:—"An amusing incident is said to have occurred in connection with the 'getting up' of this address. A Mahomedan gentleman of extensive acquirements, Moulvee Mahomed Wujeb by name, who holds the office of Arabic Professor in the Mahomedan College here, convened a meeting of the Faithful at his house, for the purpose of laying before them a proposition relative to the propriety and advisability of addressing Sir Cecil on his retirement. The 'Faithful' duly assembled, but the meeting resolved into three distinct bodies, one, the friends, the second, the enemies of Sir Cecil, and the third, the 'trimmers' who watched to see how the tide ran. The first with the Moulvee at their head, expiated of course on the transcendent ability of the departing ruler, and insisted upon the duty of their evincing their recognition of these abilities. The opposition, however, had quite another song to sing to, and therefore refused to dance to the Moulvee's piping. They had collected figures and facts which went to show that in the course of five years Sir Cecil had appointed only five of their faith to the Judicial Department. You must remember that a Mahomedan gentleman regards it as infra dig. to serve Government in any other capacity than that of a deputy magistrate. Then, again, of these five men who had been appointed, Sir Cecil had actually dismissed three; and were they now to go up with a testimonial and thank him for cruelty and injustice such as this? In vain did the Moulvee attempt to stem the current. Driven from one position to another, he took refuge at last in one which would only have commended itself to a thoroughly Asiatic, i.e., to a thoroughly enslaved soul. He boldly propounded the monstrous theory, that be the faults, failings, and vices of a ruler what they may, it was the duty of the people to flatter them! It was ultimately determined that those who liked to sign the testimonial were at liberty to do so; and the result is now seen in the precious document I have enclosed for your delectation."

THE CHOLERA AT HURDWAR.—A letter from Umballa states that, despite every precaution to keep the Hurdwar pilgrims out of the station by means of a cordon of police, and troopers of the 11th Bengal Cavalry, two pilgrims managed to get into the bazaar of H.M.'s 94th Regt., in consequence of which some thirty cases have occurred amongst natives in the bazaar. Two soldiers of the 94th have died, and one officer—Lieutenant Mercers. Dr. Stoney is very ill, and Drs. Turner and Page ailing. The regiment has been moved into camp—almost everyone has left the station for Simla.—Bombay Gazette.

MR. W. H. PEILE.—The public will regret, as much as ourselves, the death of Mr. W. H. Peile, of the Agra Bank. Mr. Peile had, during the time he was connected with the late Agra and Masterman's Bank, the Delhi Bank, and the Agra Bank (Limited), secured the esteem and friendship of all with whom he was brought into contact—that is, with the whole of the mercantile community of Bombay.—Times of India.

ALLEGED CAPTIVITY OF TWO EUROPEANS IN THE SOMALI COUNTRY.—A letter regarding the alleged captivity of two Europeans in the Somali country, dated 19th March, has been addressed by Lieutenant-Colonel Merewether, C.B., Resident at Aden, to the Secretary to Government, Bombay. "I heard lately," says the writer, "that there was a man at Berbera who said he had seen Europeans in the interior detained as prisoners. I sent for this man, and he arrived this morning. He gives the following statement:—'About three years ago

I left Berbera for the interior of Africa. I first of all went to Ougurdain, then I left my family and proceeded by myself to Hamar, Murha, and Burawah; from the latter place I went on to Bardairah. I there heard that two English sailors were prisoners in the place. I went to the house where they were confined to try and see them, but was not allowed to look at them. The people at Bardairah are of the Osman Mahmond branch of the Mezertain tribe, and are ruled by one Jumah. Areleh. I heard there were originally five or seven Europeans imprisoned at Bardairah, and that all except these two had escaped. The escaped ones, I was told, had embarked in a small boat on Lake Yauuands, and had managed to find their way to Lamoo. Bardairah is about eight days' journey from Barawah." Colonel Merewether is taking measures to obtain the release of the prisoners in the event of this story proving true.

THE HON. MR. ERSKINE.—The Bombay Civil Service, says the Times of India, is losing an eminent member of its judicial branch in the person of the Hon. Claudius J. Erskine, who finally retires and leaves for England by this mail. He entered the service in 1840, served a long apprenticeship in the Bombay secretariate; he was the first director of public instruction, being appointed in 1855; was then Session Judge at Tanna; in 1860 was made a member of the Supreme Legislative Council; whilst there he was chosen Vice-Chancellor of Calcutta University; he was afterwards one of the first judges of the High Court of Bombay, and has since been judicial member of the Executive Council of Bombay, which post, together with her Majesty's service, he now resigns. Mr. Erskine has only served two of the usual five years' term of office in the Bombay Governments, and he does so because of failing health. The loss to the Bombay Government at the present time is a serious one. Though Mr. Erskine has not been much before the public, and is a man of exceedingly retiring character, it is well understood that the administrative work which he has performed, and the useful influence he has exerted in the affairs of the Presidency, have been considerable and invaluable. Bombay has also an hereditary interest in him as the son of Mr. William Erskine, the distinguished Oriental scholar, and as the grandson of Sir James Macintosh, the qualities of both of whom to a great extent are united in Mr. C. J. Erskine, who, with restored health, may yet do imperial service of a very important kind. A meeting of some of the principal native gentlemen of Bombay was held at Sunkersett House on the 9th of May for the purpose of voting an address to Mr. Erskine, expressive of their appreciation of his valuable services. Sir Jamesjee Jejeebhoy occupied the chair.

THE TWO TELEGRAPH ROUTES.—An official statement which has been published shows that telegraphic communication between England and India, via Russia, has been undergoing great improvement, while, via Turkey, it has been getting worse. The statement informs us how the telegraph worked from the beginning of February, 1866, till the end of March, 1867, and in case of the communication via Turkey the time occupied in the transmission of messages went on increasing at such a rate that from being 2 days 9 hours in February, 1866, the average came to be 11 days 17 hours in January, 1867. This deplorable increase was quite gradual, the mean time as recorded in the statement being as follows:—February (1866), 2 days 9 hours; March, 3 days 17 hours; April, 3 days 1 hour; May, 5 days 15 hours; June, 5 days 9 hours; July, 4 days 17 hours; August, 4 days 19 hours; September, 4 days 18 hours; October, 5 days 22 hours; November, 7 days 14 hours; December, 10 days 19 hours; January (1867), 11 days 17 hours; February, 3 days 15 hours; March, 5 days 11 hours. The Russian line, during several months, did better than the other; the following figures show the mean time:—February (1866), 18 days 16 hours; March, 11 days 15 hours; April, 10 days 10 hours; May, 13 days 22 hours; June, 5 days 12 hours; July, 4 days; August, 3 days 6 hours; September, 2 days 10 hours; October (no return); November, 12 days 12 hours; December (no return). January (1867), 11 days 20 hours; February, 10 days 15 hours; March, 4 days 17 hours. These figures unquestionably show that during the period referred to in the statement the communications through Russia underwent, on the whole, a decided improvement, while in the case of the other line (the one chiefly used), instead of the improvement which might have been expected as the experience of the officials increased, the transmission of messages seems to have been hopelessly uncertain, and on the whole disgracefully slow. It is some satisfaction to know that the state of things was better in February and March last, but we wish we had the meantime for last month, which must, we fancy, be a very pretty figure. —Bombay Gazette.

THE ESTATE OF MR. RUSTOMJEE JEJEEBHROY.—It has been found impossible to wind up this estate under the trust deed drawn up a considerable time ago, one very large creditor (for a sum of about seven or eight lakhs of rupees) having refused to cast in his lot with the others. At first it was not considered essential to get that creditor's signature to the deed, he having security which was reckoned sufficient to cover the debt; but circumstances have changed, and as the creditor finds himself now in rather a worse position with regard to his security, it has become necessary to cancel the deed and adopt some other means of obtaining an equitable distribution of the assets of the estate. Accordingly at a meeting of Mr. Rustomjee's creditors it has been resolved that his estate should be wound up under Act XXVIII. of 1865. If all those who have found it easy to take "the benefit" of that Act were as worthy men as Mr. Rustomjee, the Legislature would have been spared much of the abuse which the measure has been the means of bringing upon it; but it is not so, and in this case it is a pity that the senseless obstinacy of a single creditor should have forced one of the most charitable and generous of India's sons to take the same refuge as the herd who, having first of all speculated beyond their means, found themselves unable to pay their debts, concealed their property, or entrusted it to the safe keeping of their friends, and then came forward to meet their creditors with a smiling schedule but few actual assets. We see that the unsecured liabilities of Mr. Rustomjee's estate amount to eighty-eight lakhs of rupees, and that the assets available to meet those liabilities are valued at twenty-seven lakhs. —Bombay Gazette.

THE BHOPAL WATERWORKS.—A well-informed correspondent writes that the Bhopal Waterworks will be completed six months under the contract time, and that H. H. the Begum has given very tangible proofs of her complete approval of the manner in which the works have been conducted since the commencement. The gas-works are not yet begun. These gas-works are to be commenced very shortly, and will be carried on and completed simultaneously with the waterworks. The difficulties in obtaining eighteen hundred bullock carts can only be appreciated by those who have attempted the achievement. —Bombay Gazette.

WESTERN INDIA TURF CLUB.—At a meeting of the members of the Western India Turf Club on May 3rd, the following gentlemen were elected stewards for the ensuing year:—Col. Even Grant (President), Major J. M. MacDonald, W. H. Crawford, Esq., G. Norman, Esq., and Lieut. G. F. Bentle (Hon. Secretary).

GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.—The works in connection with the great trunk line of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway are making great progress between Khundwah and Hurdah, and the line to the latter station, a distance of sixty miles, will be completed in a short time, but it is understood that it will not be opened for public traffic until after the rains. The public roads in the neighbourhood of Kundwah are in a very bad condition. A newly-constructed road, leading from the railway station to the travellers' bungalow, is almost impassable even now. What it will be when the monsoon sets in is somewhat difficult to imagine. We also hear that the roads generally in Nimar are sadly out of repair, especially between Khundwah and Indore, which seriously affects the public traffic. —Bombay Gazette.

HURRICANE AT MIRZAPORE.—The subjoined telegram has been received in Bombay:—"A hurricane on the evening of the 30th April destroyed the lines about Mirzapore. Large trees blown down on wires, and four posts doubled up in a straight piece of line in open country. Lines temporarily repaired, and communication re-opened with Allahabad, Benares, and Burbee this morning. I have received a report of a hail-storm at Futtehpore; men and cattle killed, and fourteen intermediate standards broken in a straight piece of line." The storm caused an interruption on the lines for a few hours, but they were soon in working condition.

MAJOR-GENERAL D. RAINIER, C.B., commanding Lahore Division, and Lieutenant A. Conolly, 24 Brigade R.A., Punjab Frontier Force, passed the Standing Medical Committee at Kurrachee yesterday, and will proceed to Bombay by the mail steamer of the 25th instant, en route to England. These officers are not available for duty with troops, owing to the delicate state of their health. —Our Paper, April 23.

DESTRUCTION OF THE LIGHTHOUSE AT PONDICHERY.—The following telegram from his Excellency the Governor of Pondicherry has been placed at the disposal of the press:—"The lighthouse of Pondicherry is burning (?). Please advise the commercial people that a double light is placed at the low-flag mast. It can be seen at five miles."

THE PRIVATE LIQUIDATION OF MR. RUSTOMJEE JAMSETJEE JEJEEBHROY'S ESTATE having proved impracticable it has been decided to wind it up under Act 28 of 1865; the unsecured liabilities amount to £887,368, and the assets to £275,325. The following estates are also to be wound up under the same Act:—Cawasjee J. Jussawalla—liabilities £99,013, assets £58,638; Mooljee Canjee—liabilities £64,614, assets £10,375.

EXPORT OF COTTON.—During March 65,433,216 pounds of cotton, valued at £2,639,860, were shipped from Bombay. Of this quantity nearly 7,000,000 pounds were forwarded by the overland route.

THE BOMBAY LANDING AND SHIPPING COMPANY is to be wound up voluntarily.

HAIL STORMS.—Interesting particulars have been published regarding some tremendous hail storms in the Northern districts. If the accounts had not been received from official sources, says the Madras Times, it would be almost impossible to credit some of the statements. Yet we are assured that at one village in the Bellary district hail-stones fell measuring "two-thirds of a cubic yard in size." After this it is not surprising to read that some people were killed, many others wounded, and some thousands of cattle destroyed.

A BOMBAY paper states that £37,000,000 have been lost in that Presidency by insolvencies during the last two years.

THE twelfth annual general meeting of the proprietors of the Scinde Railway Company (Indus Steam Flotilla, Punjab and Delhi Railways) is convened for the 25th of June.

A CALL of £2 is to be paid by the 26th of June on the shares of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company, upon which £4 per share have been already called.

RULES FOR PURCHASE OF HORSES.

April 26.—No. 338.—With the sanction of Govt. the C. in C. is pleased to publish the following rules for the purchase of horses for the service in supercession of all existing orders and regulations on the subject.

Officers commanding brigades of royal artillery and regiments of British cavalry will take their own measures for filling up vacancies in the ranks of their respective commands, either by themselves purchasing horses, or deputing competent officers under their command to do so.

In the royal artillery officers commanding brigades are invited to seek from and afford each other such assistance as their location and experience may put it in their power to give.

In order to facilitate such purchasing the commanding officer or officers deputed will be at liberty to proceed to Bombay or other places in the vicinity of their stations (under local sanction), accompanied by the veterinary surgeon of the regiment, but it is to be clearly understood that this duty is not to entail any extra expense to Govt. on account of compensation for command or other allowance.

All horses purchased must be submitted to a committee to consist of the purchasing officer, the veterinary surgeon, and an officer from the garrison.

The proceedings are to be prepared in triplicate, one copy being forwarded to the adjt. gen. of the army, one to the commissariat dept. in support of the draft drawn upon it for the price of horses, and one retained for regtl. record.

Government has been pleased to fix the average price of horses of all branches of the service at Rs. 500. The standard height 14 hands 2 inches. The age from 4 to 6 years. A small proportion of promising younger horses (not under 14-1) may be taken, if of good breeding and make.

When horses are purchased at Bombay or places other than where the corps or battery they have to join is located, they will be made over to the commissariat dept. for transmission to such corps or battery. All necessary gear being provided by the commissariat dept., and resumed by it for the benefit of Govt. on the horses being given into regtl. charge.

Officers proceeding on the above duty will travel at the public expense.

The price of chargers selected by officers from the remounts has been fixed by Govt. at Rs. 600.

Comdg. officers of brigades, batteries, and regts. will be held responsible that horses in excess of the establishment are not purchased.

All remounts must be castrated as soon as possible after joining.

YELLOW FEVER IN THE MAURITIUS.

Mr. J. A. SMITH asked whether the statement which had appeared in several of the papers in reference to the outbreak of yellow fever in the Mauritius was well founded; and if so, whether the unusual rate of mortality reported had occurred; and whether any steps had been taken to draw the attention of the Government to the possible extension of the disease to India.

Mr. ADDERLEY was afraid there was no doubt as to the truth of the reports, although the Government had not yet received any official reports on the subject. The mortality at Port Louis was said to have reached from 200 to 250 per day, and to have amounted on the 17th of April to 17,000, which out of a population of 300,000 was very alarming. This was the first time that yellow fever had been known to pass eastward of the Cape. Every measure had been taken to diminish the severity of the outbreak, and according to the last reports the weather had changed, and the mortality was decreasing. The troops had been removed to healthier quarters, and had not suffered very greatly—(hear, hear).

Sir S. NORTHCOTE said that no report had reached the India-office on the subject, but he had telegraphed to the governors of the three presidencies, and also to the residentiary at Aden, and he was assured that every effort would be made to prevent, so far as was possible, the introduction of the disease into India—(hear, hear).

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—JUNE 3.

THE FRENCH INDIAN MAILS.

Mr. CHILDERS asked the Secretary to the Treasury whether any overtures had been made to the French Post-office, with a view to render the French mail service to India and China more available for the purposes of this country, under the new system of postal communication, as recommended by the committee of last session.

Mr. HUNT: Forms of tender were issued, in which it was stated that the service might be divided, and we hoped that the Société Impériale might be induced to make us an offer.

Mr. CHILDERS: But did you not communicate with the French Government before issuing the tenders?

Mr. HUNT: I believe the course we adopted was the only way in which we could act.

MISCELLANEOUS.

PARLIAMENTARY RETURN ON INDIAN PRIZE MONEY.—A return, moved for by Lord Eustace Cecil, of the dates of the various captures of booty, and of the dates when the prize money was officially declared to be ready for distribution, has been issued. It tells its own tale of needless and worrying delay. Delhi was captured in September, 1857, but the prize money won by the soldiers was not ready for distribution until December, 1861, more than four years after the capture. Yet the case of those who fought and bled at Delhi is far more favourable than that of those who beat down the mutiny elsewhere. Dhar and Hulkees were conquered in November, 1857. The prize money was not distributed until March and August, 1863, six years after the capture. Four other places yielded booty in 1858, but it took more than five years to arrange for its distribution to the captors. Banda and Kirwee were captured in 1858, but the prize money was not declared to be ready for distribution until March in the present year, that is nine years after the events. Many of those officers and soldiers who fought in these fields have died; others have parted with their shares at a ruinous loss. The money would have been most useful to many in enabling them to provide for forwarding their children in life or advancing themselves. It is enough to dishearten a soldier to find that six, seven, and even nine years must elapse before he can obtain his rightful share of the spoil he won by his courage and discipline. There need be no necessity for the delay. The French Government distributed the prize money for the China war within eighteen months of its capture.

DEATH OF MAJOR COOTE, LATE OF THE 22ND FOOT.—We have to record the death at Wellington, New Zealand, on the 25th March, of the Hon. Major Henry Coote, formerly of the 22nd regiment, and since then a member of the Upper House of Assembly, New Zealand. Major Coote fought under the late Sir C. Napier in Scinde.

GRANT, THE AFRICAN TRAVELLER.—It is reported that Major Grant is about to retire from service in India and reside in England.

EAST INDIA IRRIGATION AND CANAL COMPANY.—The twelfth ordinary general meeting was held on Thursday, Mr. James Thomson in the chair. The report having been read, the Chairman, in moving its adoption, observed that they had intended, as stated at the last meeting, to reduce the monthly expenditure until the prospects of revenue became more definite, but after mature and anxious consideration, and bearing in mind the great importance of carrying on the works in the province of Orissa, as affecting so materially the future returns, it had been determined to proceed with them, consequently the expenses had continued. By this means they had been enabled not only to make progress with the works, but materially to relieve the starving people. There was no instance in which works of such magnitude had been carried out in so short a space of time, and both the rate of progress and the efficient manner in which the works had been constructed reflected the highest credit on Colonel Rundall, their chief engineer in India, and it was satisfactory to know that not only in the opinion of the directors, but of the Government of India, the money expended would ultimately prove a very profitable investment. The Hon. A. Kinnaid, M.P., seconded the motion, remarking that the Government had acted very liberally in making the offer of the advance for two years without interest. Colonel Rundall, who, although offered the appointment of chief engineer of Bengal—a great compliment to a Madras officer—had chosen to remain to complete these irrigation works. The adoption of the report was carried unanimously. The Chairman moved a resolution authorising the directors to borrow from the Government, on the terms offered any sum not exceeding the limits of the Act. The sum offered by the Government was £120,000, and the extent of the company's borrowing powers was £320,000. This resolution was carried, and the thanks of the meeting to the directors, and a similar acknowledgment to Colonel Rundall and Mr. Boothby, the manager, closed the proceedings.

MADRAS IRRIGATION AND CANAL COMPANY.—The sixteenth ordinary general meeting was held last week; Mr. J. Thomson in the chair. The directors' report having been read, the chairman, in moving its adoption, observed that it was not so much a statement of progress made as of the preliminary steps taken to enable them to resume with vigour their operations. The most unfortunate matter was the breaking up of the trained staff of engineers before the undertaking was brought into revenue, seeing the difficulty of re-establishing it. Having completed the arrangements with the Government, the board had turned its attention to the selection of competent men to carry out the works. They had succeeded in engaging nine engineers, who were highly recommended; and with those engaged in India they had now a staff of twenty-one with which to recommence operations. He was as sanguine as he had ever been of the ultimate success of the undertaking, and congratulated the shareholders that the shares of the company had risen from the undue depression under which they had for some time laboured. The Hon. A. Kinnaid, M.P., seconded the motion, and remarked that the opinion of the Government as to the ultimate value of the undertaking was evident by the offer they had made of one and a half millions of capital to carry it out, and their desire to keep it under their own control. The resolution was adopted. A resolution for converting the paid-up guaranteed shares into stock was also agreed to.

CALCUTTA AND SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY.—The half-yearly meeting of the shareholders was held on Thursday, at the offices, 211, Gresham-house; Mr. John Borradaile in the chair. The directors' report, which was issued some time before, having been taken as read, the chairman moved its adoption. He was sorry that he could not congratulate the meeting on a continuance of the position attained last year, namely, that of nearly meeting the charges. There was a deficiency of £2,400. The loss of the jetty had produced considerable injury, and the famine had also diminished the traffic. One effect of the loss of the jetty was a suspension of building operations in Canning; but the Canning Company was going on favourably and enabled to pay a small dividend; and he hoped that before long the shipping facilities afforded at the port would attract a considerable number of vessels. After some discussion the report was adopted, and the proceedings terminated in the usual way.

STRANGERS' HOME FOR ASIATICS.—The tenth annual meeting was held yesterday, at Willis's Rooms, St. James's; Lord Henry Cholmondeley in the chair. The attendance, owing probably to the weather, was small. After prayer, Lieutenant-Colonel Hughes read the report, from which it appeared that, on an average for some years, more than 150 inmates (Asiatics, Africans, &c.) had been lodged, maintained, and sheltered, for various periods, in the "Home." The average daily number at any time was 13. During the five months of the present year the number has greatly increased, 111 inmates having been admitted, many of whom had already been provided with passages back to their native place, or employment; 24 remain at this time at the Home. In 1866, 700 persons were visited and relieved. In consequence of the prevalent distress during the late severe winter among the unemployed population around the institution, it had been thought proper to divert the Strangers' Home from its more legitimate purposes by setting apart a portion of the premises for a soup kitchen. The establishment superintended, cooked, and distributed the soup and bread to the poor, the materials being paid for by the Relief Committee. The receipts of the Home in 1866 amounted to £1,631. 19s. 4d., and the expenditure to £1,592. 16s. 4d., leaving a balance of £39. 3s. in hand on the 1st January, 1867. A reduction in the European establishment of the Home had been effected in July last, whereby a saving of £200 per annum was anticipated. It is expected that the expenditure in 1867 will not exceed £700, towards which only £184 has been as yet received. The directors express their thanks for, and say how much they have been encouraged by, the approval, support, and liberal aid they have invariably received from the Secretary of State and the Council of India, the Board of Trade, the Commissioners of Emigration, the Crown Agents to the Colonies, and from all the leading missionary societies. A strong appeal for subscriptions closes the report, the directors significantly asking, "shall the doors of the Home be closed through the insufficiency of pecuniary aid, or because, under temporary circumstances, the number of inmates in the Home are insufficient to render the institution self-supporting?" The directors say they require only the small sum of £700 per annum to carry on a work which continues to be such a comfort and blessing to the many helpless Oriental strangers who visit our shores. The adoption of the report was carried, after eloquent speeches from the Rev. J. Bilderbeck, from Madras, the proposer of the resolution, and the Rev. E. R. Jones. The rev. gentleman mentioned that the society had been offered funds on the condition that it would forego its spiritual or Christian character in favour of its temporal purposes. That offer had been declined, the society objecting to depart from its speciality of propagating Christianity at the Home. Another resolution, expressing sympathy with the spiritual and material objects of the Strangers' Home for Asiatics, was moved by Captain the Hon. F. Maule, R.N., seconded by Colonel Lavie, and carried. The vote of thanks to the noble chairman was moved by J. Griffith, Esq., and seconded by the Rev. G. Knox. Lord Cholmondeley, in replying, said he could have wished that with his name had been associated that of Lieutenant-Colonel Hughes and those of the officers of the Home, their exertions and services in its behalf having been uniformly most zealously directed. After the singing of the Doxology a small collection was made, and the meeting separated.

THE P. AND O. STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.—The half-yearly report of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company has now been published. As previously stated, it announces that "owing to the falling off in revenue, and the additional working outlay, the directors are unable to recommend the declaration of an interim dividend; and the further information is given that the accounts for the period ending March 31 show an excess of expenditure over receipts to the extent of £36,000, without making any provision for insurance or depreciation." Referring to the tenders which are to be sent in on the 16th September next for the new mail contracts, the directors express their belief that if the same conditions as formerly are to be attached to the performance of the postal service a very material addition to the subsidy must be looked for.

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY BOMBAY MAIL.—(SOUTHAMPTON, May 28.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Massilia, Capt. Curling, with the heavy portion of the above mails, ninety-one passengers, £2,500 in specie, and 150 packages of general cargo, arrived here this evening. She experienced a fine southerly breeze to Lisbon. Across the Bay of Biscay the wind was from the southward and westward, accompanied by a strong sea and occasional squalls.

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY INDIA AND CHINA MAILS.—(SOUTHAMPTON, May 31.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Nyanza, Captain Weeks, with the heavy portion of the above mails, arrived this morning. She brings specie £2,480 and a general cargo, including 893 bales raw silk, value £75,000 sterling. The Nyanza experienced fine weather during the passage. On the 22nd she exchanged signals with the steamship China.

THE TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.—In order that the public may be kept well informed of the working of the Indian Telegraph Department, Colonel Glover publishes a monthly return from the complaint and check office. For the month of February the number of Indian messages amounted to 27,791, in which there were no less than 471 trivial, and 57 serious mistakes, giving a total of mistakes in the messages sent at the rate of 1.89 per cent., whilst the number of complaints was 33 only. On the Indo-European line the number of messages was 2,817, the total number of both trivial and serious errors being 164, or 5.81 per cent., with 14 cases of complaint. Col. Glover explains that in the majority of cases the mistakes consisted in the alteration of only one single word in a message, but it seems entirely to have escaped his notice that the alteration of one word, or even one figure, in a message, might at any time either render the message unintelligible or useless. It would be as well, if in future returns, he was to distinguish between those which are mere errors in spelling, and those which materially alter or affect the meaning of a message, as from the present return it is impossible to tell what is the distinction drawn in the telegraph office between a serious and trivial mistake.

THE INDIAN GOVERNMENT AND THE KING OF BOKHARA.—When the late envoy from Bokhara reported to the King the failure of his mission to the Governor-General, the King sent another envoy to Cabul, soliciting aid from the rulers of Cabul against the Russians, who were at that time threatening his dominions. The rulers of Cabul, before replying to the envoy, wrote to the Governor-General of India, desiring to know whether he purposed to render any assistance to Bokhara. The Governor-General sent a negative reply; and the ruler of Cabul thereupon declined to interfere against the advice or example of the Viceroy. The King of Bokhara now seeks aid from Persia.—Indian Daily News.

THE HISTORY

OF THE

BRITISH EMPIRE IN INDIA.

FROM THE

APPOINTMENT OF LORD HARDINGE

TO THE

POLITICAL EXTINCTION OF THE EAST INDIA COMPANY.

BY

LIONEL JAMES TROTTER,

Late of the 2nd Bengal Fusiliers.

The first volume of this History embraces the period from Lord Hardinge's appointment in 1844 to the retirement of the Marquis of Dalhousie in 1856.

The second volume commences with the arrival of Lord Canning in India in 1856, and closes with his lordship's death in 1862. This being the most eventful period in the annals of the East India Company, including the Mutiny, great pains have been taken in its narration.

"Captain Trotter has done good service in providing the public with the sequel to a standard work. . . . And in every way his performance is worthy to take rank with that of his predecessor. . . . The thoroughly satisfactory manner in which the task has been performed is greatly to the author's credit. . . . We take our leave of the work, congratulating its author upon having produced an addition to the 'History of India' at once permanent in purpose and popular in execution; acceptable in every way to the wants of the public, and especially adapted for the enlightenment of young members of the local service, to whom the modern annals of the country which they help to administer are of far more importance than the history of remote periods having little or no relation to the present day."—Standard.

"Both the plan and execution of the work are deserving of high praise. Full of interest and animation, and narrates with clearness and brevity all that took place during the period of which it treats. . . . The second volume of Mr. Trotter's history possesses the same merits by which the first was distinguished. It is written with great animation, and often with considerable graphic power. It tells its story with perspicuity and without needless or tiresome digressions. It avoids as far as possible that controversial vein into which Indian politicians and historians are alike prone to fall, and it is as impartial as any work is likely to be which deals with times so near our own. . . . The narrative of the spirit-stirring events of the mutiny will of course have the greatest attraction for most readers, and it is in truth the best, as it is the principal part of the present volume. . . . It appears to us that Mr. Trotter has been eminently successful in his treatment of a very exciting and interesting period of recent history."—London Review.

"The volume is full of interesting matter comprising every event of importance during the exciting period of the rebellion, told in a concise, straightforward, and impartial manner, unnumbered by those copious extracts from documentary evidence which often serve no other purpose than increasing the bulk without adding to the usefulness of a work of this description."—Observer.

"Captain Trotter's reflections are few. . . . He has his own views, though he does not force them upon us in detail. . . . All this proves him to be far above the narrowness of the average Anglo-Indian. He speaks out boldly, too, in defence of Lord Gough. . . . A word as to our author's descriptive powers; they are such as his lighter writings would lead us to expect. . . . Whatever he has to tell Captain Trotter tells it in an animated and picturesque style. The night on the field at Ferozeshuhur. . . . is admirably painted; so is the grand success of Goojrat. The disarming of the veterans of the Khalsa. . . . is a striking scene. Captain Trotter's book opens up many other interesting questions: it is full of notices of social changes; it points out the specially unfortunate way in which the annexation of Oudh was managed."—Fortnightly Review, May 15.

"Here we have before us the first volume of an eminently readable history. . . . The arrangement of the matter, the style, and, above all, the spirit which pervades his pages, are worthy of great commendation. Mr. Trotter is singularly free from the faults of a partisan writer. . . . The volume concludes with a masterly criticism on Lord Dalhousie's character and services."—Calcutta Englishman, March 17.

"We cannot say that he has dealt unjustly by Lord Canning's memory. . . . A well-considered volume, in which the heartiest acknowledgments are paid to Lord Canning for his temperate wisdom at a time when there was no man more abused than he. . . . He writes thoughtfully, yet with a soldier's sense of the stir of a brisk military narrative. His history of this great struggle is full and impartial. . . . We need not follow him through his vigorous rehearsal of the well-known incidents. It forms a very lucid history, the several parts being well planned and well grouped, and no important point being omitted or misrepresented."—Examiner, September 15.

CHLORODYNE.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a certain cure in Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colics, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—"So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases." From A. Montgomery, Esq., late Inspector of Hospitals, Bombay.—"Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I fairly owe my restoration to health after eighteen months' severe suffering, and when all other remedies had failed."

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne; that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—See the Times, July 13, 1864.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, Dec. 31, 1864.

DR. LOWE, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec., 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered the patient recovered.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the best and most certain remedy in Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Consumption, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is publicly acknowledged by the most eminent Physicians of London to be the most effectual remedy ever discovered. To prevent fraud, the Government have authorised a Stamp, with the words Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne engraved thereon, without which none can be genuine. Sole Manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London. The immense demand enables the proprietors to reduce the price; it is now sold in bottles, 1s. 1d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d. and 11s.

TEXTILE MANUFACTURES and COSTUMES of the PEOPLE of INDIA

BY J. FORBES WATSON, M.A., M.D., F.R.A.S.,

Reporter on the Products of India.

Imperial 4to, morocco back, cloth, with numerous Coloured Photographs. £3. 5s.

This work—by affording a Key to the Fashions of the People, and to the Cotton, Silk, and Wool Textiles in actual use in India—is of special interest to Manufacturers, Merchants, and Agents; as also to the student and lover of ornamental art.

"If the manufacturer studies this book carefully he may add thousands a year to his profits, and there are not five books in the world of which that could be said. Altogether this book is thoroughly creditable to Dr. Forbes Watson's industry and acumen, and to the liberality of the India-office."—Spectator, Jan. 5, 1867.

"The conception of this splendid work reflects the highest credit upon the wisdom of the department to which we are indebted for its publication; and the manner in which it has been executed by its author, Dr. J. Forbes Watson, is conclusive evidence of his being the right man in the right place. No one can fully appreciate the value of this work without seeing it, because neither analysis nor extracts can give any idea of the immense mass of minute facts which it contains and the admirable manner in which they are grouped and made subservient to the practical requirements of the manufacturer and the merchant, and the cravings of the student of ornamental art. The illustrations are as magnificent as they are appropriate. In fact, as mere productions of beauty and taste, they give the work the air of a book of art luxury, and we have no doubt that from this feature it will find many admirers and purchasers beyond the ranks of trade and commerce. We ought to state that the Secretary of State for India not only deserves the highest praise for having had this work prepared and distributed, but likewise for having allowed a publisher to use the type and photographic plates so as to be able to produce a certain number of copies for sale. In no other way could copies of this unique and costly volume have been offered to the public at a reasonable price."—Morning Post, Jan. 3, 1867.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—LIVER COM-

PLAINTS AND DISORDERS OF THE BOWELS.—It is impossible to exaggerate the extraordinary virtue of this medicine in the treatment of all affections of the liver or irregularities of the bowels. In cases of over- and superabundant bile, these Pills, taken freely, have never been known to fail. In bowel complaints they are equally efficacious, but they should then be taken rather more sparingly, for every medicine in the form of an aperient requires caution when the bowels are disordered, though a gentle or more general aperient than these Pills in moderate doses has never yet been discovered. If taken according to the printed instructions, they not only cure the complaint, but improve the whole system.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Calcutta Mail brings us our usual files of papers, from Calcutta to the 10th of May, Madras to the 13th, and Bombay to the 20th of that month.

In Calcutta there was very little stirring. The License Tax was still being opposed, and the state of things in the distressed districts was still only slowly improving. The best news received in the City of Palaces was the intelligence that the King of Burmah had substantially agreed to all the requests made by the British Government through Colonel Phayre. Desirous of further strengthening the amicable relations subsisting between the Burmese State and the British Government, his Majesty has decreed that all import and export duties now levied at the Burmese Custom-house, namely, 12 per cent. on certain articles, and 10 per cent. on other kinds of goods, shall be modified. From and after this proclamation the duty to be levied both on the import and export trade is to be at the uniform rate of 5 per cent. on all descriptions of goods and merchandise. Further, his Majesty has acceded to the strong recommendation of Colonel Phayre, and has relinquished the Royal prerogative and right of farming out particular articles of trade, which will be thrown open to public competition. For the present, the King retains only the monopoly of timber and mineral oil, which will also be left unrestricted when the present contracts with the farmers expire. So the King of Burmah is not such a determined heathen monopolist, nor so blind to his own interests, as some people have delighted to represent him.

A less pleasant report from the capital of the Golden Foot is that a famine was considered imminent in Upper Burmah, and that the King was buying up grain for his troops.

The Government steamer Kwang Tung, which was sent to the Andaman Islands in search of the captain and crew of the ship Assam Valley, was attacked by the natives of the Little Andaman, and, having only a lascar crew, was obliged to return without accomplishing its object.

The result of inquiries made by the Government has established the fact—several times alleged—of the practice of slavery in Nepal.

Another "military scandal" had arisen, with another Paymaster concerned. A general court-martial is ordered to assemble at Shahjehanpore, for the trial of Major Chambers, Paymaster of the 36th Foot.

Mr. John Strachey, Chief Commissioner in Oude, has been appointed an additional Member of the Governor-General's Council.

A new cantonment is to be formed at Ranee Khet, near Nynsee Tal, for the location of a large British force.

The head quarters of the administration of the Central Provinces is to be transferred from Nagpore to Jubbulpore. The Chief Commissioner has temporarily increased the reward for the destruction of wolves in the Jubbulpore district to £3 a head.

Mr. Richard Temple, the recently appointed resident at Hyderabad, has formally presented his credentials to the Nizam, and on the following day presented a letter of expostulation and advice from the Viceroy. Salar Jung, the minister, has been restored to his former position, and the Nizam intends holding a durbar to confer special honours upon him for his faithful conduct. Nine men have been killed by the explosion of a powder magazine in the Nizam's territory.

It is stated in one of the Madras Presidency papers that the story about the resignation of Sir Gaspard le Marchant is nothing more than a "mare's nest."

"With regard to Indian matters," says the Athenæum, "public interest, in the Presidency towns at any rate, continues to centre mainly on the detestable License Tax, but we are constrained to add that Calcutta alone has yet taken any effectual steps to procure redress of the grievances arising from it. Her activity has not abated, but Madras is still pursuing the languid course which led to the private launch of the badly constructed ship Petition before noticed by us; and as for Bombay, it does not appear that any practical result has flowed from her first burst of indignation. The Bengalees, however, are vigorously showing fight."

The Bombay Government has expressed itself in favour of the reconstruction of the Bank of Bombay, but the directors are apparently committed to amalgamation, and have called a meeting for the 4th of June to consider the latter proposal. A telegram from Simla says that the Government of India will bind itself to nothing until the shareholders have themselves adopted one of the two schemes. The telegram adds—"The probability is that a sound reconstructed bank would be dealt with liberally." Mr. Henry Cleveland, solicitor, has been elected a director of the Bank of Bombay in the room of Mr. Henry Maxwell, resigned. Mr. Mansfield, late commissioner in Sind, has taken his place as a member of the Bombay Council.

The shareholders of the Bank of Guzerat have confirmed the resolution in favour of winding up the bank, and appointed liquidators. A meeting of the Bombay shareholders of the Commercial Bank Corporation has been called for May 21, to consider the proposed reconstruction of the bank. The annual report of the Cotton Department states that the quantity of cotton exported from the Bombay Presidency during 1866 was 939,697½ bales. The practice of burning adulterated cotton is to be discontinued.

The Bombay Government has authorised the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway to make a complete survey of the projected line from Neemuch to Delhi, with a branch to Agra.

A troop of Irregular Horse has been raised in Jacobabad for service at Aden. The troop, which is 100 strong, has been placed under the command of Lieut. Myers.

The Maharajah Sindia has decided to disband his troops in October next, and to resign the fort of Gwalior to the British Government.

It is reported that the Russian General at Bokhara has received another strong reinforcement. Intelligence from Cabul states that Azim Khan had been killed by the widow of the late Sirdar, whom he married against her will, and that Shere Ali was advancing upon that city.

A telegram published in the Times of India, dated Kurrachee, May 18th, states that large numbers of the Hurdwar pilgrims were coming down the Indus in country boats, and orders had been issued to quarantine them above Sukkur, with a view to preventing the spread of any infectious disease.

The next arrival from India will be the Bombay mail, which left Alexandria on Wednesday morning, and may be expected in London on Thursday next.

Mr. E. B. COWELL has been elected Professor of Sanscrit at Cambridge, by 96 votes against 37 obtained by his opponent, Professor Aufrecht. The professorship was only founded the other day. Its stipend is £500 a year. The appointment will give great satisfaction, not only to Mr. Cowell's friends, but to all who know his abilities, and the high reputation which they obtained for him in India.

EAST INDIA TRADING AND BANKING CORPORATION.—There are some 400 contributories to this company from whom the liquidator has been unable to recover the money due from them in respect of calls; but an order having been given by the Court for the liquidator to take legal proceedings for the recovery of the money, writs have already been issued against several of the contributories. Amter Kooba, broker, one of the recalcitrants who had been arrested under a writ, was taken before the Hon. Mr. Justice Arnould, when Mr. Prescott, on behalf of the liquidator, applied for the committal of the debtor to prison. The amount of the call was Rs. 1,000, and the debtor said he had no houses and no property, but that a friend would pay two annas in the rupee for him. His lordship said the proposed compromise was a matter for the liquidator. An order for the committal of the debtor was then made, the detaining creditor being required to pay the subsistence money in advance on the usual scale.

MADRAS MILITARY FUND.

SINCE the transfer of the military funds to the office of the Secretary of State for India, the question of the appropriation of the surplus of the Madras Military Fund in a manner favourable to the subscribers and their families has been under consideration, and has now been decided.

The satisfactory position of that Fund, which was reported on by the actuaries, Messrs. Brown, Hardy, and Col. Smith, has enabled H.M.'s Government to concede nearly all the recommendations asked for by the directors.

The 10 per cent. increase on donations and subscriptions imposed in 1844 was discontinued in 1864, and the following additional benefits have been now granted, viz. :—

The extra donation for daughters is to be reduced from Rs. 282 to Rs. 200.

The donations of widowers with offspring are to be reduced to bachelor's rates.

All demands on account of minimum are to be abolished.

And daughters hereafter born will be allowed to revert to their pensions on becoming widows.

An addition of 8 per cent. will be made to all widow's pensions.

THE NEW OVERLAND TROOP SERVICE.

HER MAJESTY'S Indian troop ships, which are intended to be employed in conveying, by the overland route, the annual reliefs between Portsmouth and Bombay, are fast approaching completion, and will be ready to commence this new service in the ensuing autumn. Three of the ships will run between Suez and Bombay: of these the Euphrates is to leave Portsmouth, for Bombay, this day (Saturday); the Jumna is appointed to sail from Plymouth, for Calcutta, on the 22nd of this month; and the Malabar will most likely leave Portsmouth, for Bombay, on the 10th July. We understand that it is not the intention of Government to send out in them any troops to India round the Cape, as the men would arrive too early in the season to allow of their being landed without incurring considerable risk. A few drafts may, however, proceed in them (the Malabar) to Ceylon; and they will take out some of the officers and others under orders for the Presidencies, as well as spare stores and provisions.

The two other ships (the Serapis and the Crocodile) which are intended to be employed between England and Alexandria are being equipped in the Victoria Dock. When completed they will go round to Portsmouth to receive their provisions and sea stores, and to be prepared for the commencement of the Overland Service in the autumn. It may be as well to mention, for the information of such of our readers as may be ordered to embark in these ships, whether round the Cape or via Egypt, that, like others of her Majesty's troopships, they are fitted with everything necessary for the comfort and accommodation of the passengers and troops. The only articles which officers will have to provide are towels for washing; cabin furniture, bedding, &c., will be found by Government, and officers will consequently be relieved from the expense to which they have hitherto been put in purchasing articles for their cabins.

During the ensuing autumn and winter two of the ships, the Jumna and Euphrates, will take troops on board at Calcutta, the 2nd battalion of the 60th and the 27th Regiment being at that port and at Dum-Dum, but in future years all the reliefs will embark and land at Bombay. By the autumn of 1868 there will, probably, be through communication from Bengal to Bombay, and the difficulty which has hitherto been experienced in concentrating all the troops at the latter port will then be removed.

The lines of the whole of these five steamers are alike; they are all of 4,173 tons builders' measurement, and are fitted with engines of 700-horse power. From this it will be seen that they are considerably larger than the Himalaya, or any others of her Majesty's troop-ships. They have been built from the designs of Mr. Reed, the Chief Constructor of the Navy, based on the special requirements furnished by Captain Mends, R.N., C.B., the Director of Transport Services at the Admiralty, with a view to secure the greatest possible space, the best sanitary arrangements for soldiers, their wives and children, and the highest rate of speed compatible with the necessary stowage for military stores, baggage, provisions, and coals, at a draft of water not exceeding 21 feet.

Every attention has been given to the ventilation of saloons, cabins, troop-decks, &c., and special hospital accommodation has been provided for the invalids who may be brought home in them.

This new and important service has been placed under the control of Captain Mends by the Secretary of State for India and the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty; and all the necessary arrangements connected with the service will be made in the transport department of the Admiralty.

FAMINE AND EDUCATION.

A REPORT on the effects of the famine on the schools and educational institutions in the south-west division of Bengal, from the pen of Mr. W. S. Anderson, Director of Public Instruction, has just been published by the Government of India.

Until the middle of June, last year, Mr. Anderson was not aware that the scarcity exercised any influence upon the schools; but the fact became apparent through a general restlessness on the part of the masters. It rarely happens that a teacher is able to obtain employment in his own village or town—upon the principle, apparently, that no man is a prophet in his own country—and the families of these persons, being left at home, suffered naturally from the absence of their heads. In order to discourage the general tendency on the part of the teachers to seek for leave under these circumstances, Mr. Anderson moved about a great deal himself, and insisted upon his deputy-inspectors doing likewise. In August matters became worse. The prevalence of the floods, and the spread of disease, so shut off pupils from the schools that applications for closing came from many quarters, and in the case of one large institution masters and pupils all ran away without giving any notice whatever. The necessity for a general inspection now became apparent, and Mr. Anderson visited the principal districts under his care in succession, and the results of his observations in the several localities are contained in this report. These are not quite what might have been expected. "The truth is," he says, "that the famine did not touch the classes who seek an education in our schools. In Orissa the case may be different; but this remark applies to all the districts which I visited, including among them the most severely afflicted localities in Lower Bengal. Our schools derive support from four classes; the landholders, the village bankers (mahajuns), the better sort of shopkeepers, and the substantial cultivators whose holdings amount to or exceed seven acres. To these ranks of society the famine was an inconvenience, neither more nor less grave than to the English inhabitants, and in a very few cases did it amount to a sufficient cause for withdrawing children from school. On the other hand, a large proportion of these classes profited by the famine; many of the landholders, and most of the village bankers, a class which combines corn-dealing with money-lending, had large stores of grain which they disposed of at famine prices; the upper classes of shopkeepers also, by laying in their stocks according to their wont at the end of harvest, when rice was comparatively cheap, made unusual profits. The case of the cultivators was different. In Western Bengal (Lower Provinces) tillage is carried on by means of advances generally obtained from the village banker, occasionally from the landholder himself. These rural capitalists foresaw that the scanty harvest of 1865 would render cultivation very profitable in 1866, and made their advances on an unusually liberal scale. Land, that had laid so long untilled, that the little ridges (ails) between the fields were obliterated, was again ploughed up, and in every district along the west of Lower Bengal, from Beerbhoom to Midnapore, cultivation was extended into the jungle and pushed up to dry elevations, where it had never been attempted before. For this year (1866-67) a meagre crop would be a profitable one, and a low class of land that in ordinary seasons would not pay the cost of tillage might be highly remunerative. Those expectations turned out to be just. In one locality through which I passed, between Bancoorah and Bishenpore, the September crops were selling at the unprecedented price of £15 per acre as they stood on the fields."

The examples which Mr. Anderson cites certainly tend to show that the famine has not numerically affected the strength of the schools, and as a corollary therefrom that it has not affected in any important degree the classes from which the schools derive their pupils. It was frequently stated by the masters that their pupils had fallen off on account of the distress; but this was found to be true only in one instance; in all the others Mr. Anderson ascertained that the decrease was due to the ignorance or unpopularity of the head masters themselves, and that the distress was only a stalking horse behind which they concealed their incompetency. One suggestion has naturally occurred to Mr. Anderson—that our system of education does not penetrate the masses of the people sufficiently to test the effects of the famine. With a view to set this point at rest he visited not only our own schools of every grade, but also missionary schools, which are supposed to reach a lower stratum of society than our secular institutions, as well as the patshallahs or indigenous village schools, which go still deeper. He found, however, that the missionary schools had prospered quite as much as our own, and he had reason to believe that the indigenous schools in most places stood their ground, while in very few were they said to have diminished. In one way the famine has exercised a deleterious influence upon instruction—by the "heavy blow and great discouragement" given to the teachers, who have become unsettled, embarrassed, and dissatisfied with their condition. There was a visible effect of the distress, too, upon the educational buildings which have been allowed to fall into disrepair, and when in process of construction to remain unfinished.

Mr. Anderson, before concluding his report, is careful not to convey an impression that his subordinates failed in their duty. On the contrary, he considers that to their patience and fortitude is owing the fact that his narrative is one of progress instead of retrogression during a most trying time for all. It is evident, however, from the instances cited, that the native teachers at any rate are not efficient as a class; and the Government will do well to turn the fact to account in the good time coming, when the return of plenty shall no longer make it possible to ascribe ill success to exceptional causes.

CONCESSIONS OF THE KING OF BURMAH TO THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT.

At last the King of Burmah has discovered the full danger of the game he seemed so determined to play. Waiting till only one month of the four years' grace allowed him had to expire, his Majesty has made a partial concession to the demands of the British Government, and to the obligations upon which he voluntarily entered in 1862. The following proclamation was published at Rangoon on the 2nd May, in a Gazette Extraordinary.

(TRANSLATION.)

It is hereby ordered, that with the exception of earth, oil, timber, and precious stones, all royal monopolies shall be henceforth abolished for a period of ten years, commencing from the first day of the Burmese year 1229.

With reference to duties on imports taken at the several Custom-house stations they will be reduced from 10 to 5 per cent. ad valorem, also for ten years.

Customs' duties on goods for export hitherto levied at 6 per cent. will be reduced to 5 per cent. ad valorem.

There will be no change in the present 2½ and 3 per cent. export duties. But as regards tea, although it is an article of export, duty must be paid at Mandalay, and not elsewhere.

Produce brought by land or water, by any route from the Shan States, and tea and other articles carried on bullocks, will pay the usual taxes or fees charged at the different guard stations, and be further subject to a 5 per cent. ad valorem duty on arrival at any of the four cities of Ava, Sagine, Amerapoora, and Mandalay.

Seesamum oil, tobacco, and jaggery sold at any of these cities will be charged a royal brokerage of 4½ per cent. ad valorem as heretofore.

Shan traders carrying their own goods will pay a duty of 4½ per cent. ad valorem upon them, as heretofore.

Cotton putsoes and other cloths will pay a brokerage of 2½ per cent. ad valorem. If for export, they will not be further charged export duty on the presentation of a certificate to the effect that brokerage dues have already been paid at the capital.

MISCELLANEOUS.

KUTWAL ARRANGEMENT IN THE CAPITAL OF THE PUNJAB.—It is an extraordinary fact that, in the capital of the Punjab, the Kutwal arrangements are so imperfect that it is next to impossible to obtain servants, to say nothing of good ones. Complaints of this difficulty, and of the neglect and carelessness of the Kutwallee, are daily deluging us. One gentleman finds it impossible to get a syce. Another has been wanting a grasscutter for several weeks. A lady cannot get a cook for "love or money" (and a very charming lady she is too—this makes the case the more remarkable), and the demand for chupprassess seems always in advance of the market supply of those necessary evils. If a written order be sent to the Kutwal for a servant of any kind, a "salaam!" is the only notice taken of the request. If a personal application be made, the Kutwallee—non est inventus. No doubt lazily smoking his hookah, or indulging "on the sly" in other pleasures equally innocent, dignified, and delightful—no matter whether he be a "mild Hindoo," a gentle Sikh, or a magnanimous Mussulman. An example of the annoyance caused by the irregularity in the subordinate Police Department has just come under our notice, and although we cannot but admire, as we have already remarked, the promptness, energy, and courage displayed by the police with reference to the cholera measures, we do not think the case to which we give publicity reflects any credit on the working of the department. Several days ago a gentleman, during a temporary absence from his house, had his despatch box stolen. When the box was missed a report was immediately sent to the police authorities:—The services of the police were not available at that time, the district superintendent having enough to do to supply his forty-one miles of cholera cordon—so a systematic investigation has been delayed nine days; meanwhile the suspected servants summon the unfortunate loser of the box for their wages, and the value of their "chitties," which were stolen with the box!! Although a liberal reward has been offered for the box, the delay of the police investigations makes all hope of its recovery very vague.—Lahore Chronicle.

OPENING OF THE DELHI MEMORIAL CHURCH.

—This church, of which the foundation-stone was laid by Bishop Cotton in March, 1865, was opened for divine service under licence from the Bishop of Calcutta on Saturday last, the tenth anniversary of the mutiny in Delhi. Evening prayer was said in Urdu at 7.30, and a sermon preached by the Rev. J. C. Whitley, after which the Te Deum was chanted, the choir boys chanted the Psalms and canticles, and sang two hymns admirably well; they do great credit to the labour that must have been spent upon them. There was a fair attendance of the English residents, but the church was crowded with native Christians, both from the Church of England and Baptist Missions, and the whole of the large porch towards the road, and the arcade running from the church, was full of Hindus and Mahomedans, many of whom remained throughout the service and behaved with much attention and decorum. On Sunday morning there was a celebration of the Holy Communion. This beautiful little church is dedicated to St. Stephen, and is well worthy of its memorial character. The tall campanile, with its white tiled pointed roof and gleaming metal cross, is seen from many distant points, both within and without the city; nor will the visitor be disappointed by a closer inspection. The large porch, ascending by four steps immediately from the roadway, is very striking, with its well carved columns of red sandstone and rich mouldings, surmounted by the text, "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life." This entrance porch is separated from the nave by three arches, and opens into the arcade or verandah on either side; this is between seven and eight feet in width, and consists of a series of arches, supported on double columns of red sandstone, standing on a low parapet wall. These arcades I think may settle the long vexed question how Indian churches can be made at once cool and pretty. The dimensions of the nave, without the porch, are sixty feet by twenty-five, the chancel twenty-one by twenty-four. The height throughout is thirty-seven and a-half feet.—Delhi Gazette, May 11.

—RUMOUR OF THE REMOVAL OF THE SEAT OF GOVERNMENT OF THE CENTRAL PROVINCES.—The rumour is once more current of the possibility of removing the chief seat of this Government from Nagpore to Jubbulpore. The reason is that the position of the latter city is more favourably situated, and is altogether preferable in respect to climate and locality. We believe that such is the case, but the difficulties that lie in the way in moving the headquarters of the civil administration of any government from its recognised centre was exhibited in the transfer to Allahabad from Agra as the principal seat of the administration. We doubt whether, so far as we are concerned, any change will be permitted, or, in fact, has ever been contemplated. We labour under the disadvantage of having no river and the military cantonment being so far off, but otherwise the position of Nagpore in its relations to the various districts to the east and west and the south especially, is the best that could be maintained. We perceive that new barracks at Kamptee for horse and foot artillery have been sanctioned at an outlay of Rs. 80,000; and that accommodation for troops within the fort of Seetabuldee, and a new fortified ordnance depot, costing respectively Rs. 1,05,000 and 10,000 are shortly to be provided. One lakh has been granted for the Kanhan-bridge and its approaches to be extended during the present year, but the ultimate completion of this work appears to be somewhat distant. There is room for much improvement in the civil station itself, and it is to be hoped that every rupee it is proposed to expend from the local funds will be devoted within the year for the purposes of carrying out the improvements determined upon.—Englishman.

A BRITISH FORCE AT RANEE KHET.—We hear on good authority that Ranee Khet, near Nynce Tal, has been decided on as a site for the location of rather a large British force. Barracks are to be erected to contain about 800 or 1,000 men, and, further, the mountain battery from Darjeeling will, in all probability, be removed to this new cantonment. Now, we know nothing of Ranee Khet, or its advantages as a place of residence for European troops, but we are, at the same time, rather anxious to know why it should have been so suddenly fixed upon by Colonel Ramsay and the Commander-in-Chief, without the latter being permitted to inspect other equally if not far more suitable localities which exist in Kumaon, and which, from their closer proximity to the Plains, would appear to be more worthy of the consideration of Government, both in an economical and strategical point of view. What has become of the proposals that have been so often before the public for a European sanatorium at Lohoo Ghat? All subordinate engineers and medical officers who have visited the proposed site are unanimous in their opinion as to its healthiness and the suitability of the locality, and we imagined that only a visit from the Commander-in-Chief and the Lieutenant Governor was wanting to complete the arrangements that had been suggested. We have, however, been mistaken on this point.—Pioneer, May 10.

SHELTER TO BE PROVIDED FOR THE SUFFERERS BY THE FAMINE.—The Bengal Government, in reply to a communication from the Secretary to the Orissa Famine and Orphan Relief Fund, dated the 27th of April, have directed that the necessity of providing shelter for the destitute at all the relief centres should be urged upon the local officials, in order to prevent the loss of life caused by the want of such shelter during the last rainy season. The Commissioner of Cuttack has also been called upon to report how many of the 350 paupers from Bonomaleepore have taken employment under the Public Works; and the officiating master attendant has been requested to explain why notice of the despatch of tools to False Point was not given to the local authorities.

SLAVERY IN NEPAUL.—With reference to the subject to which we alluded the other day, of the children of British subjects being sold into slavery to the Nepaulese, inquiry has elicited the fact that this degrading custom has obtained amongst the Nepaulese from a very early period. In practice slavery in the interior of the Himalayas is in no way different from slavery as it was amongst the Southern States of America. The Nepaulese consider it hereditary, and dispose of the children of their slaves at their own convenience. Husbands and wives may be separately sold as the interests of their masters may dictate, and may even be deprived of their children for the same reason. The matter is one which seems likely to attract the attention of the Government of India.—Englishman.

CHRISTIANITY AMONG THE GARROWS.—How little most of us know about the Garrows. The voyageur up the Berhampooter after passing Serajgunge begins to sight faint blue ranges of hills far to the north-east, and on asking what they are called, is told "They are the Garrow Hills." What is known about them? "Nothing!" Strange that these hills, which lie directly south of Gawalparah and north of Mymensing should have less known about them than Bokhara or Khoten. And stranger still, that they are yet independent. They include a small strip of territory covered with ranges of hills surrounded by our districts. They are inhabited by a quiet independent hill tribe, the Garrows, who do not interfere with us, and who are described as being manly, and possessed of several other virtues. Strange to say, we just learn that Christianity has penetrated even into their inaccessible and remote regions. The story is a very simple one. A Baptist missionary on a tour gave away two tracts to two Garrows at a fair. These two Garrows were converted and baptised, and have become, as it now appears to be, the apostles to their tribe, for the last report is that thirty-seven have been baptised. It will be a fine sight to see this manly and independent tribe spontaneously becoming Christians.

IMPROVED KHUS KHUS TATTIES FOR BARRACKS.—We have been shown a model on a small scale of an improved khus khus tatty for barracks, devised by Private Francis Kiernan, of her Majesty's 107th Regiment. It is simple in construction, being worked on rollers fixed to the door-frames, and removable at pleasure. If adopted it is calculated to effect a saving of some Rs. 200 for each barrack-room during the season. We hear it is the intention of the inventor to submit his model for the approval of Government, and claim the bonus for the best improvement in khus khus tatties offered some time ago.—Delhi Gazette.

CAPTAIN MARSHALL'S CASE.—Mr. Simson was ordered to go up at once to Cachar to proceed with the trial of Captain Marshall's case, and went up last week by the Thomas Brassey, the steamer of the Eastern Bengal Railway just put on the line. The steamer will, we suspect, be able to proceed up only as far as Sylhet at this season of the year when the river is at its lowest. Mr. Simson is at this time perhaps very near the end of his delicate business. Major Stewart left Cachar for Debrooghur about a week ago.—News and Planters' Journal, May 4.

THE CIVIL SERVICE FURLOUGH RULES.—A communication has been received from the Commissioner of Chittagong, suggesting, with reference to Section I. of the Civil Service Furlough Rules, that it be so construed or amended as to allow of his taking one year's furlough (at present untaken), when he shall have completed his full period of service and residence next year. A copy of this letter has been forwarded for the favourable consideration and orders of the Governor-general in Council, with a statement that the amendment proposed seemed to the Lieut.-governor to be unobjectionable.—Englishman.

THE SON-IN-LAW OF THE NAWAB OF RAMPOR, Mahomed Hussun Khan, has just died from small-pox. The Nawab has also recently lost a faithful servant in the death of Mahomed Ally Buksh, who was one of the confidential advisers of the late Nawab. He distinguished himself by his loyalty to the British Government in 1857, and his services were suitably acknowledged by the Government. The residents at Nynce Tal during the height of the mutiny were frequently indebted to his exertions for supplies.

CHOLERA AT FYZABAD.—We regret to hear that cholera has appeared in Fyzabad, principally among native pilgrims to the holy place of Adjoodhia. There have been also, so we learn, one or two stray cases among the troops stationed there.—Pioneer, May 8.

GRANTS FOR EDUCATION, SCIENCE AND ART.—The sums estimated by the several local Governments and administrations under education, science and art, and the amounts passed by the Governor-general in Council as the grants under that head of service for the ensuing year 1867-68, are as follows:—

Bengal	Rs. 2,312,890
North-Western Provinces	1,158,960
Oude	191,430
Punjab	676,050
Bombay	956,060
Central Provinces	195,850
Madras	960,830

MR. JUSTICE PHEAR.—Some of the judgments of the Hon. Justice Phear have of late given little satisfaction to the public. This may be attributed to his youth and inexperience, for his ability is unquestionable. All that he requires is a little more information on Indian questions and practice. This he will find no difficulty in obtaining, nor would the time required to obtain such information interfere much with his judicial duties. A case lately came before the Small Cause Court in which one of the witnesses, Mr. William Heysham, Deputy Collector of Calcutta and its suburbs, complained of a wrong judgment given by Mr. Justice Phear, which had led to a great deal of confusion and litigation. Mr. William Heysham, however, charitably added—"If I were allowed to discuss the matter with Mr. Justice Phear for half an hour, I am sure I would convince him of it." Now here is an excellent opportunity for Mr. Justice Phear to correct his erroneous views, and obtain accurate information on a subject of considerable importance. He has but to spend one little half-hour with Mr. William Heysham and the business is done.—Englishman.

"PUNCH IN INDIA" for April, 1867, fully sustains its reputation. Wit has not begun to flag in Bombay. The tableaux "Tale of a Shell" are excellent, the figures of the natives almost rivalling those of Atkinson in his Curry and Rice. We subjoin a couple of extracts:—

At a grand concert to be given at an early date (in aid of distressed shareholders in the Bank of Bombay), the following popular melodies will be sung:—

"We'll paddle our own Canoe!" by the chairman of the Bank of Madras.

"Hard times, come again no More!" by the chairman of the Bank of Madras.

"We are coming, sister Mary!" by the chairman of the Bank of Bengal.

After which the secretaries and treasurers of the three presidency banks will exhibit their agility in "A Scotch Reel," during the performance of which Mr. George Dickson will (if he can) upset his Madras and Bombay friends, and put his heel upon their heads; with other "Little Games."—Punch in India, May 6.

DRAINAGE WORKS IN CALCUTTA.—We are told that the Government has authorised the justices of the peace to appropriate towards the completion of the drainage works a sum not exceeding five lakhs of rupees, from the loan granted the town by the Supreme Government for carrying into effect the water supply scheme. These five lakhs are, however, to be repaid by the municipality within a period of six months.—Englishman.

THREATENED FAMINE IN UPPER BURMAH.—It is said that Upper Burmah is now threatened with famine, and that the King is buying up as much grain as he can for his troops. It is supposed that the poor people will have a hard struggle for existence.—Indian Daily News and Bengal Hurkaru, May 8.

MADRAS.

INDIAN IRRIGATION WORKS v. RAILWAYS.

It is perhaps fortunate for the world that so large a proportion of thinking men are partisans who take a side, stick to it and fight for it through evil report and good report. If it were not for such men the judicial minded would have to search out their own facts, seeing only half the bearings of each, and probably arrive at wrong conclusions from insufficiency of information directly and indirectly bearing upon the question to be decided. Barristers are as important men as judges in the administration of justice. The leading counsel for Indian irrigation works are always ready to listen to, not because we believe in all his theories but because we believe in a great part of them, and there is an enthusiasm about what he says which always bears the mark, a crooked one it may be sometimes, of the philanthropist, the self-confident engineer, and the persevering indomitable partisan. When a younger man he believed in irrigation, fought for it and won several battles. As he grows in years he turns it into a hobby and desires to see nothing else. Railways he condemns, not because they are bad in themselves, for Sir Arthur Cotton is a sane man, but because he thinks that no money should be spent on any kind of roads but waterways. To spend sixty millions on railways appears to him to be taking not only bread from his children, irrigation schemes, but from the children of the soil, who perish by millions for want of what water properly regulated would secure for them. And to whom is the bread given? He would prove that it is disposed of in a worse form than giving it to dogs, for dogs are useful sometimes. He leaves common sense to fall back upon figures, which have deluded him before, and which seem destined to delude him for ever. If Sir Arthur Cotton has shown practically the enormous value of irrigation works after their construction, no man has demonstrated so conclusively how dangerous it is to base arguments on figures only. It has been said that by clever manipulation figures may be made to prove anything. But it seems to us that they require the cleverest manipulation to convince a man that his opinions are wrong. As fast as one figure tends to show that he is wrong, others push themselves forward to his ear, like the tail end of Jerry Jarvis' wig, to prove incontestably that he is right. The wise politicians at home, when we last heard of their doings, were trying to prove from figures the rights of the working classes to be represented in Parliament. They were trying to work out by a rule of three sum which men had a right to a vote and which had not. The supersession of one class of officers by another in our local army has been defended on the score that the former are few in number and the latter many—although it has been defended on other grounds also. Figures are snares which catch our shop-keeping race. We are always trying to reduce arguments to percentages and averages, where the figures we use have either nothing to do with the question or form a small part of the inexhaustible statistics which are connected with it.

Let us see now how Sir Arthur Cotton has handled some figures, in order to show the failure which railways have proved in this country. Of course the Godavery and Kistnah are brought into tremendous prominence. By expending three-quarters of a million on irrigation works in these two districts the revenue has doubled and is now nearly a million sterling. "Comparatively unimproved districts" paid 27 per cent. more than they did twenty years ago. But in the districts through which the Madras railway passes, which are stated to be North Arcot, Salem, Coimbatore, and Malabar, the increase in the revenue has been only 10 per cent.; and the outlay on the railway through those districts is put down at six and three-quarter millions, the increase of revenue being $1\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. on that outlay. Thus, Godavery and Kistnah are the fat kine the kindred of which the lean railway districts are eating up. Now, we have to remark, in the first place, that these figures are not accurate, and that the conclusions drawn from them are scarcely worthy of notice. The six and three-quarter millions is a gross misrepresentation, because Sir Arthur Cotton must know that Bangalore, and Cuddapah, and Madras are not in the districts he has named. But, granted that the figures are correct, let us look for a moment at the conclusions they inevitably lead to on the principle of percentages. The two great exemplary districts have paid 60 per cent. on the outlay on irrigation works. Had they been "comparatively unimproved," according to the lowest estimate, considering the fine alluvial soil of which the deltas are composed, they would have increased about one-quarter as much, so that the real increase due to irrigation works is 45 per cent. on the outlay, or 75 per cent. on the revenue twenty years ago. Forty-five per cent. is, we admit, first-rate interest. But it is not to be compared with the results in "comparatively unimproved" districts, where the revenue has increased one-fourth without any outlay at all. As a matter of figures and per centages, this is one of the most satisfactory possible of results. But go to the railway districts. These have absolutely lost 17 per cent. of revenue because a railway passes through them. Surely Sir Arthur Cotton might upon this fact take up his pen and argue that the best thing that can be done is to take up the rails, and let the districts make good at once this 17 per cent. But he spoils all his arguments himself, and does not leave to the journalist's ingenuity to discover many arguments which he himself does not use consciously or inadvertently. He maintains, if we understand him at all, that if railways had not been made, the railway districts would have had their revenue increased 27 per cent. instead of 10 per cent. But he says that this gain of 10 per cent. is due to minor irrigation works rather than to the railway. Thus, after proving that the revenue from railway districts falls short of what it would have been without railways, he does not hesitate to dispute the exclusive right of the railways to claim that the particular districts through which they run have been benefited by them alone. Something, he says, is due to irrigation works. This is blowing hot and cold at one breath. Railways have either done good or harm, and it is absurd to assume the latter in order to condemn them and also to assume the former to show the value of irrigation works. By so doing he lets us into another secret, that the comparatively unimproved districts have not been "comparatively unimproved" without some outlay. For even minor irrigation works cost something constructing. The amount of the outlay under this head, however, is nowhere mentioned. Besides overstating the cost of the railway in the districts Sir Arthur Cotton has chosen to call Railway districts, he leaves out the revenue derived by the railway itself, while there is no separate revenue from irrigation works, which are public property. He may say that Government has to pay five per cent. on the capital of the railway. But, we ask, does Government pay no interest on capital invested in irrigation works? He proves that if the same money had been spent on irrigation as on railways that India would not have known itself. We cannot today tell all the blessings that sixty millions sterling spent on waterworks would have conferred on the country. But what has Sir Arthur Cotton been writing about these last two or three or more years if it has not been in condemnation of the Ganges Canal? That is an irrigation work, and not a railway at all. He tells us that it is not constructed upon the correct principle—that is, it is not an imitation of what has been done on the Godavery. In fact, it has not been constructed as Sir Arthur Cotton thinks it ought to have been from head works downwards, and therefore it is wrong, cannot pay. For an irrigation project to be successful it must be executed according to the "Madras" principle. Now, if an irrigation work ever was planned on the "Madras" principle, if ever an irrigation work was set on foot according to the principles of Sir Arthur Cotton, it was that which Mr. James Thomson used annually to praise up to the skies, the first steps of which were wholly condemned by Colonel Orr long since, and the latter end of which as we see it at present is worse than the first; although we must say that in proportion as the old heaven leaves it the company's prospects appear to improve. Shall we compare the "Madras" principle as exhibited at Kurnool with the opposite principle as exhibited on the Ganges Canal? Is the canal from Kurnool to Nellore going to carry goods at one twentieth of the rates of the railway and return a handsome dividend into the bargain? The answers to these questions are notorious, and we shall not repeat them.—Athenæum and Daily News.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A HARD DEMAND.—It seems rather hard, after all that has been done for Orissa during the past six or nine months, that the public should be asked to come forward once more with their subscriptions to relieve the distress still prevailing in that unhappy province. At the last meeting of the Madras Famine Relief Committee, the Honorary Secretary announced that he had been requested by Lord Napier to bring under the consideration of the committee the propriety of taking some steps towards raising funds for Orissa, his Lordship himself being willing to head the subscription list with a donation of Rs. 1,000. It appears from some official papers on the state of Orissa that were read at the meeting that owing to the floods which occurred in August and September last a large tract of country, estimated at 3,700 square miles, with a population of nearly a million souls, would for the next six months be dependent for food on external supply; that a large portion of this population would have to be supported by alms during this period; and that the outlay required had been estimated at twenty lakhs, of which only a little over three lakhs had been collected. We cannot help thinking that the present is a very unfavourable time for raising further subscriptions; people are not only well satisfied that the Orissa famine was due in a great measure to the "masterly inactivity" of the Government of Bengal, but they are just now disgusted with the claims which Mr. Massey has made for imperial purposes. The relief of the distress in Orissa must fall chiefly on Government; it is only right and proper that it should. We do not anticipate much success, therefore, for the appeal for further funds that has been made to the public in this presidency.—Madras Times.

PRINCE AZIM JAH.—About a dozen of the creditors of Prince Azim Jah have petitioned Government against the Bill recently passed for the examination and settlement of the Prince's debt. They complain that the provisions of the Bill are of such a nature as to prevent any person "having a reasonable regard to his own interests" putting in any claim for payment out of the fifteen lakhs set aside for the settlement. The petitioners object to giving up securities without an undertaking from Government to pay the amount which the Commissioner may find to be due to the claimant. The petitioners believe that her Majesty's Government intended this money to be applied chiefly, if not altogether, "in settling the claims founded upon debts incurred by Prince Azim Jah during the time of his Regency,"—an expression of opinion which perhaps justifies the suspicion that the petitioners are the creditors of that period. The expectation of the petitioners that Government should blindly undertake to pay on "securities" which may be lodged with the Commissioner for examination is, to say the least, somewhat sanguine, nor are we surprised to see that the petition is curtly disposed of by a refusal to forward it to the Governor-General.—Madras Times.

"TESTIMONIAL" TOM-FOOLERY.—The Madras Government has just given what we trust will prove the death blow to an intolerable nuisance. Judging from the "addresses" that are continually being made and the "testimonials" that are continually being presented by the native inhabitants of a town or district to the officials in charge of the same, a stranger would conclude that either Indian officials were a very extraordinary class of men, or that the natives of this country were wonderfully appreciative of the merits of their rulers. For instance, a collector or a sessions judge may be retiring from the service or be transferred from one district to another. Immediately the whole machinery of addressing and testimonialising is set into motion, and does not cease probably till the belauded official's successor has arrived. The departing king will be duly mourned over, and on the fine old principle de mortuis nil nisi bonum, his virtues be fondly recorded in the body of an address; but while proper respect is paid for the departed, the new king is not forgotten. Le Roi est mort—Vive le Roi! is the motto of the address-makers and testimonial-presenters. Having honoured our old chief for what he has done, let us, say they, honour our new for what he possibly may do. Now if these addresses and testimonials came spontaneously from the great body of the people, there would be nothing to say against them; but when it is known that in five cases out of six perhaps they are "got up" by subordinate officials and others in the hope of obtaining "master's favour," it is obvious that they become not only a mere mockery and sham, but very possibly a means of corruption and oppression. The last instance of "testimonialising" is in the case of Mr. R. R. Cotton, the Civil and Sessions Judge of Madura. Having completed his term of service, this gentleman is about to retire. The inhabitants of the district accordingly began to get up the usual testimonial, when Government came down with an order which will fall like a thunderbolt upon all subordinate officialdom. The Government, says the order, "think it desirable that Mr. Cotton should at once make known to any of the native officials of the district, or other persons who may be engaged in raising the subscriptions in question, that he is precluded by the rules of the service from accepting any such testimonial either before or after his retirement, in order that any subscription that may have been collected may be at once returned."—Madras Times.

THE RUMOURED RETIREMENT OF SIR GASPARD LE MARCHANT.—The "Mares' nests" that the Madras papers sometimes get hold of in the shape of news are most amusingly preposterous. Thus, with reference to the retirement of the present Commander-in-Chief, the public has been served with no end of reports as to the cause. One report said that his Excellency had been "ordered" to resign. Another that it was "suggested" that he should resign. A third that it was delicately "hinted" that he should retire. We have been to some pains and trouble to sift these various reports, so eagerly dished up by the Madras papers, to their proper source, and the following may be taken to be the true version, or rather the only real version, for all the reports alluded to were founded on fiction. As regards his Excellency residing in Octacumund being one cause, we are in a position to say that it was distinctly stipulated, when he accepted the post of Commander-in-Chief of the Madras army, that Sir Gaspard Le Marchant should select the spot in the presidency he most pleased for his Headquarters. With reference to disaffection with the appointments made by his Excellency, and his not going out more frequently on tours of inspection, this is merely moonshine. The real cause of Sir Gaspard Le Marchant's voluntary retirement and compulsory resignation will be found to be a vexatious and ungentlemanly interference with his office expenses. The Commander-in-Chief insists on having an office separate from his private dwelling—very properly so—but the "Controller of Finance" will not pass the bill for office rent. No person of common sense we expect will blame his Excellency for the independent attitude he has assumed.—Neilgherry Excelsior, April 27.

MR. TEMPLE AT HYDERABAD.—Mr. Temple has started a Municipal Commission which is to be composed of seven members, and is about to make a tour through the districts during the present month. His general activity, and fluency in the Persian tongue, seemed to have astonished the Nizam. In a recent article in the Friend of India the writer condemned the practice followed by the Residents at Hyderabad of taking off their shoes previous to being ushered into the Nizam's presence. A correspondent at Hyderabad informs us that though Mr. Temple is already on more familiar terms with the Nizam than Sir George Yule ever was, he has hitherto thought it right to follow the old fashion of removing his "shoe leather." Mr. Temple has a great field for his energies in the Nizam's dominions. The Government could not have appointed a better man to the post, and without we are much mistaken, we shall soon see evidences of his vigorous rule at Hyderabad.—Madras Times.

MR. BLANDFORD, OF THE GEOLOGICAL SURVEY, finished his survey of the districts in the basin of the Godavery, reported as coal bearing, on the 17th of last month. The preconceived notions of the geologists in these parts have been proved to be practically wrong. The word of the many gentlemen who have asserted the existence of coal on the Godavery having been confirmed by a geologist, it is possible that they may be believed again. The Godavery coal resembles the Bengal coal, which is an important fact. The rocks are apparently of the Diamondah series. A seam of six feet thick is reported to be composed of fair coal to a thickness of four feet, the rest of the seam being made up of coal of a quality unsurpassed in India. Some of it is on its way to Madras, and one high official is of opinion that both Bombay and Madras can be supplied from the new fields. What is to be done about the Kistnah coal?

HAIL STORMS.—Very unusual and destructive hail storms have lately occurred in the districts of Cuddapah and Bellary. The visitation, as regards the former, was most severe in the Talooks of Adoni, Gooty, and Anantapur, and the hail stones are represented to have been of formidable size, particularly in the last named talook, where the villagers allege that some of the masses of ice were two-thirds of a cubic yard in "size," but whether that means diameter or circumference is not stated. This is most probably an exaggeration, but credible report says that they reached the weight of 3lbs., which we can well believe, as at one place two men, 2,470 sheep and eight cattle were killed, and some houses destroyed. In other parts also there was a loss of both human and animal life. The devastation of the crops, both wet and dry, was likewise very great. No less than seven persons were killed, and many severely bruised, by the hail storms in Cuddapah district, and a widespread destruction of crops took place, occasioning great distress to the ryots. With the foregoing exception, there is no particular remark to be made concerning the season in this presidency.—Athenaeum and Daily News.

FISH CULTURE.—It will be recollected that about a year ago Dr. Day brought out some trout ova from England in the hope of being able to rear the fish in the streams of the Neigherry hills. The experiment did not, unfortunately, succeed; and both Dr. Day and the Government have come to the conclusion that the prospects of success are so small that it would not be worth while to renew the attempt. It is thought, however, that the fish of the low country may be introduced into the Hill streams, and the Collector of Coimbatore has been directed to take the necessary steps for conducting further experiments in this direction.

EXECUTION.—On Saturday morning last (May 11) Madras witnessed a spectacle which is happily not a very common one in this town. The three prisoners, named Narasing Bhau, Gunga Doss, and Pandey, who were sentenced to death at the last sessions for the murder in Madras of Balodeen, a pilgrim, were hanged outside the Penitentiary. An enormous crowd, estimated at ten or twelve thousand people, assembled to witness the execution, and comprised a large number of women and children. Wealthy natives viewed the scene from their carriages, while many respectable-looking East Indians were to be seen walking about with their wives or children. Looking at the composition of the gathering indeed, it was obvious that an execution does not possess the same horrors for an Indian that it does for an English community.—Madras Times.

STOCK AND MONEY MARKET.—(April 13).—Government paper has gone up about 1 per cent. all round since the date of our last report. This advance is not attributed to operations in the local market, but was the result of a rise in securities in Calcutta, where it is believed Government paper has been purchased to a considerable extent for remittance to England. Transactions in Madras have been but limited, and our present quotations are—For Five-and-a-Half per Cent., 109 to 109½; Fives, 104 to 104½; and Fours, 86½ to 87½. Bank of Madras shares are firmer; transactions are reported at 64 premium, with a further tendency upwards. The Bank reduced its rates 1 per cent. all round on the 30th ult.; the rates for loans on Government securities are now, therefore, 7 per cent., and for discount on private bills 9 per cent.

EXCHANGE.—The business at the Banks is still of a very limited character. The quotations for the outgoing mail are—For Bank bills, 1-11½ to 1-11 15-16ths, and a transaction is reported this day at the latter rate; Credits, 2-0½ to 2-0½; Documents, 2-0½ to 2-0½.

BOMBAY.LATEST FROM CABUL.

The news of a battle having been fought in Cabul so recently as April last has given rise to rumours which, when intelligible, are as wild and absurd in their nature as any of those which set excitable politicians by the ears during the struggle for supremacy between the Ameer Shere Ali Khan and his successful rival and relative, Afzul Khan. The expulsion of Ameer Shere Ali, first from Cabul and then from Candahar, and his threatened expulsion from Herat also, whether he had determined to take up his abode, rendered his movements sufficiently uncertain to be a fit subject for the wildest speculation—the more so as a quondam ally of his had gained some success over one of the Cabul generals. Consequently, Shere Ali is one day represented to have plucked up heart once more, to have solicited and obtained help from Persia, or to have gathered together as many sons and cousins as possible, with the object of making a last desperate struggle to regain Cabul; and on the next we are told that the ex-Ameer has suddenly appeared in Kurrachee, attended by a horde of starving Afghans, and that he has received from the Indian Government a pension of ten rupees a day!

Yet amid these highly picturesque rumours reliable information of a few events has been received, which shows pretty accurately how affairs stood in Cabul about a month ago. It may be remembered that about the same time in January last, when Ameer Shere Ali set out from Candahar against the Cabul party, one Fyz Mahomed, who had set up independence in Balkh, was also moving in nominal alliance and co-operation with Shere Ali against Cabul from the north, and had inflicted a severe defeat on Surwar Khan, Azim Khan's son, who had been sent to guard the passes of the Hindoo Koosh towards Bamian against his approach. Shere Ali's defeat, the evacuation of Candahar and flight to Herat, rendered it for some time doubtful whether Fyz Mahomed, notwithstanding his success, might not be obliged to tender his submission to the Cabul rulers. News, however, has been received that on the 23rd April Fyz Mahomed scattered Surwar Khan's force to the winds; that the latter, with eighteen mounted followers, had fled back to Cabul, and the rest of his men had either been killed, captured, or induced to desert to the enemy; and that Fyz Mahomed now openly declared his intention of marching straight on to attack the capital. There was, as we have said, much talk of Shere Ali proceeding to join Fyz Mahomed, but as yet we believe he is still at Herat, his son, Zakooob Khan, being in command at Furrak. In Cabul the Ameer Afzul Khan is greatly disturbed by Fyz Mahomed's victory, and is anxiously calling up his son, Abdool Rehman, with reinforcements from Candahar. By some it is said that Abdool Rehman is unmanageably insane, and has been handed over to the doctors to be treated accordingly. It will thus be seen that the numerous pieces on this ill-defined chess-board have been shaken into combinations; but Afzul Khan, whom the Indian Government recognised, holds his own as yet.—Times of India.

THE GAEKWAR'S TERRITORY.

We have received a copy of the following report to Government on the Baroda administration for the past year. It bears the signature of Col. J. T. Barr, resident of Baroda, and is dated March 12th, 1867:—

"It has now become my duty to submit, for the information of Government, a general review of the Baroda administration for the past year, and I have much satisfaction in reporting that it has been attended with marked success, both as regards H. H. the Gaekwar's relations with my own Government, which have been on the most cordial footing, and as affecting his rule and the welfare of his subjects. There has been perfect harmony with the magistrates and other authorities of the British zillahs around the Baroda territory, and with the political officers in Kattiawar, the Mahee Kanta, Reeve Kanta, and Pahlunpoor. In the month of May last an execution by elephant trampling took place in the city of Baroda, which naturally excited great sensation in the public mind, and attracted the attention of Government, but on the remonstrance and advice of the resident the Gaekwar promised to discontinue the barbarous practice, and intimated his resolve to his Excellency the late Governor by a special khurreea.

"Throughout the Baroda districts in Guzerat proper content and prosperity appear to reign, as I can testify by personal observation of the extent of cultivation and flourishing condition of villages wherever I have myself travelled, and my own observations have been confirmed by the experience of the magistrates of the neighbouring collectorates of Ahmedabad, Kaira, and Surat, with whom I have had opportunities of conversing on the subject. A contract has been given by H. H. for thirty-six lakhs of rupees, for the construction of works to bring a supply of water from the Nerbudda river, a distance of about thirty miles, for the city of Baroda at all seasons, for filling the tanks there and at villages along the line in the dry weather, and for irrigational purposes in times of drought and scarcity. The plans and estimates for the project have been drawn up by Mr. Forde, a civil engineer of note, and submitted for the professional opinion of Government engineers, whose aid to that extent has been granted for this undertaking, the successful completion of which will be followed by benefits it is hardly possible to exaggerate. A tramway, constructed a few years ago, and since almost disused, connecting the important town of Dubhoy with the station of the Bombay and Baroda Railway at Kurjun, has been given on lease for ten years on favourable terms to a respectable company, who are energetically repairing and putting it into such order that engine trains with goods and passengers will run from end to end. A few weeks ago I had the pleasure of travelling by engine along a few miles of it which had been completed, and was much pleased with what I saw, and with the cheering prospects the lessees explained to me. It is their intention hereafter to prolong the line from Dubhoy to the Nerbudda. The whole passes through districts rich in cotton, mowra berries and timber, and as the Durbar have now abolished all vexatious imposts, and established one customs duty, which once paid will free goods to their destinations on the production of tickets, the traffic must eventually be very considerable. Already it has increased at a ratio beyond the lessee's expectation, although engines can be driven no more than half the distance between Dubhoy and Kurjun. In the distant dependency of Okhamundul, long the scene of Wagheer lawlessness, there has been no disturbance of any kind for the last twelve months. The credit is due to the zeal and discretion of Lieutenant Scott, my assistant in that quarter, aided by the cordial co-operation of the Gaekwar manager, and the support of the Durbar here to all measures, advised by the residency, for the improvement of the district. I visited it in December last, remaining there for a night, and witnessed the effects of careful rule everywhere, in security for life and property, in greatly increased area of lands brought under the plough, and in the progressive influx of the cultivating class from other parts of the province of Kattiawar. On my return from Dwarka I touched at Koreenar, where I remained some days with Col. Anderson, assistant in charge of the Umreilly Mehala, Lieutenant Jackson, in command of the newly-organised Baroda Local Battalion, and the Gaekwar's deputy. I had reason to be well pleased, on the whole, with what I thus learnt of the condition of H. H. the Gaekwar's possessions in that part of Kattiawar, which have also been free from serious disturbance for nearly a twelvemonth, and are now so settled that the Durbar have been enabled to commence operations for their revenue survey and assessment. Lieut. Jackson showed me a company of his corps, the equipment and soldier like appearance of which are very creditable. The best feeling exists between Col. Anderson and the Gaekwar's deputy and subordinate native officials. My own position, as resident at this Court, is one which affords me unqualified satisfaction. I have reason to feel assured that I have gained the confidence of the Gaekwar, who evinces desire to accept my advice whenever it becomes expedient or proper to tender it, and readiness to seek my counsel on subjects connected with his administration which appear perplexing to him. Our intercourse is unreserved and reliant. The minister, Govind Rao Roria, has impressed me very favourably, and maintains in my estimation the high place he held in that of my predecessor. All these happy results are owing in a great measure to my having adopted, on conviction, the policy which I find my predecessor had, during his long tenure of office, uniformly followed. In my transactions with the Durbar I have scrupulously respected H. H. the Gaekwar's sovereign rights, and treated his government as independent in the conduct of internal affairs, feeling that no real improvement is to be expected in the Baroda administration unless it takes root within, and that all purely external pressure can be only temporary, and is sure to be followed by the greater reaction when it is removed. Whilst aiming at reform and improvement, I strictly avoid any appearance of dictation, but endeavour to guide the Durbar in the desired direction, imperceptibly, as it were, and to make the Gaekwar feel that progress emanates from himself."—Times of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.RESUSCITATION OF THE COMMERCIAL BANK.

—The scheme proposed for the resuscitation of the Commercial Bank, dated April 17th, bearing the signatures of Messrs. Chadwick, Adamson, McKenna and Co., has fallen very flat on the public in Bombay. It is not disputed that the plan will be greatly to the advantage of creditors, and—so far as it insures their forbearance—will be a relief to the old shareholders and contributories, at least to those of them who are able to raise the £5 each for the "B" shares. It is considered very doubtful indeed that Mr. Holyland's estimate of assets at £200,000 will ever be realised, consisting as so much of it does of land and other very slowly available effects in China; but as these assets, whatever the turnout may prove, will not be lessened in value by the contributories making a definite settlement with the creditors of the Bank, that consideration does not lessen the inducements for the old shareholders to take up the "B" shares that are afforded them in the new bank, and they will, probably, to the extent of their ability, do so in self-defence. With regard to the general public of Bombay who are invited to take shares in the new Commercial Bank, the question is altogether different, and the appeal to them must prove all but barren of results. There are two reasons for this—one general and the other special, either of which must be regarded as decisive against the chance of new shareholders for the revived Commercial Bank being obtained in Bombay. A new and strong exchange bank is needed in this city, and the capital will be found for it by-and-by, but it must be one the management and control of which shall be centered on the spot. After the experience of last year,—notably in the case of the Commercial itself, as well as in that of other London directed banks,—it must be many years before capital for an exchange bank can be raised in Bombay to be placed at the disposal of an English board. The distrust felt in regard to London managers and directors is not to be removed by the sanguine estimates of expensive liquidators or the interested statements of interested projectors. Then with regard to the commercial, long as it is supposed that many of the men associated with the direction and management of the old concern are likely to cluster round the new one, it will be in vain to expect subscriptions from new shareholders in Bombay. Men cannot in these serious matters forfeit confidence one year and snatch it up again the next. These remarks describe, though in far less degree, the feeling with which the revived Agra Bank is regarded on this side of India. No question is entertained as to the great advantage that has accrued to the shareholders from the reconstruction, and the position of the new bank is seen to be thoroughly sound; but more hopefulness would have been felt as to its future course had not some of the old leaven been quite so conspicuous in the new institution. The public are interested in the eloquent exposition of the present state and future prospects of the new bank as given by Mr. Thomson, the chairman, at the meeting of April 17th; but they also attach the full force to his remarks—"the fact that a safe and sound bank had been brought to the position in which the Agra and Masterman's stood in June last, was evidence of mismanagement which could not be denied." As some who were prominently associated with the old bank retain influential positions with the new one, it will be incumbent upon shareholders to be more than ever vigilant in insisting upon the faithful carrying out of Mr. Thomson's "confident assurance"—that "while the bank continues under its present management it will be conducted on the strictest principles of sound and prudent banking."—Times of India.

REPORT UPON COTTON FRAUDS.—The annual report (for the year 1866) from Col. C. W. Walker, Inspector-in-Chief of the Bombay Cotton Frauds Department, has just been published, together with the Government resolution thereon. The funds for this department are mainly raised by a small toll levied on the bales of cotton exported from the ports of Bombay. The total number of bales exported in 1866 were only 939,679, against 1,139,006 in 1865, showing a decrease of nearly 200,000 bales; hence there has been a falling off in the income of the department, the total receipts for the past year being only Rs. 1,83,858, against Rs. 2,26,912, the average of the three years since the passing of the Act, and showing an actual deficiency on the expenditure of the past year of Rs. 34,194. There has also been a demand preferred by Mr. Temple upon the Bombay department, that it should contribute towards the cost of the Cotton Commission appointed during the last year in the Central Provinces and the Berars. The Bombay Government appear inclined to accede to this extraneous demand, and, in order to meet that and the deficiency in the income of the department, have proposed to the Chamber of Commerce to increase the toll on cotton bales from three annas to four (6d.); and it is also proposed to reduce expenditure by curtailing the staff of Mofussil inspectors. The Governor in Council remarks that "one of the principal objects of the Act has been so far attained that the practice of fraudulent packing, once so prevalent, may be said to have been almost put a stop to." Various additional precautions that would reduce to a minimum the chances of fraud and imposition—especially as regards cotton shipped by commission on native account—have been proposed by the inspectors and supported by Col. Walker, but these improvements in the working of the department seem to be objected to or excite dislike on the part of a few European firms. Colonel Walker's report, together with those from his staff, embody a large amount of important information in regard to the changes and present condition of cotton cultivation, experiments with new varieties, and preparation of the staple for the market. Colonel Walker estimates the breadth of land sown with cotton in 1866-7 at 1,955,366 acres, of which 752,085 are under the exotic varieties. The total breadth under cultivation in 1865-6 he states at 1,766,400 acres. He estimates the produce of the crop of 1866-7 at 94,756,794 lbs. of which 35,579,089 are exotic—against a total of 82,698,257 lbs. actual out-turn in 1865-6.

THE BANK OF BOMBAY.—The topic of chief local interest continues to be the condition of the Bank of Bombay. Mr. Dickson, the manager of the Bank of Bengal, is now here, but further discussion of his project for amalgamating the two institutions has but more clearly shown its impracticability. The present condition of the local Bank furnishes a strong illustration of the impropriety of Government partnership in these Banks at all, and it were madness to entertain a proposal to make the State chief and controlling partner in a huge, hybrid institution covering with its five hundred branches a territory two-thirds the size of Europe in extent. The local Government, the community and the shareholders of the Bank are all opposed to the project and in favour of a reconstruction of the old Bank; and the subject would already have passed from the region of discussion but for the exertions of the directors to realise Mr. Dickson's wild ideas. Such a bank as he proposes is wholly without example in the world. We believe it to be literally true that Mr. Dickson himself in broaching it had no adequate idea whatever of what his proposal involved; and to venture such an experiment in India would be to court a great national catastrophe, the issues of which no one could foretell. We must reconstitute the old bank in the interests of all concerned. —Friend of India.

THE JUTTRA AT JEJOOREE.—Mr. T. W. Hadow, Commissioner of Police, Southern Division, has reported to Government, in a letter dated the 8th May, that the jutra held at Jejooree, between the 16th and 20th April, and at which some 90,000 pilgrims had congregated, passed off very satisfactorily, no epidemic of any kind having made its appearance among the pilgrims. A full report on the subject from the acting superintendent had been received by him through the magistrate, from which it appears that the satisfactory result above noticed is mainly owing to the excellent arrangements and precautionary measures made by the Assistant Superintendent, Mr. Abraham David. It appears from what the Assistant Superintendent has written that a large number of pilgrims from Khandeish annually assemble at this jutra, but that this year, owing to the measures taken to dissuade people from attending it, there were scarcely any pilgrims from that quarter. The district police posts situated on roads converging on Jejooree, as well as the village police, had been directed to patrol within their respective beats, along the roads referred to, for the protection of the pilgrims, and they had instructions to stop the progress of those whom they might find suffering from cholera, and to hand them over to the village authorities (to whom medicines had been supplied) for such assistance as the latter could give the sufferers. These measures were deemed especially necessary on the road leading from the shrine of Shumbhoo Mahadeo, where a jutra is held about five days previous to the one which assembles at Jejooree, and from which the influx of pilgrims to Jejooree is consequently great. Government considered the report satisfactory, and the arrangements made by Mr. Abraham David judicious.

THE FATE OF DR. LIVINGSTONE.—For some time past news from Zanzibar has possessed an interest of which it was formerly devoid, as it is from that quarter that any tidings of the lamented Dr. Livingstone are most likely to come. Two vessels have lately arrived at Bombay from the east coast of Africa, one of them bringing another of the sepoys of the 21st Bombay Native Infantry, who had accompanied Dr. Livingstone for some distance into the interior, but had to be left behind in consequence of ill health. This sepoy brought the intelligence that a letter had been received from the great traveller, giving an account of his progress, some particulars regarding the journey, and stating that he was quite well. No great reliance was placed on the story, as the sepoy was very shaky in the matter of dates, and it was soon evident that later information than he could possibly bring had been received by the Bombay Government in the despatches of Dr. Seward. And the inaccuracy of the sepoy's account was placed beyond doubt next day, by the arrival of a ship belonging to the Sultan of Zanzibar, conveying the intelligence that yet further confirmations of Dr. Livingstone's death had been received. The Johanna men who had been in the doctor's service and brought the news of his death had been taken before the sultan or rajah of Johanna, and strictly cross-examined as to the route taken, and the events both before and after the doctor's death. They were also examined by Dr. Kirk, who found that the route they stated to have been taken was the same as that which Livingstone had marked out for himself before starting. Dr. Seward made every inquiry at Keelwah (Quilwa), but failed to obtain any other information. Despatches containing full particulars had been forwarded by Dr. Seward to Lord Stanley and to the Bombay Government, and will doubtless already have been published in England.—Times of India, May 20.

HOME.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

EUROPEAN GARRISONS IN CEYLON, &c.

Mr. OLIPHANT rose to ask questions of which he had given notice, with reference to the European garrisons of Ceylon, the Straits Settlements, China, and Japan; and to move that in the opinion of this House it is desirable to postpone the construction of barracks in those places until after the report of the Select Committee upon the distribution of troops in India and the colonies shall have been received. He assumed that the two great desiderata in posting troops in tropical countries were their health and their discipline, and these objects were best obtained by putting the troops in the healthiest localities, and keeping them there in as large bodies as possible. This course had, however, been reversed notably in Ceylon and the Straits Settlements. It was proposed to keep one wing of a regiment at Ceylon and another at Singapore, and it was proposed to erect barracks at Point de Galle. In his opinion, the erection of those barracks would be highly inexpedient, as there were mountains further in the interior which were resorted to by the inhabitants of the less healthy parts of the country as sanatoria. It was proposed to make a railway to a point near the foot of these mountains, and it would be much better that the barracks should be built in that locality than where they were proposed to be placed at Galle. He did not see upon what possible ground the Government could defend their position in this matter. The object of his present motion was that these barracks should not be built until the whole of the evidence had been laid upon the table of the House, and that he felt to be the more necessary because he was in the possession of evidence which, if he could read, would convince the House of the unhealthiness of the site. It was intended to grant £22,000 for the erection of barracks at Hong Kong. Now he wished to ask whether European troops were to be quartered there or not, because the description of the barracks would depend upon the answer. He would like to know how long our troops were going to be left in Japan, because he thought it was a bad precedent to have our troops quartered in a country in which they had no right to be whatever; and he hoped he should have the assurance of the right hon. gentleman the Secretary for War that the occupation of Yokohama was not going to last, and he hoped, too, that all idea of building barracks at Galle would be given up, for it was a place utterly useless in a strategical point of view, incapable of defence, exceedingly unhealthy, and altogether most undesirable. All that he asked was that the vote should be postponed till after the reception of the report of the committee.

Sir J. PAKINGTON had not the least hesitation in saying that he could promise such a postponement, because it would be impossible to construct any barracks at Galle in a much longer time than that referred to by the hon. member. The Government had come to no decision as to the locality for the barracks. That was a point upon which the Government could not for a moment have an opinion which could be compared with that of the hon. member who had so much personal knowledge of the country. Negotiations were going on between the Colonial-office and the authorities of Ceylon in reference to the construction of the barracks at the expense of that colony, and he could not assume that the authorities in the colony would select a low and unhealthy site for the barracks. He thought he could venture to say that there was no intention of keeping our troops permanently in Japan. In reference to the barracks at Hong Kong, as there was a vote in the estimates, the subject could be better discussed when it was proposed.

Sir H. VERNEY thought the House ought not to be satisfied with the answer of the right hon. baronet, for more men in the army were ill from living in bad barracks than from any other cause, and therefore the matter ought not to be left entirely to the authorities in Ceylon. He hoped nothing would induce the right hon. baronet to sanction barracks in that colony unless they should be constructed in the most healthy situation.

Mr. OLIPHANT having withdrawn his motion, the subject dropped.

MISCELLANEOUS.

PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.—The half-yearly meeting of the shareholders of this company was held on the 5th inst., at the company's offices, Leadenhall-street; Mr. P. D. Hadow in the chair. The report was read by the Secretary. The Chairman said it became his duty to move the adoption of the report. He need hardly say that the report was a very disappointing one, particularly as the shareholders had been accustomed for so many years past to receive a regular dividend. The causes of this disappointment were very clear and simple. They were the enormous increase of necessary outlay, and the almost total cessation of freight which the company had been accustomed to carry for the last fourteen years. The excess they had had to pay in the price of coals alone during the half-year amounted to £42,000, and the amount for specie was only £5,000, as against a previous average of £100,000. There had been almost a total prostration of trade with the East, and the company had been tied to the performance of a complicated series of contracts, which they were performing under a considerable advance in the price of stores and in wages, provisions, &c., which, when the contracts were first undertaken, were from fifteen to twenty per cent. lower than at present. The French company (under the encouragement of the Emperor) was working at a great advantage compared with the Peninsular and Oriental Company, yet even that company was beginning to find that the work it was doing could not be done quite so cheaply as was at first anticipated. The French company had not been slow to profit by the experience of the Peninsular and Oriental Company, and wherever that company found that an improvement could be introduced it was adopted, the result being that in the organisation of its general service it had gained a slight advantage over the Peninsular and Oriental Company. This might help to account for the statement which had appeared in the newspapers that the French mails from Japan arrived ten days before the mails brought by the steamers of the Peninsular and Oriental Company, the fact being, however, that the French steamers did not go one knot, or even half a knot, faster than those of the Peninsular and Oriental Company, but that, having fewer places to stop at, their detention en route was about two days to five occupied by the steamers of this company. In addition to what he had stated the Government were about to employ a fleet of transports between Suez and Bombay for the conveyance of troops to and from India, the result of which would be to diminish the passenger traffic of the Peninsular and Oriental Company pro tanto. Nevertheless, he did not think the shareholders ought to take a desponding view of the position of the company. Although things did not look quite so bright now as they had been, he hoped the shareholders would be patient, and that in the ordinary course of events they would find their affairs taking a more favourable turn—(hear, hear). The contracts about to expire would receive the best attention of the directors from every point of view. The chairman concluded by moving that the report be adopted and printed, and circulated among the shareholders. Mr. Ewart seconded the motion. Several portions of the report were considerably debated, but ultimately the motion for its adoption was carried unanimously, and a vote of thanks to the chairman and directors concluded the proceedings. In reference to the running of two extra steamers a month between Bombay and Suez, a shareholder writes as follows:—"The report of the directors of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Company has been issued, and it must be considered far from satisfactory. It exhibits the possession of a fine fleet which cannot be employed profitably. The experiment, adopted and continued for five months, of 'running two additional steamers each month between Bombay and Suez,' has no doubt occasioned a loss greater than the excess of expenditure over receipts in the six months, represented as £36,000—a large amount, 'for the purpose of ascertaining at what probable expense to the public a weekly service could be conducted,' and which it might have been expected the managers would have been able to calculate by the cost of working the ordinary service. The public have meanwhile gained largely, but the shareholders are placed in an unfortunate position, as there is not only no dividend for the six months, but an actual loss sustained of £136,000, seeing that no provision can be made for insurance or depreciation, which require about £100,000. I wish I could feel the same confidence as the directors that Government will consider the whole question of postal communication with the East in a proper liberal spirit. Past experience does not justify such an expectation."

PRISON DISCIPLINE IN INDIA.—On Thursday, the 6th inst., a deputation from the Social Science Association waited on the Secretary of State for India, at the India-office, to present a memorial on the subject of the gaols and prison discipline in India. Among others who attended the deputation were Miss Mary Carpenter, Sir Walter Crofton, C.B., Mr. James Heywood, F.R.S., Mr. T. B. L. Baker, Mr. T. Chisholm Anstey, Mr. C. R. Lindsay, Major Hutchinson, Mr. H. W. Freeland, Mr. F. Hill, &c. The Hon. Arthur Kinnaird, M.P., having introduced the deputation, Mr. G. W. Hastings, the hon. general secretary of the Association, read the memorial. He said that the death rate in the prisons in India was 130 in every 1,000, while the death rate of the army in India, as given in a recent report, was 69 per 1,000. This high death rate was spread over all classes and ages of persons in all conditions of life, and under proper sanitary conditions ought to exhibit a very small one. He urged that improved treatment, such as that introduced into Ireland by Sir Walter Crofton, should be established. He thought that if reformatory schools were established, and the young offenders sent there, precisely the same results would happen as we have in this country—you would cut off the supply that continually swells the criminal ranks, and prevent young persons growing up into adult ones. Sir Walter Crofton had no hesitation in concurring with the memorial with reference to the point in the memorial with regard to the separation of the prisoners by night. He said that the statute lays it down as imperative upon prison officers. The great difficulty in the way of introducing improvements is the want of money—a great stumbling block once in the way of similar improvements in this country, but which difficulty having been surmounted, no one now regrets the expenditure. It was not expected that the prisons in India could be at once improved, but by beginning as we have done in this country with the long-sentenced prisoners, it would be possible to deal with the difficulty, and to enable future offenders to be properly and systematically treated. Sir Stafford Northcote, in reply, stated that much good would be done by drawing public attention to the matter. At present he could not say anything definite, because, as a matter involving expenditure, it must go before the Council. He would be glad to do all he could to forward the views of the deputation, and considered the suggestion of sending a commission of inquiry from England well worthy of attention. The establishment in the Indian Empire of a system of prison discipline founded on the same sound principles as those adopted in this country is the object which the committee have in view in thus addressing you.

ARRIVAL OF TROOPS FROM INDIA.—CHATHAM, June 13.—The time-expired non-commissioned officers and men and other troops from the various regiments serving in India arrived at Gravesend yesterday, and, after being disembarked under the direction of the officials connected with the Quartermaster-General's staff, were forwarded to their respective corps. The troops who arrived at Gravesend numbered two hundred and sixty men of all ranks, belonging to the 3rd Dragoon Guards, 6th Dragoons, 7th Hussars, 20th Hussars, Royal Artillery, Royal Engineers, 35th, 49th, 1st, 82nd, 106th, 109th, 8th, 42nd, 79th, 93rd, and 103rd Regiments, with 20 women and children. On the troops being disembarked they were forwarded to join their respective corps at Chatham, Maidstone, Woolwich, Canterbury, Colchester, Aberdeen, and Shorncliffe.

CAVALRY REGIMENTS RETURNING FROM INDIA.—We feel much pleasure in being able to announce that the formal sanction of the Treasury has been given to the proposal of the War-office to allow the second major of each cavalry regiment coming from India to be retained as part of the regular establishment of the corps on home service, the augmentation majority in the outgoing regiment going as a promotion to the senior captain. In consequence, Major Wirgman, of the Inniskilling Dragoons, will not be moved, and Captain Moore obtains the second majority of the 4th Hussars.—Army and Navy Gazette.

INSPECTOR-GENERAL OF RECRUITING.—We understand that the new office of Inspector-general of Recruiting has been offered to Colonel Edmund Haythorne, half-pay, of the 1st Foot, who was for some time Adjutant-general in India. A better selection could not have been made. We fear, however, that Colonel Haythorne will not accept the post which involves subjection to two masters—War Office and Horse Guards—that are not always of one mind.—Army and Navy Gazette.

EXTRA PAY TO THE TROOPS.—We are glad to say that an order will be issued from the War Office, almost immediately, for the payment of the extra two pence a-day to the non-commissioned officers and men of the army. The increase of pay will date from the 1st of April, and the arrears from that day will be at once disbursed.—Army and Navy Gazette.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The biddings for Government bills on India took place on Wednesday, the 5th inst., at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were: to Calcutta, 12,48,000 rupees; to Madras, 1,75,000 rupees; and to Bombay, 5,85,000 rupees. The minimum price was fixed as before—viz., at 1s. 11½d. on all the presidencies. All tenders at and above the minimum will receive in full. It appears from these results that the demand for remittance to the East continues sluggish.

DEPARTURE OF THE CALCUTTA AND CHINA MAILS.—(SOUTHAMPTON, June 4.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Pera, Captain Jamieson, sailed this afternoon with the mails for Gibraltar, the Mediterranean, Egypt, Aden, Ceylon, India, and China. She took out fifty-four passengers, and a full cargo, including gold coin, £1,072. 10s.; gold thread, £1,977; dollars, £3,430; and watches, jewellery, pearls, &c., £1,289. 6s. 6d.

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY BOMBAY MAIL.—(SOUTHAMPTON, June 10.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company's steamer Eurine, with the heavy portion of the above mail, ninety-seven passengers, £1,229 in specie, and a general cargo, has arrived here. She experienced fine weather throughout the passage.

APPOINTMENT.—(Downing-street, June 5.)—The Queen has been pleased to appoint Hugh Bold Gibb, Esq., to be a Member of the Legislative Council of the Colony of Hong Kong.

DIRECT COMMISSIONS.—We are requested to state that there will be two examinations for Direct Commissions in August next, commencing on Thursday, the 1st, and Thursday, the 8th, respectively.

THE DELHI RAILWAY COMPANY have announced a fresh issue of £2,500,000 of capital, in accordance with powers taken at the meeting in September last. The allotment is to be pro rata to the existing shareholders.

THE EAST INDIA COMPANY.—At the general annual meeting of the East India Company, held on Wednesday, Colonel Sykes was re-elected chairman for the year ensuing.]

TEXTILE MANUFACTURES and COSTUMES of the PEOPLE of INDIA

BY J. FORBES WATSON, M.A., M.D., F.R.A.S.,
Reporter on the Products of India.

Imperial 4to, morocco back, cloth, with numerous Coloured Photographs. £3. 5s.

This work—by affording a Key to the Fashions of the People, and to the Cotton, Silk, and Wool Textiles in actual use in India—is of special interest to Manufacturers, Merchants, and Agents; as also to the student and lover of ornamental art.

"If the manufacturer studies this book carefully he may add thousands a year to his profits, and there are not five books in the world of which that could be said. Altogether this book is thoroughly creditable to Dr. Forbes Watson's industry and acumen, and to the liberality of the India-office."—Spectator, Jan. 5, 1867.

"The conception of this splendid work reflects the highest credit upon the wisdom of the department to which we are indebted for its publication: and the manner in which it has been executed by its author, Mr. J. Forbes Watson, is conclusive evidence of his being the right man in the right place. No one can fully appreciate the value of this work without seeing it. Because neither analysis nor extracts can give any idea of the immense mass of minute facts which it contains and the admirable manner in which they are grouped and made subservient to the practical requirements of the manufacturer and the merchant, and the cravings of the student of ornamental art. The illustrations are as magnificent as they are appropriate. In fact, as mere productions of beauty and taste, they give the work the air of a book of art luxury, and we have no doubt that from this feature it will find many admirers and purchasers beyond the ranks of trade and commerce. We ought to state that the Secretary of State for India not only deserves the highest praise for having had this work prepared and distributed, but likewise for having allowed a publisher to use the type and photographic plates so as to be able to produce a certain number of copies for sale. In no other way could copies of this unique and costly volume have been offered to the public at a reasonable price."—Morning Post, Jan. 3, 1867.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Bombay mail brings us our usual files of papers from Calcutta to the 18th of May, Madras to the same date, and Bombay to the 23rd of May.

"The mails for England," says the Indian Daily News, "have lately been leaving in such quick succession, and there is so little stirring in this quarter of the world, that our records of intelligence can scarcely keep up to the pace. A mail left on the 8th, another on the 13th, and one leaves to-day; so that we have three in the short period of eleven days. The departure of the Indian mails is to a certain extent necessarily irregular, but it is possible, we think, when the weekly service is resumed after the monsoons, to make some better arrangements in this respect. The Indo-European line of telegraph has been working very satisfactorily, the latest of Reuter's telegrams being dated the 14th of May."

The licence-tax still continued the great grievance in Calcutta, and the Indian public, we are told, was not quite satisfied with the English press for having overlooked the nature of the impost in its comments upon the Budget. With the apparent object of showing the public that it can and will collect the tax, the Government has published a statement showing that up to the 1st instant 878 licences had been issued, bringing in a revenue of £86,452. It is intended to publish weekly returns showing the process of collection.

The reports from the afflicted districts in Orissa are not considered favourable. "Prospects are extremely satisfactory, rain having been abundant, and a large area having been sown; but until these prospects are realised, the necessity for regular relief will continue. The poor starving wretches are less reluctant now to apply for relief than when the operations were initiated, and one-half of the applicants were in a moribund state. The fatality, as a consequence, is considerably reduced. This increasing demand for relief, as well as the rising prices of grain, and the fact that those who do not require relief are living, as it were, from hand to mouth, renders great care and caution necessary on the part of Government. Vast quantities of rice are, however, being imported, and Government is dealing liberally enough to dispel any apprehension of a recurrence of the horrors of the past year. The protection and support of a large number of orphans has devolved on Government, which has made a monthly allowance, to last till the end of the year, of Rs. 2 each for their support."

There were several rumours in Calcutta which may be taken for what they were worth. One was that the Secretary of State would not veto the Licence-tax; a second that Captain Jervis was not to be dismissed; a third that the Nana is still alive in Nepal.

Several brigade appointments were likely to become vacant by the promotion of the brigadiers to the rank of major-general.

Cholera still prevailed at Umballah. Her Majesty's 94th Regiment had lost twenty-one men, and the natives in the surrounding villages were dying in large numbers.

It was reported at Madras that General McCleverty is to be the successor of Sir Gaspard le Marchant in the local command-in-chief.

Great discontent has been caused in Ceylon by the Home authorities reducing the allowances of the higher ranks of officers. The General Order not only does not reserve the claims of the present holders of appointments, but it cuts down the command allowances to £410, while an officer who draws that sum for commanding a regiment, gets nothing additional if appointed to command a garrison. Colonel Layard, an officer of thirty-four years' service, who commands a regiment which is to be raised in strength so as largely to garrison the Straits and Ceylon, will be nearly £30 the poorer in monthly income—will draw only a few pounds more per annum than many a Civil Servant of not half his service. Colonel Hamilton, C.B., who fought with the gallant 78th under Havelock and Clyde, will be rewarded by a fine of £150 per annum. The Observer is anxious that the colony should not be charged with this meanness and injustice; the saving will not affect the colony, which pays a fixed military subsidy.

From Bombay we learn that the reconstruction and amalgamation schemes are both to be submitted to the shareholders of the Bank of Bombay on June 4th. The basis of the proposed amalgamation has been published. The additional capital to be raised is Rs. 1,42,03,750, to be allotted at a uniform premium of 20 per cent., of which Bombay is to furnish Rs. 70,53,750, and Bengal Rs. 71,50,000.

It is stated that Chief Justice Sir Fitzroy Kelly, on behalf of a shareholder, for whom he is a trustee, has written to Bombay for full information concerning the management of the Bank of Bombay during the past two years.

The Bombay shareholders and creditors of the Commercial Bank have passed a resolution in favour of the resuscitation of the bank, and appointed a committee to carry the resolution into effect.

Captain Waterfield, Assistant Commissioner of the Settlement of Goojrat, has been attacked and slightly wounded by a native in a village of that province while walking with Major Smyly, Officiating Deputy Commissioner. The assailant was knocked down by the officers and secured.

The Bombay papers publish the telegrams relating to the reported mutiny at Meerut—or “Great,” as it was called in the message received in this country. They are certainly of a character well calculated to cause alarm. We must wait for next mail, however, for particulars of the panic on the spot which will doubtless induce a great deal of malicious amusement.

The ex-Ameer Sher Ali Khan is likely once more to be seated in Cabul. On the 23rd April his supporter, Sirdar Fyz Mahomed, who has so frequently driven back the Ameer Afzul Khan's troops in his march from Balkh to Bamian, utterly routed them again. Surwar Khan, with only eighteen followers, fled by a side road to Bamian; 120 of his men were killed or wounded, and the rest, in the true Afghan fashion, went over to the victor. Afzul Khan, in a panic, has summoned aid from Candahar. He is not likely to secure more than 2,000 men. The ruler of Chareekar has reported the disaffection of the people and large desertions among the troops there. By our last authentic intelligence Fyz Mahomed was within thirty miles of Cabul, at Sar Chashma. He is likely to seize the capital before reinforcements can arrive from Candahar.

It is stated that the Cabul Chieftains have applied to Russia for aid, which was refused.

From all three Presidencies heavy storms are reported.

The next arrival from India will be the Calcutta mail, which is due in London on the 27th inst.

We have received the annual report upon Indian railways, by Mr. Juland Danvers, and shall refer to it in our next.

A TELEGRAM, dated St. Petersburg, Wednesday, says:—Despatches received here from Orenburg state that 2,600 Bokharians have advanced against the fort of Karabaidak, and killed fifteen Cossacks. They have cut off communication with the remaining fortresses of the country, and threaten Karabaidak itself. In consequence of these operations the export of cotton from Bokhara is rendered extremely difficult, notwithstanding that a great want of the article exists at Orenburg.

THE BANK OF GUZERAT.—A meeting of the shareholders of the Bank of Guserat was held at its offices in Bombay on May 16th—Mr. G. P. Robinson in the chair—for the purpose of confirming the resolution to wind up, which was passed at a previous meeting of the bank at Surat, and for appointing liquidators, &c. The chairman, having stated the objects of the meeting, said that as had already been intimated at the last meeting at Surat, Mr. G. Dunlop and himself were willing to act as liquidators without remuneration. He then moved that the resolution to wind up the bank be confirmed. Mr. Dunlop seconded the motion, and it was carried. Mr. Hossack of the Royal Bank, moved that Mr. G. P. Robinson, H. G. Dunlop, and Lalshunker Boorabhoj be appointed liquidators. Mr. Jehanghier Guaruljee seconded it, and it was carried unanimously. Mr. Jehanghier then moved a formal resolution giving the liquidators power to compromise, which was seconded by Mr. Dosabhoj Dungebhoy, and carried. A vote of thanks to the chairman brought the meeting to a close.

COMMERCIAL ASSOCIATION.—A meeting of shareholders of the Bombay Commercial Association, in liquidation, was held on May 20th, to consider the accounts of the liquidators, Messrs. J. Bogie and Lukhmidas Khemjee; Mr. J. Bogie was called to the chair. The company has been under liquidation since last year, and a statement of its affairs and accounts was placed before the meeting, from which it appeared that Rs. 10 per share have been already distributed among the shareholders, and that the remaining assets, when collected, would probably yield a further dividend of ten annas per share.

INDIAN PROGRESS.

MR. WATERFIELD's second report upon the moral and material progress of India has just been issued by the department. The period under review embraces the financial year 1865-66. The statement is a far more elaborate one than its predecessor, the preparation of which was attended by difficulties arising from want of adequate material. But the order of Parliament for an annual return upon this subject being imperative, the requirements of the case have since been better supplied, the result being a very interesting paper—comprehensive in range, compact in particulars, and in every way adapted to the purpose intended.

The extent of the information contained in this report may be estimated from the fact that it comprises fifty-two “Blue-book” pages. It would be difficult, therefore, in our limited space, to make any analysis of the contents, so we can only refer our readers to the document itself, which may be obtained in the same manner as other Parliamentary returns. It may be useful, however, to notice the chief points of a statistical abstract relating to India which has been presented to Parliament during the present session, a digest of which appears in Mr. Waterfield's report.

From this we gather that the population of the portion of India which is under British administration is 144,674,615; that of the Native States, 47,909,199; and that of the territories under the French and Portuguese Governments, 517,149; the total population of India (exclusive of the Straits Settlements) being 193,100,963. The gross revenue of India showed, with scarcely an interruption, a steady annual increase from £20,124,038 in 1839-40 to £31,706,776 in 1857-58. In the next three years more than eleven million sterling were added to the receipts, which were £36,060,788 in 1858-59, £39,705,822 in 1859-60, and £42,903,234 in 1860-61. The highest point was reached in the last year shown in the paper, namely, 1864-65, when they amounted to £45,652,897. The gross expenditure, which in 1839-40 was £22,228,011, had risen by the year ending on the 30th of April, 1857, to £31,608,875; in the three following years it amounted, in consequence of the heavy expenses attendant on the Indian mutinies, to £41,240,571, £51,056,930, and £51,861,720, respectively. On the reduction of the military expenditure taking effect the charges fell to £48,154,087 in 1860-61, £44,870,232 in 1861-62, and £44,053,122 in 1862-63, since which date they have again risen to £46,450,990 in 1864-65. In the first ten years of this return, comprising as they do the Affghan, Sikh, and Punjab wars, there was an annual deficiency varying from £627,401 to £2,103,973; but from 1849-50 to 1852-53 there was a surplus each year, averaging about £630,000. Three more years of deficit, and a small surplus of £82,140 in 1856-57, were succeeded by the enormous deficiencies of £9,533,795 in 1857-58, £14,996,142 in 1858-59, and £12,155,898 in 1859-60. This was reduced to £5,250,853 in 1860-61, and £1,040,760 in 1861-62, which was followed by the prosperous year 1862-63, when a surplus of £1,090,630 was realised. In 1863-64 there was a deficit of £368,974, and in 1864-65 of £798,093.

The public debt of India amounted in 1839-40 to £34,484,997, from which time it was augmented by an average annual increase of a little under a million and a half sterling, till it was, on the 30th of April, 1857, £59,461,969. An addition of upwards of thirty-eight millions in the next three years brought it up to £98,107,460 in 1859-60, and in 1861-62 it attained its highest point—that of £107,514,159. From that date it has been gradually reduced, and in 1864-65 it had been brought down to £98,477,555.

The decrease in the debt, it will be seen, is not considerable; but the rise which has taken place in the revenue, caused by increasing development of the resources of the country, bids fair to make short work of the burden. Take the article of cotton alone. This is now the chief article of export, the trade in it having sprung up to a remarkable extent since the commencement of the American war. In 1849 the value of the quantity exported was £1,775,309, and in 1859 it had gradually risen, after many fluctuations, to £4,034,100. In the four following years the value was declared at £5,637,624, £7,342,168, £10,203,470, and £18,779,040. In 1864 it rose to £35,864,795, and in 1865 to £37,573,637. In opium and other productions there has also been a remarkable rise. The only article of importance which shows a material falling off is sugar and sugar candy.

31st of December, 1865, to £60,039,043, of which £58,679,990 had been expended. The amount of interest paid up to the same date was £15,965,856. The length of line open on the 30th of June, 1865, was £2,747, and the net receipts for the year ending on that day, after defraying the working expenses, were £1,409,632.

About 30 millions of money had been spent on works of public improvement between the years 1853-54 and 1864-65, or an average, if allowance be made for the interruption of all progress during the mutiny, of about 3 millions per annum. The outlay on original works (including repairs) in each of the years 1863-64 and 1864-65 was upwards of £2,700,000. These amounts do not include the expenditure on military works or civil buildings, which, if added, would raise the sum total annually expended at present to nearly four millions and a-half sterling; nor is any mention here made of the allotments for State expenditure on guaranteed and aided undertakings, loss by exchange, grant from the one per cent. income-tax exclusively devoted to local works, or the unappropriated grant remaining at the disposal of the Government for special distribution wherever most needed.

The picture of progress here presented does not bring us to the date of Mr. Waterfield's statement, which shows even more flattering results. But his statistics are more or less incomplete, owing to the want of proper machinery, such as is now being put in force. This requirement was pointed out to the Government of India last year, and in reply they transmitted a set of forms which had been prepared by the Statistical Committee sitting at Calcutta, based, as far as the circumstances of India would permit, on the model adopted by the International Statistical Committee of 1860. These returns are divided into five principal headings, and comprise full particulars on the various points respecting which information is likely to be desired by those interested in the progress of our Indian empire. The first class, containing statistics of physical, political, and fiscal geography, will show the area, character of the surface, and climate of the several British districts and native States; the political relations existing with the latter; the character of the administration in the civil divisions of British territory; the population, classified according to sex, religion, and occupation; the extent of land surveyed, the rate of assessment, the nature of the tenure, and description of the revenue realised. In the second class, or statistics of protection, are comprised statements relating to the course of legislation, the working of the judicial courts, the mode in which the prisons are conducted, and the character of the police force, army, and marine establishments. The third part, concerning production and distribution, includes the subjects of finance, public works, agriculture, prices of produce and labour, mines and quarries, manufactures and trade, coinage, currency, and charitable institutions. Under the fourth heading will be found statistics of instruction, including the ecclesiastical and educational establishments, scientific and literary societies, and the press. The fifth portion will contain returns relating to life, the number of births, marriages, and deaths, the working of the dispensaries and hospitals, and the operations of the vaccination department.

It is not expected, we are told, that for the present, at any rate, the whole of these forms can be filled up with accuracy; but it is believed that much of the information is already in existence, and can be readily given if the Government officers understand in what manner it is desired that the returns should be made; and the adoption of the former has, therefore, been sanctioned, due discretion being exercised to avoid giving offence to popular prejudices.

BENGAL.

CALCUTTA.

The two features which mark the municipal administration of the metropolis during the three years of its existence are reckless because uncontrolled expenditure, but also very considerable improvements. When at last Calcutta awoke to the fact that in everything affecting the health, comfort, and convenience of its citizens it was immeasurably behind cities of half its wealth and importance, its justices rushed to the work of reform with a zeal which set all mere pecuniary considerations at defiance. Salaries were voted and appointments created, engineers were engaged only to be allowed a holiday in England, and their crude projects were sanctioned at a glance. Loans were floated and financial schemes were entertained, with a magnificent contempt for counting the cost which it is not safe even for millionaires to show. A municipality with an annual income of only £131,738 is accumulating a debt, half of which is at 6 per cent., of a million sterling, and has come under engagements to engineers and contractors which add seriously to the burden. Even last year one-sixth of the net income was spent as interest on half the debt; and it seems by no means improbable that, before the drainage and waterworks are completed, one-third of the income will have to be set aside for interest. So recklessly have expensive appointments been created that no less than £23,714 was spent on establishments, leaving but £25,412 for conservancy, and £40,934 for the repair of roads—the very duties for which the municipality was called into existence. No one would object to the borrowing of capital for drainage and waterworks, too long neglected, if there were the slightest guarantee that the engineering plans were reliable, that the expenditure would not enormously exceed the estimates, or that the works when completed will be worth the money. The corporation has done nothing but engage engineers only to send them home and keep them there, while their designs are crude and specifications imperfect, or the contracts in which they have entangled the city involve indefinite expense. Could anything be more disgraceful than the confessions and complaints repeated in every page of Mr. Stuart Hogg's report for last year, that the revenue of the city is not collected, that the accounts are in hopeless confusion, and that it is impossible to declare what the drainage works have cost in detail? And with all this the citizens have the satisfaction of feeling that they are taxed as much as some of the most burdened parishes in London, though there is no poor rate. The sum of £23,714 is paid to an establishment which produces such results as these. It would be well for Government, which is advancing a loan at 4 per cent., to insist as a condition on a radical reform in the financial arrangements of the borrowers. Mr. Stuart Hogg seems to be introducing a new regime, but his zeal has not always of late been manifested in the right direction. In the various establishments and, above all, in the engineering department, there is ample scope for the genius of a financier of the Trevelyan order.

But, money apart, the most ill-natured grumbler must admit that very great improvements have been made or are going on in Calcutta. The drainage works have been pushed forward with a vigour which would be admirable were it not the case that the highest authorities, medical and engineering, doubt if close drains, levels so slight as to tempt the deposit of organic matter, and the accumulation of the sewage of a million of people in the salt marshes will not, as we predicted some years ago, poison the whole city. If, however, these now very general fears prove baseless, then it is satisfactory to learn that the expenditure of a million sterling will result in the completion of the drainage of the Belgravia of Calcutta, south of Park-street, by the end of the year. There is not the same doubt about the waterworks, which will do much, by flushing, to make the new drains successful if they admit of success at all. These works are fortunately in the hands of contractors who must finish them for the fixed sum of about half a million sterling in three years, and are not at the mercy of municipal engineers and establishments whose interest it is to prolong a large expenditure. Fortunately, too, the only discussion as to these works is that raised by Dr. Waldie, who holds that the Hooghly water close to Calcutta is so good as to render the expense of going fifteen miles up the river unnecessary—an unanswerable argument for the superiority of the water to be brought from such a distance at least. The city is already well lighted, and the marked absence from the columns of our daily contemporaries of complaints as to the state of the streets may be accepted as a testimony to their efficient repair and watering, even if we were not told that stone is almost everywhere fast taking the place of brick metal. Nor has the forty-one thousand pounds spent on the streets been confined to those frequented by the English inhabitants for business and pleasure. We rejoice to see that the native quarter has at last had justice done to it, having received almost double the amount spent on the European town. The public improvements, which are more patent to the eye of the occasional visitor to Calcutta, are both numerous and important. Such buildings as the Post-office, High Court, Sailors' Home, Agra Bank, Dalhousie Institute, the foundations of the University and India Museum and several of the Dalhousie-square shops, are due to the Imperial Government or to private energy. But the Municipality ought to enjoy the credit of the Clive-row extension, which has opened out a new artery in the busiest part of the city; of the Nimtollah extension, which will do the same for the crowded native town; of digging or ameliorating the state of tanks chiefly in the same quarter; of making Cossitollah—now Bentinck-street—less of a filthy cul de sac, as well as Old China Bazaar. The Town Hall is at last worthy of the metropolis. The good work of converting into squares and building sites, or of driving avenues for fresh air through the fifteen fever-breeding collections of huts called Bustees, is proceeding. Those important functionaries the public scavengers have been reorganised and equipped in a civilised or, as the Health Officer would term it, hygienic fashion, and the public latrines have been arranged, and, when water comes, will be cleansed in a way which promises to remove one of the three great causes of zymotic diseases in Calcutta, as Bustees and choked drains are the other two. Above all, the fifteen great bazaars or markets, which supply with food the million of people who daily reside in or frequent the metropolis, have been cleansed and improved. That nest of miasma at the corner of Chowringhee, from which all the Europeans are daily fed, has become at least less filthy and offensive to the eye. Were it not private property the improvement would be greater. Madhub Dutt's Bazaar, which long offered the stoutest obstacles to all change, has become the finest in Calcutta, that part of it devoted to fish being laid with artificial stone. The new slaughter houses will be ready before the close of the year, and all the skinning is undertaken by an English firm at a distance from Calcutta, so that neither the city nor the river is polluted. This year, too, will see the completion of the new arrangements for consuming Hindoo bodies.

Altogether Calcutta has blundered into improvement at the last moment in the good old English fashion. Its seventy or eighty justices are content with the watery eloquence of such ornaments to their number as Messrs. Roberts and Remfry, but have failed utterly to do the only thing for which they are really fit—to control the extravagant expenditure of the executive and insist on decent audit. With their chairman the responsibility for progress must rest, and Messrs. Schalach and Hogg have hitherto been quite equal to that, except in so far as his double powers of Commissioner of Police and a Government official in such capacity have misled the latter. But Mr. Hogg is improving, and in time there is a hope that even the Legislative Council will attempt to do some higher work than introduce or pass an amended Calcutta Municipal Act every Saturday. In five years, if the drainage works are not a mistake, there is a prospect of seeing Calcutta far superior, in sanitary arrangements, civilised conveniences, and public buildings, to any other city south of the Danube. But if the new drains realise the almost unanimous expectations of professional men, then Calcutta must be content to have buried a million and a-half sterling in the mud, and must begin again on a new plan—or migrate to Port Cauning.—Friend of India.

AN APOLOGY FOR THE KING OF BURMAH.

MANDELAY, April 12.

All the journals in India are in favour of annexing this country to the British empire in the East, because the King of Burmah refused to enter into a new treaty. Certain articles of the proposed treaty did not exactly suit the king nor his advisers, and had one of the articles been properly framed it would certainly have met the sanction of the Burmese Government. This article was with reference to reducing the import and export duties on the frontier to 5 per cent. This was agreed to. But this was to be tied up with a request from the British Government that a British officer should be stationed at Minhlá to see this provision strictly carried into force. Why not so have worded and made it less humiliating? Could it not just as well have been said "that at the request of the King of Burmah a British officer shall be placed at Minhlá, &c.?" Again, the British Government required that the agent here should try all cases in which foreigners were interested. The Government here required an equivalent. They wanted an agent in Rangoon to try all cases in which the subjects of his Majesty were interested. On these two points was the split. As to monopolies, every nation has a right to frame its own laws and regulations. In British Burmah have you not monopolies? For instance, no opium is allowed to be imported except by the Government for local consumption. Is this not a monopoly? Again, you sell the right to sell by retail intoxicating liquors, but you make a proviso that the farmer must purchase his liquor from the man whom you have licensed to manufacture! If the farmer can purchase the drug cheaper from any other source why not let him? No, if you did you would not get that heavy license duty to manufacture that intoxicating drug. Turn and twist it whichever way you will it is all monopoly.

I am sorry to find that the whole of the Indian journals have been misled as to the state of the country and people, and I must emphatically deny that the latter desires our mild rule of heavy taxation. There are one or two agitators here who have not been able to do as they wish, and these are the men who are daily striving to sow discord amongst the people. They get hold of a Times or a Gazette and interpret which way they will to suit their convenience, holding out threats that the kúllas (foreigners) are coming to take the country—we are arming below, and so on. There are three French adventurers who are continually speaking ill of the king, for no other earthly reason than because he does not require their services. He has had one Frenchman, a drunken, low fellow, for years. He would have been discharged long ago, but through the intercession of the late heir-apparent he was retained in his employment.

I am fully aware that there is a great deal of bribery, corruption, and oppression being carried on throughout the country. This is not known to the King. Whenever anything of this sort comes to his knowledge, woe be to the offender; but what can his Majesty do when his own Ministers or servants dare not speak the truth before him? However, with a press and the telegraph about to be constructed to 'Thayetmyo' I trust that Burmah Proper will see more prosperous days than she has ever witnessed. I wrote to you some time ago about the Yaw Atwin Won. That letter was translated by two persons, and on inquiry his Majesty found the allegations therein contained correct, and had the gentleman at once turned out of office with disgrace. Since the rebellion he has, through the intercession of one of the Queens, been put in a minor office, and is again playing his old tricks. It is in the mouth of every one—"He is the curse and ruin of the country." My firm opinion is that he will eventually aspire to a higher standard than he formerly held, which will be no less than the crown and sceptre of Upper Burmah.

A more good-hearted, kind, generous, and affable man than the King of Burmah does not exist. I make no exception even of the Frys and Howards, but I must frankly admit that there are one or two who are continually spoiling any good intentions which his Majesty may be inclined for. I would wish more particularly to allude to a Goanese (formerly a cook or a butler), a man without the slightest education, for he can neither read nor write, and yet for a fee or a commission he will do his best to humbug, and is continually poking his nose in things that do not concern him. There is a letter daily expected from the Consul-general of France at Calcutta anent the interference of this man with certain property of a widow now in Europe, and who has left an agent here to manage her affairs. The agent asked for his beer. The Goanese replied, "I drank it." For the sake of humanity the King ought to pension this fellow off and let him go about his business, but the best of it is that this illustrious chevalier (dubbed by the Pope as such) is under the delusion that the King cannot do without him. The telegraph would have been up to Thayet three years ago, but our noble chevalier put in a petition for the contract and it was given to him. A Major Barlow was here at the time. The chevalier tried to sell his contract to the major, but they could not come to terms, and the telegraph was dropped and fell into oblivion.

The only indefatigable officer the king has for the Kullas (foreigners) is the Kullawon, who receives a small pittance of ten per cent. in cases tried before him. The fees attached to his office do not average 25 per month, yet he is obliged to keep up a very heavy establishment. The 10 per cent. ought to be abolished and pay allowed by the Government equal to his rank and to keep up his dignity amongst the Europeans.

The smallpox has carried off more than ten thousand children, and has not abated much up to the present time. There will be no water post this year, on account of the epidemic still raging.—Correspondent of the Friend of India.

THE ANDAMAN ISLANDS.

A flea may be a very insignificant specimen of the animal creation; it may form a very interesting micographical subject, but its bites are extremely distressing, and to greater animals such insectilities are a prolific source of annoyance. Analogously it may be said that the greater and more powerful Governments of the world experience the most annoyance from the most insignificant representations of nationality. The present Abyssinian monarch has caused more annoyance to British feeling, and extended that annoyance over a longer period, than even a European Power would have been successful in doing, or even thought of doing. The Maori has been a sore in the side of the British Government for many years, and many a brave heart has ceased to beat under the sure aim of the Maori marksman. Bhootan and its contemptible Dheb and Dhurm Rajahs have proved another thorn, and now the naked man-eating savages of the Andamans are likely to be a cause of perplexity to Government. Of course these poor wretches can easily be subdued or swept away, but it shocks our humanity, our instinctive sentiments of race feeling, to think of the extermination of a race of aboriginals; and we might have allowed these islanders to indulge in their reputed cannibalistic propensities for many years to come so long as we knew nothing as to who formed their repasts, but for the fact that this is impossible in consequence of the closer contact into which we are brought with them. We have chosen to colonise some of the islands of the Archipelago, and we consequently hear and know more than is good for the inhuman tastes of the islanders. Tidings of a vessel lost in the bay in former years immediately suggested the melancholy but almost familiar idea that the crew and all on board had been gathered to rest in the vast hollow over which the blue waves sigh and the winds sigh their eternal dirge. Our sources of information are, however, a little more numerous in these days, and we consequently hear more frequently of a vessel cast away on this island or that, and of the hope that lingers in the hearts of the survivors. We have even learnt that the taste of the Andamanese savage is not very imperative, and that every cast-away on his inhospitable shore is not, as a rule, liable to be cooked up to please the palate of the anthropophagi; so that when we hear of seven or eight Europeans being on the island the natural hope and desire arises to restore them to civilised life. The result of this is a contact between the unthinking, untutored savage, and the sensitively civilised European—a contact that must result, as in the case of the aborigines of Australia or of the Sandwich islanders, either in total extermination or civilisation. With the Andamanese these collisions have fortunately been unfrequent; but occasionally we do hear of them. The latest instance has regard to a portion of the crew of the British ship Assam Valley, who, it is supposed, have been cast away on Little Andaman, and for whose restoration an attempt has been made. The particulars of the expedition appeared in our columns yesterday as an extract from a Rangoon journal, and by the account it will be seen that, not only was the search unsuccessful, but that there are considerable difficulties likely to arise in carrying it out effectually. It may be quite possible that the seven men are still alive, and it is said that a lady also adds to the number; but the difficulty is to find them. Perhaps the number were at first able to resist the cannibalistic inclinations of the savages, and they are now allowed to sojourn on the island unmolested; but existence must be very miserable to them. It has been demonstrated by the ill-success of the small expedition sent out in search that there are several tribes on the Archipelago; that they do not understand one another's language; and that they are not friendly towards each other. These circumstances enhance the difficulty that would attend an expedition. But why should not Government act decisively in the matter? The Archipelago is partially occupied; it is evident that the whole of it will soon be required by Government; and it is clear that many unfortunate survivors from vessels lost at sea are thrown upon these islands exposed to a cruel death. A little promptness and determination might save us endless annoyance from such savages as the Andamanese. If the country was thoroughly scoured when the Maori war first broke out, a great deal of English blood wasted in New Zealand soil might have been saved. And if a small body of armed men were appointed to survey the Andaman islands, searching for these survivors, giving the islanders an idea of their power and their peaceful intention, and opening out the country to further exploration, Government would be saved a great deal of trouble that under present circumstances will be almost inevitable. The area of the island is not great, the expense would not be large, and the result would be a saving of much annoyance that it is in the power of these savages to cause. It would also give an opportunity to men like Mr. Homfray to open communication with the islanders, and impart to them benefits which would establish peace and safety on the island.—Indian Daily News.

THE EAST INDIA IRRIGATION COMPANY have buckled to the work of the Soane Canals within the area fixed by Colonel Dickens and on the plans of their Chief Engineer, Colonel Rundall. Should the company be able to raise the necessary capital a beginning will be made by placing across the Soane a great weir, or anicut near Dehree, where the Grand Trunk Road crosses the river. From this point canals, for irrigation and navigation, will branch off eastward to the river Moorhur and to Patna, and westward to Chunar, Benares, Buxar and Arrah, commanding an area of 1,800,000 acres for irrigation. The total length of the canals will be 1,065 miles, of which 545 miles will be first class navigation lines. The amount required to complete the works is estimated by Colonel Rundall at 210 lacs of rupees. The company anticipate a revenue enabling them to pay ten per cent. raised at the Orissa rate of Rs. 5 an acre for half a million of irrigated acres. Only a million sterling is asked at present by the issue of 100,000 shares of £10 each. The company's contract with Government binds them to repay the cost of the land used for offices and for preparing materials after dividing 5 per cent., and half the profits after 20 per cent. We are glad to see the tedious negotiations of six years between the company and the Government of India thus concluded. There is abundant room for both, so great is the work of irrigation to be done, and we trust the company's financial success in Orissa will soon be such as to enable them to raise the capital for a province like Behar, which has the advantage of a permanent settlement. Unfortunately, great as the progress in Orissa has been, the shareholders have yet to be satisfied.

A GRAND HOWDAH.—The Englishman is eloquent in its description of a silver howdah made for the Nawab of Rampore, in Rohilkund, by Messrs. Hamilton and Co. The ground-work is pure sycee silver, but the elaborate tracery and relievo work is all richly gilt, and it is lined with crimson velvet richly, yet chastely, worked with gold. The front is ornamented by two stags' heads richly gilt, and bears the Nawab's shield supported by two fishes. The sides present a lion couchant, over which are a large fish and a horse, to form the elbow of the seat; this is a design of the Nawab himself. At the back of the seat the shield of the Nawab is again seen, and finally the whole is canopied with a solid silver umbrella, magnificently lined with red velvet embroidered in gold, and crowned with a royal cap, on the top of which a bird of paradise has perched. The workmanship is entirely that of native silversmiths.

HILLS NORTH OF DEYRAH, May 15.—No improvement in our weather; rain and sunshine every alternate hour during the twenty-four! It poured the night before last. Judging from appearances, there is every probability of this being what is called the "chota bursaut," although the rains have never been known to set in before the end of June. Some few years ago we had the month of May similar to this, very wet and stormy. I am happy to say there is no more cholera, in fact we never had the disease (so to speak) here, the few cases that occurred being contracted below. However, this will be a caution, that it is not impossible to have the epidemic in the hills. I believe the club lease is after all to be renewed, as the sum asked for its purchase (Rs. 100,000) is not likely to be given. Before another year passes away I think it possible that Mussoorie will be able to boast of an assembly room. I know that it is in contemplation to erect such a building. Talking of bricks and mortar, I was told the other day that the cost of building the new station and sanitarium at Chukrowta beyond Pokree will be something like forty-seven lakhs of rupees. A pretty little sum in these days of financial difficulties! As I write it is raining hard, and has been all night.—Correspondent of Delhi Gazette.

OLD PUBLIC SERVANTS PASSING AWAY.—Every year takes away in greater numbers from India public servants of the old school, whose valuable and often dear bought experience goes with them to the idleness of a club or the ennui of country life. Within the last few weeks Bengal has lost its most useful civilian judge, Mr. C. B. Trevor; the North-west its successful Customs Commissioner, Mr. W. Money; the Punjab one of its best commissioners, Colonel Hamilton, and British Burmah the official who made it what it is, Col. Phayre. And now Bombay has seen the departure of Mr. C. J. Erskine, one of its council, who is known in Calcutta as perhaps the most useful member yet sent by a local government to the Imperial Legislature. In a short time the Venerable Archdeacon Pratt will say farewell to the diocese. In him India will lose a most accomplished scholar and devoted minister. The universal regret at his departure will be intensified, if the report be true that it is the intention of the Bishop to select as his successor the Rev. M. R. Burge, the weakest of the chaplains. From such a mistake, which must hereafter be bitterly regretted, the bishop has surely some advisers to save him and the diocese.—Friend of India.

HOW AZIM KHAN IS SAID TO HAVE DIED.—Indian Opinion's Cabul diary thus records the rumoured death of Azim Khan, brother of the Ameer and ex-Ameer of Cabul:—"He had forcibly married the wife of the late Sirdar Mahomed Ameer Khan, without obtaining the consent of either the lady or of her son Mahomed Ismail Khan. On the night when the marriage ceremonies were going to take place Azim Khan entered the cabinet in a fit of intoxication and forced his way into the sleeping room of the lady. The mother of Ismail Khan struck him with a dagger with such force that he met with an instantaneous death. Some people, however, contradict the report of the Sirdar's death, although it appears to be tolerably certain now." It has been given out of late that Sirdar Abdoorrahman Khan has become a lunatic, and that he is therefore under the treatment of physicians. No wonder. The anarchy which has prevailed in Afghanistan for four years now is calculated to have that effect even on those who attempt to read of it.

SOMETHING NEW IN LAW.—Mr. C. S. Hogg, the Administrator-General of Bengal, has drawn our attention and that of the other journals to section 105 of Act X. of 1865 (the Indian Succession Act), which runs as follows:—"No man having a nephew or niece, or any nearer relative, shall have power to bequeath any property to religious or charitable uses except by a will executed not less than twelve months before his death, and deposited within six months from its execution in some place provided by law for the safe custody of the wills of living persons." The office of the Registrar of Deeds is the proper place for registering wills. The Indian Succession Act applies to all persons not being Hindoo, Mahomedan, or Buddhist, but it does not affect wills made before the 1st of January, 1866. This is a most serious provision, differing from the law of every other country, and it is singular that it was not once alluded to in the discussions at the passing of the Act. It will discourage bequests to religious and charitable institutions.

VOLUNTEERING INTO THE 60TH RIFLES.—The Indian Daily News says:—"We hear that about 215 of her Majesty's 2nd Battalion Rifle Brigade have volunteered for the 3rd Battalion 60th Rifles. The 3rd Battalion is at present at Madras, and it is not unlikely it may replace the Rifle Brigade at Fort William. The volunteering was conducted in the most ordinary manner under the presidency of Major Froer, 27th Foot. In a later number the same journal adds:—"We hear that nearly six thousand rupees were expended as bounty money to the men of the 2nd Battalion Rifle Brigade, who volunteered for the 3rd Battalion 60th Rifles. We much regret to find that the old system of payment at once on re-enlistment was sanctioned, although we have not heard of any bad results as yet. The system is radically bad, and we know one regiment that was nearly destroyed in discipline by it. Fancy entrusting forty and sixty rupees to a man at once, who has never had the command of such a sum before. The Rifles are a fine, steady, respectable body of men, and we feel sure, in their case, that they will not thoughtlessly contract evil habits, and tarnish their name. But the system should not have been revived for any reason, or on any account whatsoever."

NEW ORDER ON THE LAND SETTLEMENT.—It is said with regard to the vexed question of land settlement, that an order has emanated from the Secretary of State that no settlement is to be conceded in perpetuity of any estate to which canal irrigation is likely to be extended within the next twenty years. No more effectual means than this could have been adopted of deterring the native from availing himself of the advantages of irrigation. It has already been the subject of complaint by the Irrigation Company, that the smallness of its revenue is due to the reluctance of landowners to take its water so long as there is no fixed settlement. The suspicious zemindar conceives the idea that so soon as he uses the water brought to his fields by the company, and his land improves in value, Government will seize the opportunity of enhancing the rate of assessment in a proportion greater than that by which the value of his land has increased. He would rather, under the circumstances, do without the water, and wait until the final decision of Government is given.—Indian Daily News.

SCINDIAH'S ARMY.—The Maharajah Scindiah gathered a fine force beneath the walls of Gwalior to do honour to the Viceroy during his Excellency's visit to that celebrated fortress, and having got it together succeeded in manœuvring it in a way which somewhat astonished those about the Governor-general. Having found his toy, however, Scindiah was loth to part with it, and has only now, after repeated intimations from the British Government, disbanded a portion of his regular army, of which it was not too much to say that it was incomparably the finest body of native troops in India.

PROMOTIONS.—Several brigade appointments are likely to become vacant, ere long, by the promotion to major-general of several of the incumbents. Brigadier-General H. Tombs, C.B., V.C., commanding Gwalior district, is now promoted; Brigadier-General C. Reid, C.B., commanding Eastern frontier district, is fourth for promotion; Brigadier-General W. B. Wemys, commanding Mooltan brigade, is sixth, and Brigadier-General G. P. Whish, commanding Dinapore brigade, is ninth; Brigadier-General H. F. Dunsford, C.B., is thirteenth. Since the publication of the last army list seven vacancies will have to be filled up; the date of the first promoted to major-general will date back to 21st December, 1866. Brevet rank after all has its disadvantages.—Indian Daily News.

DEATH OF CAPTAIN E. COGHILAN.—We regret to notice the death, from cholera, at Delhi, of Captain E. Coghlan, of the 106th Foot. He entered the service in 1851, and served during the Persian campaign, including the storming and capture of Reshere, surrender of Bushire, and battle of Kooshab. He also served during the mutiny, and was present in action against the Bheels in the Ahmednuggur and Khandeish districts. He was present at the action at Ambapawnee, and at Rajnour against the rebels under Tantia Topee. He was present with the second cavalry division during the action at Goorapore, and afterwards served in Malwa and Rajpootana under Brigadier Somerset. He wore the Persian medal and clasp and the mutiny medal.—Indian Daily News.

HEAVY STORM AT SIMLA.—We understand that a heavy storm has passed over Simla, during which the house of Sir Henry Durand was struck with lightning, and the inmates had a very narrow escape with their lives. It appears that the lightning struck the ridge of the roof, and set it on fire, and then passed down to the earth through the verandah posts, splitting the verandah posts and bringing down a portion of the wall. Both Sir Henry and Lady Durand were standing near the spot at the time, and received shocks resembling a heavy blow on the head, but fortunately without sustaining any serious injury. The fire was got under before it could spread over the entire building.

ENGLISH EDUCATION IN OUDE.—It appears that the English system of education recently introduced into Oude, and the benefits of western sciences and literature, are now being appreciated by the people of that newly annexed territory. The zillah educational institutions have been quite successful, and the number of pupils there is annually increasing. The Government of India has therefore sanctioned an augmentation to the salaries of the teachers of the zillah schools involving an additional increase of about 1,000 rs. per mensem, as proposed by the Director of Public Instruction, and recommended by the Chief Commissioner of Oude.—Indian Daily News.

A JUST BOON TO THE UNCOVENANTED.—Officers in the uncovenanted branch of the public service will be glad to learn that a despatch has been sent to the Secretary of State by the Government of India, soliciting the sanction of her Majesty's Government to a measure proposed by the Governor-General in Council to grant an out-of-employment allowance to uncovenanted officers holding respectable posts, and drawing high salaries, when thrown out of employ by reduction of establishments or abolition of their offices, and not incapacitated by sickness or age, until they are otherwise provided for.

BARRISTERS ALLOWED TO PRACTICE.—The old question whether barristers employed in the public service are allowed to practice has again been raised by the Government of the North-West Provinces and the Punjab. The Government of India has decided that barristers holding the offices of judges or other high judicial ranks are not allowed to practice, but those employed in the other departments of the public service, and drawing salaries inadequate to their position, are permitted to do so.—Indian Daily News.

COFFEE PLANTING PROSPECTS.—We continue to receive most favourable accounts from all the coffee-planting districts, and a general expectation prevails that our planters are at last to get what has been so long expected, but never yet realised, "a bumper" crop. For some time past the Wynad planters have openly expressed their convictions that the good time was coming, and the latest advices report the plantations as in a most promising condition. We now hear from Coorg that the same anticipations of a good crop are entertained in that district. The gentleman who furnishes the Agri-Horticultural Society with a season report on the first quarter of the present year writes:—"Beautiful is the sight of a large estate in its bridal glory of unspotted white, and we may well fancy the feelings of the planter when, in the midst of admiring friends, he can show them the earnest of a plentiful crop after years of disappointment and failure. In no previous year were the prospects of Coorg so promising as they are now, and the cheerful countenance of the planter, wherever you go, tells you plainly that there is now more solid ground for the realisation of his hopes." There had been such a good supply of rain over the whole province that it was thought that if there was no more till the monsoon the present supply, which had deeply penetrated the soil, would be sufficient for the setting and development of the coffee berry.—Madras Times.

PRICES OF FOOD.—The recent reports from the districts of Bellary and Ganjam compare very favourably with those received during the same period last year. In Ganjam the prices of food grains have fallen generally between forty and fifty per cent., and this notwithstanding the large demand that has existed on account of the neighbouring distressed districts, Cuttack and Pooree. It is not yet a year ago that the inhabitants of Ganjam were dying by thousands for want of food; while during the last few months the district has not only had sufficient for its own requirements, but has been exporting rice in very large quantities. It only shows how with a little good management the loss incurred by a temporary famine may soon be recovered. We are not at all satisfied that Orissa might not at the present time have been as flourishing as Ganjam. Both districts received ample supplies of rain, in fact both suffered from "floods;" the only difference seems to be that while the people of Ganjam, encouraged and liberally assisted as they were by our Government, availed themselves of a good rainfall to produce an abundant harvest this year, those of Orissa appear to have remained in helpless inactivity. We cannot help thinking that if the Government of Bengal had shown the same earnestness and activity in regard to Orissa that our local Government did in regard to Ganjam, we should not now be having further appeals for public subscriptions. The admirable way in which Ganjam was pulled through her difficulties was due in a great measure to Mr Gordon Forbes the collector. This gentleman was indefatigable in supplying the ryots with seed grains to enable them to take advantage of the favourable season; the result is that Ganjam can boast of a magnificent harvest, whereas but for good management we might have had a second edition of last year's disaster. The prices of grain in Bellary are, with the exception of rice and paddy, all considerably lower than they were last year at this time. The two kinds mentioned still maintain a high price. The distress has not altogether disappeared from some parts of the district, and Government has just sanctioned an advance of Rs. 50,000 on account of Famine Relief Works. The latest reports from the districts, however, are favourable, and rain seems to have fallen very generally over the Presidency.—Madras Times.

CIVIL SERVICE PAY RULES.—The Government has recently given a decision in regard to the Civil Service Pay Rules which is of considerable interest to the members of that service. Mr. J. W. Reid, sub-collector of the Kistna district, who is at present on furlough in England, brought to the notice of Government that on the 4th April, 1866, he took twenty-one days' leave, preparatory to furlough. From the 1st to the 3rd April inclusive he claimed full salary as sub-collector of the Kistna and acting sub-collector of the Bellary district, and from the 4th to the 24th April inclusive he claimed half salary as sub-collector of Kistna during preparatory leave. The examiner of claims disputed this demand, on the ground that although at the time of Mr. Reid's proceeding to Europe he stood appointed permanently to the sub-collectorate of Kistna, he was not entitled to a sub-collector's pay, because he had not joined his appointment at Kistna. And the examiner of claims held that though Mr. Reid drew the pay of an acting sub-collector in Bellary up to the date of his preparatory leave, yet from that date he was only entitled to the half salary of a head assistant, that being the last permanent appointment held by him. The question having been referred to Government, the view taken by the examiner of claims has been ruled as correct. The order of Government further points out that by Section 23 of the Civil Service Rules an officer appointed to a higher situation than the one which he holds is debarred from drawing the higher salary until he joins, and that when he does proceed to join his permanent appointment he falls back on the salary attached to his last permanent appointment during the time occupied in joining. The same rule, it is added, is applicable to the case of an officer so circumstanced proceeding on leave.—Madras Times.

FEMALE EDUCATION.—All those who take an interest in the progress of female education in India will be gratified to learn with what success a public-spirited native lady in Vizagapatam has started a school in that town. Mr. Carmichael, the collector of the district, informs us that the school already contains thirty-eight girls, Brahmmins, Komaties, and Telugas. No fees are claimed, all the expense being borne by the benevolent proprietrix, Mrs. Suryah Prakasa Rao. Many previous attempts to promote female education in Vizagapatam have come to an untimely end, but Mr. Carmichael now anticipates "permanent results." The Government have passed a complimentary order on the subject, and requested the collector to inform Mrs. Suryah Prakasa Rao that her enlightened liberality in establishing a girls' school is highly appreciated.

A CHANGE IN THE WEATHER.—Madras experienced a very sudden but brief change in the weather on the 17th of May. A little before twelve o'clock a strong wind set in from the sea, blowing from the north-east. The surf soon became quite impassable for the boats, and the French steamer lying in the roads was delayed for some hours on account of the inability to ship the mails and passengers. Three or four native craft were driven from their anchorage on the beach, but happily no loss of life occurred. Two of the large ships lying in the roads also parted from their cables, but succeeded in getting out another anchor without any mishap. The gale subsided almost as rapidly as it came on.

CULTIVATION OF CAROLINA PADDY IN SALEM.—The Collector of Salem has reported on the cultivation of Carolina paddy in his district. A portion of the seed was sent for distribution to the several officers of divisions. The Head Assistant is the only one who has hitherto submitted any report on the experiment. However, from the trials made, the results have been very successful. In one instance a ryot named Narrainsamy Reddi had 1½ lbs. given to him; the return, he says, is over 91 lbs., or an increase of sixty-fold. He pursued the ordinary plan of sowing the seed broad-cast, without transplanting, and took no particular care of the crop beyond what he would have given to ordinary country paddy. Had he transplanted, he thinks the increase would have been still greater. He gave 22 lbs. of his crop, and this has been distributed to various applicants, who have engaged to furnish a report of their experiments. The time from sowing to maturity is stated by Narrainsamy Reddi to be three and a-half months. The grain is far superior in colour, size, and flavour to any of the country kinds that can be produced in the same short time. The straw is very superior. On five stalks no less than 211, 196, 176, 156, 157 seeds were counted. Narrainsamy Reddi is greatly pleased with his success, and intends planting as much as he can, as he considers this description of paddy will be very profitable when he has a sufficient quantity to introduce into the market. The following table shows the weight in tolas of a measure of the paddy and rice as compared with Palsamba paddy and rice:—

Carolina paddy	Ra. 83	18
Samba paddy	81	14
Do. rice	92	10

Several natives who have tried the rice consider that it is more satisfying and nutritious than any but the very best of country varieties. Other experiments have been made with more or less success, the increase being fifty-four, twenty-five, fifteen times the amount planted. One Sami Lala states that the single pound of seed given him produced six vallams of paddy. This was reaped at the commencement of last month. There are several applicants for Carolina paddy, and the collector thinks that if some 2 cwt. or 3 cwt. were sent to the district for sale, at a moderate price, it would be eagerly bought up. The collector forwarded by banghy some of the rice grown by Narrainsamy Reddi, and we have had an opportunity of inspecting a sample furnished by the Board of Revenue to the Chamber of Commerce. The sample must either have been injured in transit or had not been very carefully prepared, as the grains were nearly all broken. The colour of the grain, however, was very good.

COLONEL DENISON'S ADMINISTRATION OF MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS continues to be characterized by great activity. True to his programme, the colonel has already made a respectable progress in planting trees by the road-sides. The Mount road especially is already showing good results from the colonel's labours, and in a few year's time, supposing the plants thrive, as there is every reason to hope they will, the appearance of the road will be quite altered.—Madras Times.

GENERAL McCLEVERTY.—A rumour has been prevalent in Madras for some days past that General McCleverty may very possibly succeed Sir Gaspard LeMarchant as the Commander-in-Chief of this Presidency. General McCleverty formerly held one of the divisional commands, and his return to Madras would be generally welcomed.

THE ALARM OF MUTINY AT "GREAT."

The Bombay papers contain explanations of the reported outbreak at Meerut—telegraphed as "Great"—which puzzled us in London the other day.

The Bombay Gazette says:—

"The Times of India frightened all Bombay on Monday, the 20th inst., by publishing a telegram from Agra, reporting that the native troops at Meerut had mutinied on Sunday, the 19th, but that 'most of them had been captured and order restored before evening.' It seems strange that the sepoys of two native regiments should dare to break out in mutiny at a station where there are four batteries of artillery, a battalion of English infantry, and a Hussar regiment, and besides the Bombay Government had received no news of any disturbance having occurred; but there was a strong European force at Meerut in 1857, and the Times of India modestly reminded the public that its telegram bringing the first news of the great mutiny in that year anticipated the despatches of Government, so that there was every reason to believe the paper had a sort of vested right to possess early intelligence of mutinies throughout all time. There was, however, this difference in the situation in 1867, that the telegraph remained open between Bombay, Calcutta, and the North-West Provinces, so that as the local Government, although the wires were uncut, had received no confirmation of the Times of India's telegram up to midnight on the 21st inst., people in Bombay made up their minds that the whole thing was a farce, and went to bed without putting loaded revolvers under their pillows. Yesterday (the 22nd) the Times of India published another telegram from its special correspondent at Agra stating that the reported mutiny was not true; that the collector (we suppose of Meerut) had received a letter telling him there would be an outbreak on Sunday, and that some ladies and children had been sent into Delhi from outlying stations, which created a panic in that city. The writer of the letter to the collector has been arrested, and is believed to be a madman. There is this obvious reflection to be made on the whole story, that the English in India will never be able to feel that the empire is safe while the Government keeps on foot an enormous army of native troops. Rumours of mutiny among soldiers who know themselves distrusted will always be readily believed; and if but one regiment were to set the example of revolting from its allegiance, there is no saying how far the contagion might not even now spread."

"Some excitement has been caused throughout India by a report that the native troops at Meerut had mutinied on Sunday, the 19th May; and though no alarm was felt for that station, as there were known to be in the garrison the 19th Hussars, 1st battalion 3rd Foot, and six batteries of the Royal Artillery, it was quite expected that the attempt at a rising would be imitated elsewhere. And there were some good reasons for this expectation. It was at Meerut that the mutiny of 1857 broke out, and thence, after pillaging and setting fire to the station, that the mutineers marched in a body to Delhi. Mysterious daubs of red paint had for some time past been made on the doors and gates of the European residents of that city, and many believed that these, as in 1857, had some deep signification. Sunday last, the 19th inst., was also the same day of the Hindoo year as Sunday, the 10th May, 1857—viz., the first of Vaishak Vad and Jyeth Vad; and these coincidences made the news of an outbreak at Meerut the more readily believed. Throughout the North-West Provinces the wildest rumours prevailed, and it was for some time impossible to ascertain the truth of the matter. We have, however, received reliable information from Agra by telegraph, stating that the report of an actual outbreak having taken place was unfounded. The rumour appears to have been caused by the receipt of a letter by the collector, stating that a rising of the native troops would take place on the 19th, information which he would of course immediately communicate to the military authorities, and in all probability to other stations. So great was the alarm felt at Ghaseebad, that all the women and children were sent on to Delhi for protection, where, it is but reasonable to suppose, their arrival must have caused the greatest consternation. There does not, however, appear now to be any ground for further uneasiness. Were a movement like that of 1857 attempted to day, we should face it in such widely different circumstances from those of that memorable year that the attempt would be sheer madness. Besides, it is difficult to see what ground for dissatisfaction the sepoys have at present. There is no 'greased cartridge' this time at all events. The recent decision of Lord Cranborne concerning Mysore stands, moreover, in fortunate contrast with the annexation of Oude in 1856, which undoubtedly was the chief cause that made practicable the united outbreak of 1857. With the assurance of our conscience that we are ruling the country upon wise, just, and beneficent principles, we stand in very different heart towards a mutinous soldiery than could be felt ten years ago; and we should to-day feel no misgivings whatever as to our reckoning with them."

The telegrams, as originally published, will

[Special for the Times of India.]

"AGRA, May 20, 2-30 P.M.

"The native troops at Meerut mutinied yesterday. Most of them were captured, and order was restored before evening."

The same journal published, on the 22nd, the following telegram:—

"THE REPORTED MUTINY AT MEERUT.

"TIMES OF INDIA" OFFICE, BOMBAY, Bombay, Wednesday, May 22.

"Immediately upon the receipt of the telegram on Monday afternoon, reporting a mutiny at Meerut, we telegraphed to our correspondent at Agra for further particulars, but, not receiving any reply, we telegraphed again this morning. The following is the answer:—

"AGRA, May 22, 1-15 P.M.

"In consequence of the conflicting rumours, it was impossible to telegraph sooner.

"THE REPORTED MUTINY IS NOT TRUE.

"The panic was caused by the receipt of a letter by the Collector stating that an outbreak would take place on the evening of Sunday.

"From Ghazeerabad (Ghazoorudnuggur?) all the women and children were sent into Delhi, where their arrival caused a great panic.

"The writer of the letter has been arrested at Meerut, and he is said to be insane."

TURN OF AFFAIRS IN AFFGHAN-ISTAN.

If any proof were needed of the wisdom of that policy of strict neutrality which has been so studiously observed by Sir John Lawrence in regard to Cabul and Affghan affairs, the events of the past few weeks would abundantly furnish such proof. The Viceroy will take no notice whatever of any of the contending parties, but only of the actual rulers of Affghanistan, whoever these may happen to be. His letter of recognition to Afzul Khan, when that chief seemed to have established himself as Ameer of Cabul, amounted to no more than an avowal of his determination to abide closely by the policy which he had followed hitherto. His Excellency, in effect, told Afzul Khan that so long as he maintained his supremacy and observed the treaties and obligations in force between the British Government and Cabul, he would be looked upon as Ameer of that kingdom. Should, however, his fortune change, and Shere Ali Khan again ascend the throne of Dost Mahomed, there was nothing in the Viceroy's letter to inspire Afzul Khan with the faintest hope that assistance would be extended to him by the Government of India. It matters little therefore to England what may be the result of the game "at kings" which they have for some time been playing with such vigour in Affghanistan; and even if all the rumours which have gone abroad during the past few weeks should turn out to be well founded, there is nothing in them to cause the Government of India the slightest uneasiness. These rumours are so contradictory, and many of them so incredible, that it is impossible as yet to arrive at anything like an accurate knowledge of the real state of affairs. It seems, however, that the fortunes of the ex-Ameer Shere Ali Khan are again reviving. For this he has to thank the bravery and fidelity of Sirdar Fyz Mahomed—an old friend and a capital general—and the cruelty and impecuniosity of his once successful rival, Afzul Khan; he has done nothing for himself beyond keeping well out of harm's way, and, it is said, sending a letter to the Bombay Government, the contents of which, if any, have not yet transpired.

The circumstances which have led to the present situation are as follows. It may be remembered that about the same time in January last, when Ameer Shere Ali set out from Candahar against the Cabul party, one Fyz Mahomed, who had set up independence in Balkh, was also moving in nominal alliance and co-operation with Shere Ali, against Cabul from the north, and had inflicted a severe defeat on Surwar Khan, Azim Khan's son, who had been sent to guard the passes of the Hindoo Khoosh towards Bamian against his approach. Shere Ali's defeat, the evacuation of Candahar and flight to Herat, rendered it for some time doubtful whether Fyz Mahomed, notwithstanding his success, might not be obliged to tender his submission to the Cabul rulers. News, however, has been received that on the 23rd April Fyz Mahomed scattered Surwar Khan's force to the winds; that the latter, with eighteen mounted followers, had fled back to Cabul, and the rest of his men having either been killed, captured, or induced to desert to the enemy; and that Fyz Mahomed now openly declared his intention of marching straight on to attack the capital. There was, as we have said, much talk of Shere Ali proceeding to join Fyz Mahomed, but as yet we believe he is still at Herat, his son, Zakoob Khan, being in command at Furrah. In Cabul the Ameer Afzul Khan is greatly disturbed by Fyz Mahomed's victory, and is anxiously calling up his son, Abdool Rehman, with reinforcements from Candahar. By some it is said that Abdool Rehman is unmanageably insane, and has been handed over to the doctors to be treated accordingly! At any rate, he refuses to fight with Sirdar Fyz Mahomed, who has entered Cabul, Afzul Khan having sought protection from some tribe beyond the frontier.—Friend of India.

PRESENTATION OF ADDRESS TO THE HON. MR. MANSFIELD, COMMISSIONER IN SCINDE.

The Municipal Commissioners for the town of Kurrachee waited upon the Commissioner in Scinde at Government-house, on Wednesday, the 8th inst., at 11 A.M., to present him with an address prior to his departure from Scinde.

The address emanated from and was signed by the non-official members.

The Commissioners were introduced by Major Lambert, the President, and after all were assembled Mr. Nash, the Secretary, read the document, which ran as follows:—

To the Hon. S. MANSFIELD, C.S.I., Commissioner in Scinde, Kurrachee.

SIR,—On the eve of your departure from Scinde we desire, on behalf of the people of this town, to approach you with an expression of our heartfelt respect and esteem for your high and noble character.

While we feel proud that you have been selected to become a member of the Government of this Presidency, we cannot but regret your departure from among us.

This regret is enhanced when we reflect on the numerous improvements which have been introduced into the administration of this province since you became its commissioner.

You have especially earned the liveliest gratitude of the people of Scinde for the marked improvement in the administration of justice, the reform of the lower courts, the organisation of the revenue settlement on a sound basis, the opening up of waste lands to cultivation, the abolition of oppressive agricultural taxes, the vigorous prosecution of important public works, the introduction of wholesome reforms in the Telegraph Department, unimproved state of roads and canals, giving prosperity alike to the people and the State, the introduction of the Scinde Paper Currency, and the promotion of education by the establishment of a higher class of schools throughout the country. All these testify emphatically by their results to the fostering hand of a wise and beneficent ruler.

It has been your privilege to have administered the affairs of this Province in a time of peace, but we feel assured that had disturbances threatened our frontiers they would have been met by the same energy, the same forethought, and the same success which have so happily distinguished your more peaceful labours.

Not amongst the least of the merits of your Government has been your constant desire to improve the condition of the people committed to your charge; you have identified yourself with their interests, and their prosperity has been your greatest satisfaction.

In commemoration of these feelings of good-will towards us, and by us towards you, we ask your permission to place a portrait of yourself in the Frere Hall.—We beg to remain, Sir, your faithful servants,

(Signed) Naomull Hoteechund, C.S.I.,

Mr. Mansfield replied to the following effect:—

That the Municipal Commissioners' proceedings had taken him by surprise; the address was unexpected, and rendered him, he felt, greater honour than he deserved. However, he was pleased to find that his efforts for the welfare and advancement of the people and the country had been favourably appreciated, and he could assure the Commissioners that in all he did, or attempted, he was animated solely by a desire to do his duty. In turning their attention to the town he was glad to be able to say that the Municipality had made good progress during the last three years, and was now, he believed, in a flourishing condition. Much, however, remained to be done, but considered that, he generally, the Kurrachee Municipality contrasted favourably with others, and appeared an example to be followed by other towns. In respect to the last paragraph of their address, all that he could say was that if it pleased them he would be glad to accede to their wishes—(great applause).

The Commissioners then withdrew.

To the foregoing we can only add that we were much gratified on learning that the native Municipal Commissioners, who are the representatives of ninety-nine hundredths of the population, were not prompted by anyone in office to get up the little but affecting demonstration they have made of their affection for one who has ruled over them during the past five years with so much leniency and yet with so much benefit as has Mr. Mansfield. We cordially endorse the address, and as a farewell, wish Mr. Mansfield, who is yet in the prime of life, a long and brilliant career in the service of his country.—Our Paper, May 10.

THE INDIAN PAPER CURRENCY.

The Government of India published a short time ago a very instructive document, showing the development of the Indian paper currency from the time the system came into force in the various circles of issue throughout India to the end of March last. The result is far from gratifying, for it shows that the greatest number of notes that ever entered into circulation was only 10½ crores, and the number at present in circulation is little more than 8½ crores, which everyone must admit to be a very meagre outcome from the great currency measure elaborated by Mr. Wilson and Mr. Laing. The circles within which these notes are supposed to be passing from hand to hand in the ordinary course of business or life are ten in number, being Calcutta, Allahabad, Lahore, Nagpore, Madras, Calicut, Trichinopoly, Vizagapatam, Bombay, and Kurrachee. Taking for granted that the circulation of the notes is confined to the capital town of each circle, and assuming the aggregate population of these towns to be 2½ millions, we deduce that the note circulation stands in the ratio of three to every one of the inhabitants of the towns named. The average circulation of the Bank of England and of the English provincial banks of issue is more than two to one of the population of England and Wales; that of the Scotch banks of issue is nearly 1½ to every one of the population of Scotland, and that of the Irish banks is 1 1-6 to every one of the population of Ireland. The result of this might seem satisfactory so far as the large towns which form the centres of circles are concerned, but the comparison as thus put is scarcely a fair one, because since the Bank of Bombay lost credit with the community the exchange banks of this city have, contrary to the English custom, held their own reserves; and, as these are held largely in Government notes, a very respectable portion of the notes "in circulation" is in reality in the safes of the various banks. It is also notorious that since the 1st of July, 1865, a day ever to be famous or infamous in the history of Bombay, a considerable number of the notes in the hands of the public have not been in active circulation, but have been hoarded by debtors and insolvents with the dishonest intention of defrauding their creditors. Farther, the minimum denomination of the Bank of England note being for £5, and the minimum note in India being Rs. 10 (or £1), it is clear that as the portable and convenient sovereign is made to do duty in England and Wales in all transactions under £5, the paper currency never reaches that development to which it would attain if the Bank of England, like the Government of India, were entitled to issue notes down to £1 in value. In India, therefore, the circulation is abnormally inflated by the temporary causes specified; in England it is checked by the restrictive enactments of Parliament. Nevertheless, if we take, not the population of the mere capital towns of the various Indian circles of issue, but the population of British India (145,000,000) as against the population of Great Britain, the note issue of the two countries stands in the ratio of one note to every 107 of the population of British India, and of one two-thirds notes to every one of the population of Britain—a state of matters sufficiently suggestive. Or, measuring the eight and a-half millions of note circulation in India against the coin actually in circulation (estimated by the late Mr. Wilson at 100 millions sterling), we perceive how very inadequately the paper currency system has commended itself to the people of this country. One reason is the undoubted poverty of the mass of the population; other reasons lie in the conservative habits of the people, the cantoning of the country into currency circles, and the difficulty experienced beyond the limits of the Presidency towns in cashing notes. It appears that from the introduction of the system in March, 1862, to May 28, 1864, the only circles established were those of Calcutta, Bombay, and Madras, and that the amount of notes issued in these circles at the latter date was six crores. From May, 1864, to June, 1865, the remaining seven circles were opened, and by June 3, 1865, the issue of notes amounted to 7½ crores. By July 1 the circulation had risen to 8½ crores, but three-fourths of that increase was due to Bombay, where the circulation had risen from 331 lacs on June 3 to 407 lacs on July 1, the sudden expansion of the circulation being due to the panic that had then seized the community, and to the hoarding of notes to avoid liabilities in connection with time-bargains. After various fluctuations between July 1, 1865, and December 31, 1866, the total circulation of notes reached its maximum of Rs. 10½ crores on the latter date, but it declined during the present year, until at March 30 last it stood at over 8½ crores. As regards Bombay the hoarded notes, during and after September, 1865, when cotton was rising and the market was recovering its buoyancy, crept out of their hiding-places, and being exchanged for silver, the circulation in Bombay fell from its maximum in 1865 Rs. 4,14,50,000 to Rs. 2,60,45,000 at the end of the year—the decrease of the amount of notes in the hands of the public being caused by the demand for coin to pay for purchases of cotton in the interior. With the accumulating insolvencies and dread of calls during the first six or eight months of 1866 the circulation had again expanded to nearly 444 lacs at the end of June, and 545 at the end of December, or two millions sterling beyond the value of the notes in the hands of the public in January and February, 1865, when there was no inducement to hoard. This sum of two millions, therefore, we may set down as altogether withdrawn from active circulation, and lying partially in the coffers of the exchange banks, and partially in the repositories of insolvents. But we think it can be shown that a further sum of more than half a million has also found its way into the hiding-places that debtors have constructed for it. Notes of Rs. 1,000 and Rs. 500 are not much in use for the ordinary transactions of business either in Bombay or up country, and the value of the notes of Rs. 1,000 each in the hands of the public on the 30th of April last was Rs. 2,39,95,000, while that of notes of Rs. 500 each was Rs. 17,11,500, making a total of Rs. 2,57,06,500. On the same date the notes of all kinds in the hands of the public in the Bombay circle had fallen in consequence of the revival of trade from 5½ crores on the 31st December to 3 crores and 67 lacs on the 30th April, and our conclusion, therefore, is, that of the 3 crores and 67 lacs worth of notes in circulation on the 30th April, 2½ crores go to form the reserves of the Exchange Banks and the secret treasures of fraudulent insolvents. Government is about to issue notes of an altogether new pattern, and if it only felt itself at liberty to call in the old notes to enable the exchange to be effected how many scoundrels in Bombay would be scared! They may, however, remain at peace, as Government will not endanger the success of the Paper Currency Scheme by any such experiment. The dishonest among us would only hoard rupees instead of notes.

We postpone any comment on the proposal recently made in connection with the institution of one great Imperial State Bank to invest that bank with the management of the note circulation of all India. Experience has shown that the present system cannot be worked successfully. Whether the management of the circulation is entrusted to a great State Bank, whether it returns to the several Presidency Banks or remains with Government, the obstructions thrown in the way of the development of paper currency by the existence of circles of issue must be entirely removed, and effectual provision made for cashing the note when encashment is demanded. Government in its anxious desire to render the note always convertible could not have devised more potent barriers to the natural development of the currency than those created by the establishment of circles of issue. The same dread determined its selection of Rs. 10 instead of Rs. 5 as the minimum denomination, but it also prevented the new paper substitute for coin from passing more extensively into the hands of the public. We do not seem to have a finance minister able to deal with the question of currency reform, and we learn with surprise that the elaborate report of the currency commission still lies in his hands instead of having been reported upon, with the views of the Government of India, to the Secretary of State. We would require another Mr. Wilson to take up the reform of the paper currency, after the light of five years' experience, and to prepare the way also for the introduction of a gold currency into India.—Bombay Gazette.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE LAST NEW THING IN GRIEVANCES.—The Bombay Review is eloquently indignant at the freedom with which everybody is admitted to the hospitalities of Parell:—"An amiable lady gifted with all grace and accomplishments now presides over the fortnightly hospitalities of Parell. We have regretted to see her doing the honours of Government House under the shade of a tree, instead of carrying them out in the English fashion in the drawing-room. We do not contend that in this hot weather the gardens should not be thrown open and used upon these occasions, but there would be a less easy access for unknown visitors upon the carpet within the precincts of Government House, than there is at these open floral assemblies, where any vendor of toys or musical boxes can enter without question, if he only possesses that useful ingredient in the human frame commonly called cheek or brass. Government House must not be converted into a refuge for the destitute. The highest place in the island must not be changed into a friendly society. It must be restored to its earlier position and name, and its visitors must again be as refined and as exclusive as in the palmy days of Lords Falkland and Elphinstone."

A DAY'S FAST IN BOMBAY.—The European community of Bombay had no meat yesterday (May 21) for dinner, a privation which is not felt very bitterly for one day at this season of the year, but which might have inconvenient results if it were prolonged for a week or two. Happily, there is no fear that we shall be compelled to live on mangoes and rice for some time to come, as all difficulties have been overcome, and the usual supplies of beef and mutton will be brought to market this morning. The failure of supply yesterday was due to an accident. The butchers and their servants have been in the habit of travelling in and out between Bandora and Bombay by the meat train, but the traffic managers of the railways found that this privilege was abused by all sorts of people who travelled backwards and forwards for nothing on pretence of being employed in the slaughter-houses. A notice was therefore sent on Thursday last that from Monday the 20th instant no person would be allowed to travel in the meat train without a ticket, but it was intimated that to prevent delays a number of tickets would be issued at once to the municipal inspectors for distribution amongst the butchers and their people. This letter, in consequence of Mr. Crawford's absence at Matheran, remained unanswered for four days, that is, till Monday afternoon, the afternoon of the day on which, according to notice, the change began. Dr. Hewlett, on receiving information on Monday morning that the butchers had been turned out of the train at Bandora because they were unprovided with tickets, and had been forced to find their way back on foot to Bombay, tried to arrange matters with the railway authorities for the evening, but, through some misunderstanding, no tickets were again issued, and the result was that hardly any of the butchers who kill the European meat went out to Bandora. Luckily, the Commissariat meat for the troops was killed, but all the rest of the European community had to fast yesterday. There is no danger of a similar contretemps occurring, we are glad to say, as the Municipal authorities have now seen to the matter, as they ought to have done in the first instance.—Bombay Gazette.

THE LAST FRONTIER DIFFICULTY.—The Lahore Chronicle says:—"From official correspondence which we have seen, it appears that when the Hussan-kheyli became convinced that Government, beyond all doubt, would require their submission, they showed symptoms of giving way, and finally submitted unconditionally to the terms imposed on them, and signed the agreement, of which we annex a copy; it is very similar to their contract of Nov. 15, 1853. On the evening of April 8 the elders of the tribe waited on Major Pollock, Commissioner of Peshawur Division, and the Deputy Commissioners of Peshawur and Kohat, and formally repeated their submission, then threw their turbans on the ground, signed the treaty, and begged for pardon. They were graciously informed that, subject to their good behaviour in the interim, and to their having promptly adjusted old outstanding claims against them, no more would be said of the Rs. 2,000 for a twelvemonth, and should they give no further trouble (and the Commissioner believes they will not), as they have suffered severe loss during the late blockade, the Commissioner opines that the fine may be excused. The Commissioner's policy in dealing with these people has been firmness on the one hand, and on the other employing every effort which would tend to a peaceful adjustment of a long-standing and complicated dispute. The Deputy-Commissioners of Peshawur and Kohat have been thanked for the patience and forbearance they have displayed; and Lieut. Cavagnari, in his dealings with the Hussun-kheyls, has displayed conspicuous good sense, temper, and judgment. General Wilde, commanding Punjab Frontier, and General Haly, seem to have co-operated very heartily in the Commissioner's plan. A reply from the Secretary to Government to Major Pollock conveys the cordial thanks of Government to the officers who have, by their well-directed efforts, conducted to the peaceable settlement now effected with the Hussun-kheyl.

THE BOMBAY AND BENGAL BANKS.—The question of reconstructing the Bank of Bombay or of amalgamating it with the Bank of Bengal will be submitted to a special general meeting of the shareholders to be held on the 4th of June. The hopes of those ardent enthusiasts who vainly imagined that Bombay would subscribe the capital requisite for reconstructing the bank have been utterly overthrown within the last two days by the publication of a letter from the Government of Bombay in reply to one from the secretary of the Bank of Bombay, stipulating that the capital of the new bank should be one million sterling, one-half to be paid upon the 1st of August, and the remaining half to be paid in March next year. The directors in their letter to Government proposed a capital of half a million, and did not speak sanguinely of their ability to raise that sum. About 3,000 shares were subscribed for conditionally on Government agreeing to transfer its business to the reconstructed bank—a very small number it must be admitted, if Bombay was really in earnest in its desire to have a bank all to itself. Of the 3,000 shares so subscribed a considerable number will be withdrawn now that the publication of the very clear and very decisive letter of Government shows that the scheme of supporting a new bank here with 50 lacs of capital will never be carried into effect. The public is becoming convinced that amalgamation is the only course that is now open, since the views of the Government of India have been made known. The great argument in favour of amalgamation is that it offers a certainty instead of a chance, and every shareholder can by comparing Mr. Dickson's plan with that of the reconstruction committee see for himself at a glance the advantages of the former. By the amalgamation the holder of two old shares will be called upon to pay Rs. 360 by 31st December and a further sum of Rs. 450 by 30th June, 1868. By the reconstruction scheme he will have to pay Rs. 500 by the 1st of August, and another Rs. 500 by March next. Supposing that the result of the amalgamation sends down the average value of the Bank of Bengal shares in the market from 85 to 50 per cent. premium, the interest of the holder of one share in the new Bank would be worth Rs. 1,012, and if the shares kept up at the rate of 75 per cent. in the share market his interest would be worth Rs. 1,181. The extension of time is of great importance in this respect, that whereas there is small chance of realising the assets of the old bank before the 1st of March next, a great deal towards attaining that end may be done in the three months accorded by Mr. Dickson. Every possible means has been tried to excite the ill-will of the people of Bombay to the plan proposed by Mr. Dickson, but, so far as we are aware, there is really only one member of the reconstruction committee who has at all strong views in favour of reconstruction as opposed to amalgamation, and the miserable result of the appeal to the public to subscribe capital for an independent local bank shows very clearly what is the real bent of public opinion.—Bombay Gazette.

FAIR AT JEJOOREE.—The Commissioner of Police, Southern Division, has forwarded a letter to Government, from which it appears that between the 16th and 20th ult. a fair was held at Jejooree, at which some 30,000 pilgrims had congregated. It passed off very satisfactorily, no epidemic of any kind made its appearance among the pilgrims. It appears that this satisfactory result is mainly owing to the excellent arrangements and precautionary measures made by the Assistant Superintendent, Mr. Abraham David.—Bombay Gazette.

THE MOHURRUM.—Yesterday (May 15) being the last and chief day of the Mahomedan festival of the Mohurru, the usual scenes of folly were witnessed on the beach at Back Bay, and in the neighbourhood of the Marine Lines. But, what is of chief importance to those who are neither Sunis nor Shias, public order was very well preserved, and the police had no occasion to interfere in any affairs of consequence.—Bombay Gazette.

SIR FITZROY KELLY.—Sir Fitzroy (now Chief Justice) Kelly has, in the interests of a shareholder for whom he is a trustee, written out to Bombay for full information as to the mismanagement of the Bank of Bombay during the last two years, with the view, we presume, of calling to account the persons responsible for probably the most disgraceful failure recorded in the commercial history of any country.—Bombay Gazette.

THE MAILS BETWEEN BOMBAY AND MADRAS.—We have noticed more than once in the Madras papers complaints of the length of time taken in conveying the mails from Bombay to Madras. On making inquiry into the matter we find that the mails are sent by Sattara instead of Sholapore. If sent by the latter route they would reach their destination some thirty hours sooner than by the way they now go. It is only fair to the Bombay postal authorities to say that they are in no way to blame for this delay, as it was long since proposed by Dr. Impey to send them by Sholapore, but the Director-general of Post-offices at Calcutta would not sanction this "innovation" on the good old practice.—Bombay Gazette.

ALLEGED SLAVE-DEALING BY AN ENGLISHMAN.—From information received from Zanzibar, under date March 28, it appears that Dr. Seward was investigating a charge of slave-dealing brought against a European resident of that place, formerly an officer in the Indian navy, and had ordered seven hundred alleged slaves who were employed by the defendant's firm to be liberated.—Bombay Gazette.

NATIONAL FINANCIAL ASSOCIATION OF INDIA.

—At the High Court on the 14th May, in chambers, an application was made to the Hon. Sir Joseph Arnould by Mr. Marriott for the appointment of Mr. H. Gamble and Bhugobhoy Motiram as liquidators of the association. This application was opposed by Mr. Prescott on behalf of Mr. Bendir, the petitioning creditor, who proposed that Mr. Henry Wilson, a professional accountant who gave his whole time to liquidation, and who would carry out the liquidation without employing a manager to act for him, should be appointed. He (Mr. Prescott) had suggested to Mr. Bendir that he (Mr. Bendir) should be appointed, but Mr. Bendir had declined to act on the suggestion. His lordship observed that he thought Mr. Bendir was a very desirable person to appoint. Mr. Prescott expressed his concurrence, and said Mr. Bendir was by far the most energetic person, as a liquidator, that he knew of. His lordship said that the other day he saw by the reports in the papers that an objection was taken to the appointment of Mr. Bendir as liquidator of another company on the ground of his energy; but Mr. Justice Westropp made the appointment for that very reason. His lordship asked whether the association was a large one, and whether one liquidator would be sufficient. Mr. Prescott said it was not a large one, and that one liquidator would be quite enough. Nothing could be done in the matter of the liquidation without the permission of the Court, and the liquidator would be under the superintendence of the Court. His lordship asked whether Mr. Bendir had time to fulfil the duties of the liquidation if he was appointed? Mr. Prescott replied in the affirmative, and said that Mr. Bendir devoted the whole of his time to his duties as liquidator. His lordship said he should appoint Mr. Bendir as liquidator at the usual remuneration. Mr. Prescott said this was a very small company, and that only a small sum would be realised. His lordship then made an order directing the remuneration of the liquidator to be 3½ per cent. upon the realised assets, and requiring him to find security to the amount of Rs. 10,000.

THE BANK OF MADRAS reduced its rates one per cent. all round on the 14th inst. Rates for loans on Government Securities, therefore, are now 6 per cent. and for discount on private bills 8 per cent.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SCINDE RAILWAY.—The report to be submitted at the meeting on Tuesday next states that during the half-year ending the 31st December, 1866, the traffic on the Scinde Railway, notwithstanding the serious interruption caused by the unusually heavy rains which fell in the month of August, contrasts favourably with that of the corresponding period of the previous year, and the returns for the entire year 1866 bear a favourable comparison with those of the previous year. This result cannot be regarded as otherwise than satisfactory, when it is considered that the traffic was almost entirely suspended from August 5 to September 13 last, a period of nearly six weeks. During the half-year ending 31st December, 1865, the gross receipts amounted to £43,456. 0s. 1d., or an average of £1,671. 7s. 8d. per week. In the corresponding part of 1866 they rose to £46,470. 6s. 7d., or a weekly average of £1,787. 6s. 4d. Per mile of railway they amounted in the past half-year to £16. 7s. 11d. per week, and per train mile to 8s. 6½d., the number of train miles run having been 108,566. Since the commencement of the present year a marked improvement has taken place in the traffic. The receipts for the quarter ending 31st March amounted to £34,184, or an average of about £2,629 per week. In one week, that ending January 20 last, the receipts amounted to £4,355, being nearly £1,000 in excess of the highest sum realised in any previous week since the opening of the line. The total goods arriving in and forwarded from Kurrachee by the railway during the half-year ending the 31st December last amounted to 64,998 tons; the down and the up traffic being 38,113 and 26,885 tons respectively. The quantity of cotton brought down to Kurrachee was very small, only 406 tons; the principal items in the down traffic being cereals, which furnished 18,370 tons, and oil-seeds, 11,824 tons. The number of passengers carried during the half-year was 70,171, against 52,613 in the corresponding part of 1865. The high rate of the working expenses is still a matter for regret. A considerable reduction has been effected in the maintenance, traffic, and general charges; but the expenses of the locomotive department are still excessive, amounting, in the past half-year, to nearly half of the whole expenses. Every exertion is being made to secure economy in the administration of this department. The damage done to the line in the beginning of August last was repaired as rapidly as possible; and the line was re-opened throughout on the 14th of September. Great credit is due to the company's officers and servants for the energy and zeal with which they discharged the onerous duties which devolved upon them in this emergency. Steps have been taken with a view to securing the line as far as practicable from a possible repetition of the damage of last season. The proprietors will be glad to learn that the works at Kurrachee harbour have greatly improved the access to the port, by both widening and deepening the channel. The company's agent at Kurrachee reports that the area of the harbour has increased since 1858 from 70 to upwards of 100 acres. The population of the town and camp of Kurrachee in 1854 was 40,776. In 1864-65 it had increased to 60,000. The revenue accounts of the Scinde Railway for the half-years ending 30th June and 31st December, 1864, 30th June and 31st December, 1865, and 30th June and 31st December, 1866, are annexed. The first of these accounts—that for the half-year ending 30th June, 1864—is in substitution of an account submitted to the proprietors on a former occasion, its revision having been sanctioned by the local Government. The financial statement shows that from the commencement the sum of £1,999,674. 3s. 8d. has been received, and £1,810,036. 16s. 4d. expended on account of the undertaking.

THE EAST INDIA LAND, CREDIT, AND FINANCE COMPANY (LIMITED).—A special general meeting of this company was held at the London Tavern on Friday last; Mr. John Carrington Palmer in the chair. The object was to elect two shareholders to fill the vacancies caused in the direction by the retirement of members of the old board in conformity with a resolution passed at a previous meeting. There was a full attendance of shareholders, and after an animated discussion Mr. Mowatt and Mr. Jefferson were elected. The meeting expressed its wish that the operations of the company should be brought to a close as quickly and successfully as possible. A vote of thanks to the chairman and directors terminated the proceedings.

ROYAL GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY.—At the evening meeting on Monday next, at Burlington House, Sir Roderick I. Murchison, Bart., president, in the chair, the following papers will be read:—1. Visit to the Russian Settlements on the Coast of Manchuria; by the Rev. W. V. Lloyd, R.N. 2. On Communication between India and China by the Line of the Burhampooter and Yang-tze-Kiang; by General Sir Arthur Cotton, R.E. 3. A Journey to the N. W. of Pekin; by Dr. Jones Lamprey, M.D.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The biddings for Government bills on India took place on Wednesday, the 19th inst., at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were: to Calcutta, 15,60,000 rupees; to Madras, 140,000 rupees; and to Bombay, 9,95,000 rupees. The minimum price was fixed at 1s. 11d. on all the presidencies. Tenders on Calcutta and Madras will receive about seven per cent., and those above in full. Tenders on Bombay at and above the minimum will receive in full. In consequence of the continued sluggish demand for remittance to India these terms show a fresh movement of 1 per cent. in favour of this country.

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY INDIA AND CHINA MAILS.—(SOUTHAMPTON, June 19.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamer Delta, with the heavy portion of the above mails, arrived here to-day. She brings 219 passengers, 23 packages of specie (value not stated), 1,809 packages cargo, of which are 300 packages of raw silk, value £25,000 sterling. On the 10th she experienced squally weather, with much rain, and several waterspouts in the immediate vicinity of the ship. Up the Channel light winds and foggy weather.

THE MAHARAJAH DHULEEP SINGH.—His Highness the Maharajah Dhuleep Singh and the Maharanee have left Elveden-hall, near Thetford, Norfolk, for the Continent. The Maharajah has become popular in the neighbourhood of Elveden; religious services in connection with the Church of England have been held regularly at the hall on Sunday evenings of late, and have been attended by the poor of the village and others.

THE ASIATIC SOCIETY'S MUSEUM.—The Asiatic Society of Bengal have transferred their museum to the Government of India, who are building a house in which to lodge the valuable collection.

APPOINTMENT.—(Downing-street, June 17.)—The Queen has been pleased to appoint Lieutenant-general Sir Patrick Grant, G.C.B., to be Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Island of Malta and its dependencies.

DYSENTERY, CHOLERA, FEVER, AGUE, ETC.CHLORODYNE.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a certain cure in Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colics, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—"So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases." From A. Montgomery, Esq., late Inspector of Hospitals, Bombay.—"Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I fairly owe my restoration to health after eighteen months' severe suffering, and when all other remedies had failed."

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne; that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—See the Times, July 13, 1864.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, Dec. 31, 1864.

DR. LOWE, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec., 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered the patient recovered.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the best and most certain remedy in Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Consumption, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is publicly acknowledged by the most eminent Physicians of London to be the most effectual remedy every discovered. To prevent fraud, the Government have authorised a Stamp, with the words Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne engraved thereon, without which none can be genuine. Sole Manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London. The immense demand enables the proprietors to reduce the price; it is now sold in bottles, 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d. and 11s.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Calcutta mail brings us papers from Calcutta to the 22nd of May, and from Madras to the 29th of that month. There are no Bombay papers this time—the cessation of the extra mails having apparently come into force.

The dates from Calcutta are very little later than those of the last Bombay mail, and as our usual files from the Bombay Presidency having fallen somewhat short—for reasons which we must appeal to the Post-office to explain—our extracts show a decided dearth of news, as far as Bengal is concerned. In Calcutta the public were still continuing to attack the Government about the Licence-tax, and the Government were still going on "never minding" what was said about them. Apparently Mr. Massey relies upon being supported from home, where the groans of the Bengal Britons have not met with a very strong response.

We observe that Major General Burney is likely to be appointed to a divisional command, for which he has at least the recommendation of experience, having seen forty-eight years of active service. This is the officer who, when in command at Dinapore a few years ago, was so much bullied about a "scandal" in which a ball and a lady, a scarf and some lively letters, were the principal features. It all arose from the unnecessary interference of a younger officer in matters that did not concern him, and no serious consequences came to anybody.

There seems to have been some doubt whether the cholera ever visited Mussoorie or the Hill stations generally. A correspondent of the Pioneer mentions instances, ten or twelve years ago, of the disease making its appearance at a height of no less than 7,000 feet above the level of the sea.

Madras had, as the penny-a-liners say when they begin an account of a murder, "been thrown into a state of the utmost consternation and alarm" by the reports about the supposed mutiny at Mesrut. It will be seen from an extract elsewhere that the Madras Times is inclined to think that there is more in the affair than meets the eye. It is remarkable, by the way, that the telegrams do not positively declare the originator of the story to be insane; they only say that he is said to be.

Sir Gaspard le Marchant was forming a plan for the concentration of the local army.

The next arrival from India will be the Bombay mail, which is due in London on the 6th of July.

We are glad to learn that the Government have determined that the Sultan shall be entertained at an official fete, and have delegated the discharge of this duty to the Secretary of State for India and the Indian Council. Regard being had to our relations with the East, to the telegraphs which traverse Turkey, to the Indian pilgrimages to Mecca, and, though last not least, to our twenty millions of Mahomedan fellow-subjects in India, who look up to the Sultan as the head of their faith, no department of the State can more fittingly and more gracefully fulfil this duty than the Indian Council, and we have no doubt that every effort will be made to render the entertainment most magnificent. The Secretary of State for India and the Council possess one great element of success in the new India-office, now ready for occupation, and in which, if we are rightly informed, the fete will be held.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE LICENCE TAX.

After all that we and our correspondents have said on the subject, the truth about the Licence tax probably still remains untold. That want of imagination which is the source of so much injustice, which alone deprived the greatest criminals of the sympathy which the world would certainly accord them, if it rightly understood them, has, we fancy, led us to judge somewhat too harshly of the financial member. We have not, in fact, put ourselves in Mr. Massey's position; and we have consequently misunderstood the motives under which he has acted. When there are two ways of arriving at the same object, the one both easy and pleasant, and the other both difficult and unpleasant, there is but a single motive that we can imagine for a person's selecting the latter in preference to the former—the desire for notoriety either as a hero, or as a martyr. Mr. Massey's previous career in India is not such as to encourage the supposition that any amount of fame would tempt him to prefer a bed of thorns to one of roses. The martyr theory is, therefore, altogether out of the question. Although Mr. Massey is probably too indolent to be much disturbed by any amount of unpopularity his very indolence would, we think, have deterred him from stirring up an opposition likely to be so troublesome as the present had he foreseen it. We believe, in fact, that he had no more idea of the extremely offensive character of the measure he was about to introduce than he has of financial science in general.

If we wish to understand why Mr. Massey preferred a measure by which he has unwillingly created so much noise and ill-feeling to one which while it would have brought quite as much grist to the mill would have been received in the silence of general acquiescence, we must remember with what offence it was that he stood charged at the bar of public opinion. Mr. Massey had been accused, and justly accused, of doing nothing, of inactivity, and of want of invention. The only ingenuity Mr. Massey had displayed, or, we should rather say, attempted to display, in his former Budget, was in showing, against circumstances, how it was that there was no immediate necessity for his doing anything. No man could have been more sensible than Mr. Massey himself of the justice of the criticism with which his budget was received. Now, there is one thing that a conspicuous officer of State is absolutely bound to do if he would not stultify those who appoint him. He is not bound to be either able or successful, but he is bound to do something which shall show the necessity for his appointment. Mr. Massey had, with reference both to the actual facts, and the state of public opinion, arrived at that period of his tenure of office when he must either do something of this sort or give rise to doubts calculated to be inconvenient both to himself and her Majesty's Government. Such being the necessity incumbent upon him, the addition of four annas to the duty on salt would have been much too insignificant an exploit for the purpose in view. In the first place, it would not have been original; in the second it would have made no noise. It would have been difficult to sustain the necessity of sending a special financier on a high salary from England, to look after finances which needed one year no looking after at all, and another year only a simple and facile expedient with which the veriest tyro in Indian finance was perfectly familiar, to keep them straight. It was essentially necessary that Mr. Massey should have recourse to something original, something not too easy, and something which would make a little noise. The Licence-tax answers all these requirements; it is perfectly original in the form in which Mr. Massey has introduced it; it is more difficult than he could have intended, and it has created a noise, the reverberations of which will, we hope, not cease for some time to come.—Englishman.

PROGRESS OF THE WORKS ON THE G. I. P. RAILWAY.—The Friend of India, in its natural exultation over the completion of the East India Company's line of railway from Mirzapore to Jubbulpore, has spoken somewhat disparagingly, and we believe unjustly, of the efforts made by the G. I. P. Company to push on the works of the unfinished part of their line from Khundwah to Jubbulpore, so as to establish through communication between the capitals of Eastern and Western India. We fear it is true that the line from Bombay to Jubbulpore will not be ready for traffic along its whole length before the year 1869; but this unfortunate delay is not the fault of the railway company. There has been no carelessness or want of energy on their part; and the Friend commits a great mistake in suggesting that the main line has been neglected in order that the less important branch to Nagpore might be more speedily completed. The rapidity with which the works on the Nagpore line were finished was due to two causes; first, the ease with which a railway can be constructed across the wide level plains of Berar and the Central Provinces, and, secondly, the good fortune of the railway company in having let this part of their works to very hard working and skilful contractors. As regards the other line, from Khundwah to Jubbulpore, the contracts were all let years ago, and the construction of the Nagpore branch, which was confided to other contractors, had nothing whatever to do with the delay that is now complained of. The works on the main line would have gone on neither more rapidly nor more slowly if the Nagpore branch had been left untouched. But on the still incomplete portion of the main line the company has not been lucky in some of its contractors; and besides, there is one very heavy work, a bridge over the Towa (a tributary of the Nerbudda, which falls into that river near Hoshungabad), the piers of which have been swept away three years in succession by the terrible force of the waters in the rainy season. The engineers are now making a fourth, and it is to be hoped a final, attempt to build the bridge from designs approved by Mr. George Berkley after personal inspection of the site during his recent visit to this country, but the work will still take nearly two years. But for this bridge the whole line might now be open; but the contractors have not been eager to push forward the easier works, knowing how long a time would be occupied in building the bridge. We have very little doubt that through communication to Calcutta might be obtained by the beginning of next year, with the exception of the break at the Towa, if the Government would urge the contractors not to mind waiting for the bridge, and would sanction the running of trains from Calcutta and Bombay to either side of the river. But the responsibility of coming to such a decision rests with the Government of India, not with the Government of Bombay which the Friend is inclined to make the scapegoat.—Bombay Gazette.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

THE CASE OF CAPTAIN JERVIS.

It must have been some consolation to General Peel in seceding from the War-office to know that he escaped the unpleasant task of dealing with the Jervis case. Certain it is that he left that delicate duty to Sir John Pakington, and that Sir John has by no means got rid of the responsibility as yet. It is the Old Man of the Sea to the Ministerial Sindbad, and refuses to be shaken off until absolutely compelled.

Most persons who had not forgotten the case altogether supposed it to have been settled some time since, and in the absence of information to the contrary took it for granted that the proceedings had been unconditionally confirmed. The non-appearance of the cashiered captain at the Horse Guards, where he was announced to be coming for justice, confirmed this impression, and it really appeared as if the highest military authorities in this country thought it a right and proper thing that an Officer Commanding in Chief in the most important dependency of the Crown should make a false charge against his Aide-de-Camp, bring the whole weight of his influence and authority to support it, act the part of prosecutor, witness, and judge in the case, and when it is decided in the prisoner's favour to the utmost extent permitted to the court, refuse to recognise the real decision, and insist upon the formal one being carried out in all its force. Such, indeed, was the conduct of Sir William Mansfield in this matter. Captain Jervis was acquitted of the charge of peculation, for which he was originally tried, and found guilty of insubordination, arising out of natural resentment at the false accusation. In consideration of these circumstances the court, while sentencing him to the necessary penalty of dismissal from the service, recommended him to mercy, the effect being an acquittal as far as it was in the power of the court to grant one. But Sir William, disregarding the recommendation, and the evident intention of a competent tribunal, ordered that the sentence should take effect.

Of course there was an appeal home, and this, it appears after all, has been attended with some success. The Government have come to the conclusion that, while agreeing that Captain Jervis should leave the army, the justice of the case would be met by allowing him a sum of money equivalent to the price of his commission had he belonged to a purchase service.

This decision will never do. Mr. Brett, as will be seen from the report published elsewhere, is not satisfied with Sir John Pakington's explanation, and will press the case to its utmost extent. Mr. Brett is a rising Queen's Counsel, a new, but not uninfluential member of the Conservative party in the House of Commons, and a relative of the man whose cause he has espoused. We may be sure, therefore, that neither legal ability, political influence, nor personal inducement, will be wanting to the work. We shall not be surprised, therefore, if it meets with success. As for the present arrangement, it is a very convenient compromise, but the allowance of money is incompatible with the sentence of dismissal, and consistent only with permission to retire, which is a very different thing, as every military man knows. In the latter case no disgrace is involved; and Captain Jervis may claim this honourable concession as a logical consequence of the award, apart from the question of his return to the service, which, after the admission that has been made, would be nothing more than his right.

RAILWAYS IN INDIA.

THE annual report of Mr. Juland Danvers on railways in India, which has lately been issued, contains facts relating to the past, and information as to the future, which furnish ground both for congratulation and encouragement, and show cause also for care and watchfulness. Taking a review of ten years we find that three thousand six hundred and forty-two miles of railway have been opened, of which two hundred and five were completed last year; that one magnificent trunk line, eleven hundred miles in length, connecting Calcutta with Delhi, is in full work; that rivers twice the width of the Thames at London have been spanned by iron girder bridges of great magnitude; that mountains have been crossed and many other great difficulties surmounted; and that to complete the system which has been sanctioned about 2,000 miles remain to be finished. Since 1856 the open lines have increased at the average rate of about 330 miles a-year, the maximum length in one year (1861) being 759 miles. The average amount of expenditure has been about £5,800,000 per annum. The greatest expenditure in any one year was last year, when £7,759,000 was expended, the expenditure being nearly equally divided between England and India. The total amount of capital raised up to the 1st of April last was £67,254,000, and the expenditure up to the same date reached to nearly £700,000 more. This excess had been advanced by the Government to several companies which needed such assistance. Mr. Danvers gives various statistics connected with the supply of materials and other matters connected with these undertakings, from which we gather that 3,195,862 tons of goods, of the value of £20,199,929, have been sent to India in 4,827 ships. Fifty-one of the ships have been wrecked, but the goods were all fully ensured, so that the companies suffered no loss or inconvenience beyond the delay of sending out fresh materials. We also find that there are now 43,824 proprietors of Indian railway stock, of which 14,677 possess stock of a higher amount, and 20,172 of a lower amount than £1,000, and that not one per cent. of the number are natives of India.

With regard to revenue, the report is upon the whole satisfactory, and although a greater portion of the year was unfavourable for traffic, the two great companies, the East Indian and the Great Indian Peninsula, for the first time realised during the earlier half a larger dividend than the 5 per cent. guaranteed. The gross receipts for the year ending the 30th June, 1866, were £4,537,235, as compared with £3,122,480 of the previous year, and the net receipts in the same periods were £2,304,534 and £1,341,550 respectively. We agree with Mr. Danvers that after "making allowances for the adverse circumstances against which the railways have had to contend, the results cannot but be regarded as satisfactory and encouraging. In spite of commercial depression and monetary disasters, of drought and famine, of unprecedented floods and destructive inundations, the works under construction have steadily progressed, and the traffic has increased. A larger expenditure has taken place than in several preceding years, the revenue has been greater than at any previous time, and the effects of the railways upon the general prosperity of the country have been abundantly manifested, whether regarded in relation to its material progress, to the comfort and convenience of the people, or to their social improvement." We have said that there is cause for caution and watchfulness, as well as for satisfaction and congratulation. We refer to new projects for railway extensions, and to the economical working of existing undertakings. That more railways are required for India, and that well selected lines will be remunerative, we do not doubt; but the greatest care should be taken in choosing them. We are glad to find that the rich and populous provinces of Oudh and Rohilkund are to be provided with a trunk line through the instrumentality of the now mis-named Branch Railway Company. We hope also soon to see the Punjab and Scinde Railways connected by an Indus valley line, and to find that a railway between Baroda and Delhi will be the results of the surveys now going on in Rajpootana; but "the revenue is not so elastic as to bear an unlimited amount of guarantee, nor will the public subscribe an unlimited amount of capital." A preference, too, should be given to those lines which combine in the greatest degree commercial and political advantages, and thus offer the best prospect of early success. With regard to the working of the open lines, an improvement appears to have taken place, but we should hope that the expenditure, which on many lines bears an undue proportion to the gross receipts, will be greatly reduced before the directors are satisfied with the management.

BENGAL.

THE INDIAN CIVIL SERVICE AS A CAREER.—No. I.

The first appointments to the Indian Civil Service under the competitive system were made in 1855, and the novi homines landed in India in 1856, or about eleven years ago. Twenty-two years' actual residence in the country is the term of service necessary to qualify for pension and retirement. Allowing for those absences on leave, which do not count as service, it may be said that the competitive men are now approaching the meridian, and that the results of the new system ought to have become pretty manifest; and that sufficient evidence ought to have been accumulated to enable judgment to be pronounced on its merits. Some time ago considerable changes were made in that portion of the system which is worked at home, and, as a necessary result of these changes, the selected candidates will henceforth remain two years in England after passing their first examination; and will immediately on their arrival in India be posted to a Mofussil station, instead of remaining as formerly in the Presidency towns, until they had passed certain examinations in the native languages. These changes evidently imply that, in the opinion of those who have the direction of the system, the former arrangements were either not as satisfactory in their results as could be wished, or were at least susceptible of improvement. That "the whole of the three kingdoms cannot produce as many able public servants as the personal connections of the old directors, even though the persons who would have been nominees under the old system have an equal chance with the rest of the world in the examinations," is a proposition—as put by the Times—the truth of which in this shape no one would now seriously think of contending for. The quondam opponents of competition are, we believe, willing to admit that the new system has not been a failure. The opposite party may pronounce it a complete success. We shall not enter on the merits of this controversy. In the opinions of those in authority, who are, we suppose, competent to judge, the competitive system has so far succeeded that it will continue to be the means of recruiting a service upon whose integrity, exertions, and abilities depends the welfare of more than 180 millions of human beings. The only question likely to arise in future will be such as concerns the changes that should be introduced into the present system in order to make it as efficacious as possible for the purpose for which it was created. Eschewing then all distinctions which may be drawn between the old and the new schools, we shall address ourselves to the existing state of things, and those principles of reform which we believe to be best calculated to secure the greatest efficiency in those servants of the State who form the body known as the "Indian Civil Service." The changes hitherto made in the arrangement first adopted in 1855 have principally concerned the method of selecting the candidates in England, and the preparatory course made imperative on them before coming out to the scene of their future labours. With this portion of the question we shall not deal. Writing in India we shall consider the Indian portion of the system, and its effect as general results.

The Indian Civil Service is said to have been thrown open to competition in 1855, and from that time down to the present it has been usual to speak of it as a competitive service, and of those who successfully compete as competition-wallahs. The Indian Civil Service then comes into the great market of skilled or educated labour in common with the Church, the Bar, the Army, and the Exchange, to procure a supply of likely recruits. Now, the supply is in proportion to the demand, as Adam Smith has it, the "effectual demand"—that is, in plain language, the number and calibre of men able and willing to compete for the Indian Civil Service will depend upon the advantages offered by that service as a profession, compared with the advantages offered by other careers. When we say advantages we mean the balance struck after deducting the disadvantages from the advantages in each case. When the competitive system was first introduced, the Times and other papers wrote up the advantages, and many persons unable to judge for themselves because they had no data, accepted, as true, a valuation, which their subsequent experience proved to be over-estimated. There is little doubt that in consequence some persons were at first induced to come to India who afterwards regretted the choice they had made of a profession. They might, perhaps, not have done so well at home in the end. But had they been fully informed of the nature of a career in India, had they been as well able to judge of it as of other careers, they would have preferred taking their chance of success in some of the home professions. We believe that within the last few years the advantages and disadvantages of the career offered to a young man as a member of the Indian Civil Service are better understood and appreciated at home. We have heard it said that one of the consequences has been a falling-off in the calibre of those who come forward as candidates. This may certainly be owing to the limit of age having been reduced; to the fact that younger men now compete whose education is not so advanced, seeing that they come in many instances direct from school, instead of from the Universities, after having had the benefit of some two or three years' residence in these latter institutions. Be this as it may, we believe the remark to be in some respects true, and we think it for the benefit, both of the public here and at home, and also of the service, that the subject should be somewhat ventilated in all its bearings. In order to make what follows intelligible to readers in England as well as in India, we shall give an outline of the real prospects of the young civilian on landing in India. We must premise, however, that what we have to say relates more especially to the Bengal Presidency. Of the minor Presidencies, Madras and Bombay, we have had no practical experience. On landing, then, in Calcutta, the young civilian draws an allowance of £25 per mensem, together with £8 for house rent. The former is, however, subject to a deduction of 6½ per cent., if he be a bachelor, and 8½ per cent. if he be married, for his subscription to the Annuity and Civil Funds—from the former of which he obtains his own annuity on retiring; and from the latter his wife obtains a pension in case of his death. If he have children, he has to subscribe additional for each of them, and they, too, will be provided for. He then actually receives, if a bachelor £23. 7s. 6d., and if a married man £22. 17s. 6d. per mensem, besides £8 for house rent. After passing in one language (which he must pass in seven months), he receives £5 additional per mensem, subject to deduction at the same rate for the Funds. On passing a second language (which he must do in a further period of six months) he receives £40 a month and no house rent. He is then declared qualified for the public service, and posted to a Mofussil or country station as an assistant magistrate. Men who are intended for the portion of the Bengal Presidency known as the North-West Provinces, which forms a separate Lieutenant-Governorship, pass in the Oordoo and Hindee languages. Those intended for Lower Bengal pass in Oordoo and Bengalee. In future, as we have mentioned above, it is intended to send young civilians at once to a Mofussil station instead of keeping them in Calcutta. It is thought that they will acquire the language more rapidly in this manner, while they may also in the meantime be learning something of their work. Prizes for high proficiency and for honours in the languages are open to the students, and in order to study for these a longer stay in Calcutta was allowed. But this retarded the young men from passing their further examinations in the Mofussil, upon which their promotion entirely depends; and even the successful competitors for prizes always regretted the delay, which allowed others to get a start of them, which could seldom be overtaken to the end of their service.

We will now suppose the assistant to have arrived at his station, where he serves under the magistrate and collector, the chief executive officer of a zillah or district, vested also with considerable judicial functions, in respect of which he is subordinate to the district judge, as he is to the commissioner in his executive capacity. Under the collector-magistrate the assistant begins to learn his work, performing at the same time executive and judicial duties of a minor nature. If he be sharp and desirous to get into harness, he becomes very useful in a couple of months, and in six months he is able to do a fair share of work.* He has, however, to prepare himself for his examinations, two of which, called the "lower" and "higher standards," he has to pass successfully before obtaining any promotion. These examinations are held every six months, and at them the assistant is examined in revenue and criminal law, and as to his proficiency in speaking the languages, and understanding them generally.

No. II.

Having passed the lower standard he receives £45 per mensem, and is invested with higher judicial powers, the exercise of which brings with them more work. He has, however, still to prepare for the higher standard of examination, on passing which he obtains £50 per month, less the usual deductions for his funds. He has now done with examinations for ever, and he takes his place on the list for further promotion in the order in which he has passed his final examination. The next step is to £70 per mensem as a Second Grade Joint Magistrate, after which are the following steps:—First Grade Joint Magistrate on £90 per mensem in Lower Bengal, and £100 in the North-West Provinces; Officiating Magistrate and Collector, £124 per mensem in Lower Bengal, and £142 in the North-West Provinces; Second Grade Magistrate and Collector in Bengal, £150 per mensem; First Grade Magistrate and Collector, £191 in Bengal, and £225 in the North-West Provinces; District Judge, £250 per mensem.

As to the periods of service after which these rates of salary may be attained, young civil servants generally reach assistant's pay, £40 per mensem—less £2. 10s. or £3. 6s. for funds—£450 or £440. 8s. per annum—in eight or ten months after landing. In about two years after this they have generally passed both examinations in the Mofussil, and they then draw £50 per mensem less deductions for funds—£561 or £549 per annum, according as they are single or married. With regard to the next step, there is more uncertainty. As we write, there are 572 names on the list of the Bengal Civil Service, of which number there are 180, or about thirty-one per cent., on £50 per mensem. Under the most favourable calculation this would only give the step to £70 per mensem—or less funds £786 if single—and £770 per annum if married—after six or seven years' service. After eight or nine years' service the next step to £1,000 to £1,124 per annum might be expected. After ten years' service £1,700 or £1,800 may be obtained; and after fifteen or sixteen years' service the post of district judge on £250 per mensem, or with deductions, equal to about £2,700 or

* Those who are not inclined to allow more credit to the novi homines than they can help admit that a competition-wallah settles down in harness astonishingly fast. The assistant of former days was not expected to prove efficient for at least a twelvemonth after joining.

£2,800 a year may be hoped for. This is the career of a successful man. He may, however, be very much less fortunate; and one out of fifty may be more so, if he get out of the "regular line" into the Secretariat, or some other special walk. Then there are some prizes, as, for instance, the High Church judgeships, memberships of the Board of Revenue, and commissionerships. But the merciless hand of retrenchment is rapidly diminishing the number of these, and there will soon be but few of them left.*

As to the value of the above figures what shall we say? We have expressed the sums in denominations of English money; but greatly indeed would they be mistaken who supposed these figures to represent the same value that they convey to an English mind with reference to the state of things in England. The Indian coinage is the silver rupee, which is equal to about two shillings English, so that Rs. 100 are equal to about £10, but to one familiar with both India and England £10 carries with it a meaning, or rather a money's worth, that one hundred rupees entirely fails to convey. A man in London with £10 to spend could go somewhere, see something, have some enjoyment, spend a pleasant holiday for his money; but a man in India, with one hundred rupees to spend, could do absolutely nothing. We have all heard of money being dear and cheap, and those of us who understand anything of political economy know that money is only the standard measure of the relative values of all other commodities. £100 even in England means a very different thing now-a-days from what it meant a century ago. The village preacher who was "passing rich on forty pounds a year" would find himself surpassingly poor on the same amount if he were now alive. £500 a year in India and £500 a year in England differ yet more widely. What the former does mean is a very difficult thing to convey adequately to the reader who has never been in India, but we shall endeavour in some manner to make it plain to him. The young civilian can just manage on his Calcutta allowances without getting into debt. If, however, he has any expensive tastes, he cannot gratify them without doing so.† After he has passed his examinations, and is drawing £50 per mensem less deductions, he can live comfortably and keep a couple of horses, which are generally indispensable for health. When he draws higher pay he may perhaps get married, or if not so disposed, can save a little. And here let us digress for a moment to make a few remarks about getting married. When the Indian Civil Service was first thrown open to competition, the press and other authorities were wont to point out the opening afforded to young men who were matrimonially disposed of getting settled in life. And advice the very contrary to Mr. Punch's was tendered to the first competition-wallah—much was said about its not costing more to keep two than one, when the two were made one. We have, however, after careful calculation, discovered that it costs exactly double, if not more, and, if there be a family, expenditure will increase in India, much more rapidly than it does at home. When we say that the young civilian on his first arrival can just manage to pay his way, and that his allowances do not exceed those of first-class clerks in mercantile houses, the reader can judge for himself how far the junior civilian acts wisely in commencing his career as a married man. No doubt it can be managed, and if young people who are fond of each other wish to begin and run the long race together, it may be done with great care and self-denial, but it will require the greatest management to keep out of debt; and if sickness come during the early years of service, and a visit to England be ordered, the passage-money will be a great source of anxiety to those who have no private resources. Then an early marriage brings as its necessary consequence an early parting, when the wife and children must be sent home to England for the health of both, and the education of the little ones. And the husband, after waving his fond adieux to those who may not share his exile, has to return to his duties and to his loneliness, which is felt far more in a country where there are so few of his own creed and race around him. How anxiously he henceforth watches for the weekly mail from home, and how yearningly he breaks open the letter that brings him tidings a month old, which must yet satisfy him for another week. Then there are those other partings not uncommon in a land where the arrow flieth by noon-day, and the pestilence walketh in darkness, when those we have watched and loved are taken to another land where no earthly journey shall enable us to join them. We would not recommend any young civilian to get married till he had spent the third part of his service, and had attained to £700 or £800, or even £1,000 per annum. In estimating the values of these and higher salaries, it must, moreover, be borne in mind that they cannot be all spent in India, that out of them must be saved the expense of going backwards and forwards* to England, and of sending a wife and family to and fro on the same journey. Then the cost of two establishments has to be incurred, and education involves more expense, when one or both parents are abroad, and the children must be left at boarding-schools. Moreover, Indian pay and allowances are only given while the civilian is in India, and they fall to a moderate income when he is on leave to Europe. There was a time when an Indian civilian was expected to save a small fortune during his service, and several of the class did amass large ones, by means that would now involve ejectionment from the service; but the pagoda tree no longer bears its former fruit, and the average man, with average success, retiring after his full service, will have done all that could be expected of him if he has kept out of debt, reared and educated his family, and had the price of his passage home, with a couple of thousand pounds to enable him to settle down quietly on his annuity for the evening of his days.—Englishman.

* The expense of going to and returning from England for one person is about £300.

THE ATTACK UPON CAPTAIN WATERFIELD.
—We regret to have to announce another attack upon a British officer, though, fortunately, it was not attended with any serious results. Major Smyly, Officiating Deputy Commissioner of Goojrat, and Captain Waterfield, Assistant Commissioner of Settlements, were walking through a village surrounded by a large number of natives, when a young man, of about eighteen years of age, rushed from the crowd, snatched a sword from a chowkidar, and made a cut at Captain Waterfield. The sword was fortunately of the usual description given to chowkidars and chuprassies, and wounded the officer very slightly indeed. The natives present rendered no assistance, nor did the chuprassies in attendance make any effort to overpower the assailant. The two English officers, however, though unarmed, succeeded in knocking the man down and securing him. No reason is assigned for the attack. The youth conducted himself like a madman after his capture, but the villagers state that he had never before shown any sign of insanity. Goojrat is the last district from which we expected to hear of any outrage of this kind. It is wealthy and well disposed to English rule. We have not yet heard what action has been taken for the trial of the prisoner. The Bill recently passed by the Legislative Council for the speedy trial of would-be assassins of British officers would seem to meet the case.—Indian Public Opinion.

CONDITION OF THE SOUTHERN DIVISION OF THE TWENTY-FOUR PERGUNNAHS.—The magistrate of the 24-Pergunnahs has been instructed by the Government to institute an immediate enquiry into the condition and requirements of the labouring classes in the Southern division of that district. This portion of the 24-Pergunnahs was the scene of active relief operations last year, and embraces a tract of country which was thoroughly exhausted by the effects of the cyclone of 1864 and the drought of 1865. Its recovery has been slower than might perhaps have been expected, but this is because it grows but scanty early crops. Should the enquiry tend to show that the people are in want of employment, the commissioner has been desired to provide it as near their homes as possible, either through the P. W. D. or through the magistrate of the district and his subordinates, and to meet the expenditure from this cause out of the annual allotment for local funds.—Englishman.

THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR OF THE PUNJAB.—It is understood to be probable that H.E. the Lieutenant Governor will leave Lahore in a day or two for Simla, on a visit to H.E. the Viceroy. H.E.'s departure for Murree was fixed for May 21, but should cholera, which is now very bad in Ferozepore and on the borders of the Lahore district, not abate, his departure from Lahore will be delayed.

MADRAS.

OUR COTTON FIELDS.

(From the South of India Observer.)

The traveller landing at Tuticorin, proceeding thence to Palamcottah, distant thirty-three miles, and along the main trunk road through Madura, Trichinopoly, and up to Salem, will have passed through the collectorates of Tinnevely, Madura, Tanjore, and Salem respectively; and taking the early

* It will be understood that the above figures represent the salaries reached in the shortest time by men who have been most successful in the "regular line." During the few years that followed the mutiny promotion was very good, owing to unusual causes; but the prospects of the service at present are far from being encouraging, and things will clearly revert to their former position. The following average period of service is taken from Campbell's "Modern India," and shows the state of things in 1852:—

Zillah judges	23 to 57 years.
Magistrates and collectors, N.W.P.	18 to 26 "
Collectors, Lower Provinces	18 to 26 "
Magistrates	7 to 19 "
Joint magistrate, N.W.P.	7 to 19 "
Assistants	1 to 7 "

† To give some idea of prices, we mention a few facts: walking for exercise is out of the question; every man must have a horse; a fair hack costs from £40 to £50. The same class of animal costs £15 to £20 at home. A buggy, or gig, with a leather hood, indispensable for moving about in the sun, costs £70 to £100. Beer costs a shilling a bottle. The cost of carriage to out-stations, and parts of the North-West Provinces, often double this price. All articles of clothing cost about double the English price. Saddlery, books, &c., at least half as much more.

morning train from Salem, a trip of some four hours will bring him to Coimbatore, the headquarters of the province of that name. All of these are great cotton producing districts, from which large supplies were drawn during the American struggle for the Manchester and other markets. In journeying along the above route extensive cotton fields will be noticed at frequent intervals; but the most casual observer cannot fail to remark the miserably stunted growth of the plant, and should it happen to be in bearing the still more wretched quality of the staple. On inquiring as to the reason of this, he will find that the ryot in opening his cotton farm selects a stiff black clayey soil, which, after a few showers, looks compact and close enough; a miserable apology for a plough drawn by a pair of bullocks is then introduced, and the ground scratched up to a depth of two or three inches. The seed is then put in, and after germination left to itself, dependent entirely on the rainfall, as there appears to be no irrigation. Cloudy weather and continuous rain for any length of time is unknown in these regions, and by-and-by comes a break in the weather, with a spell of sunshine and cloudless skies, the fierce solar rays soon evaporate the moisture, and thirsty mother earth opens wide her mouth in the shape of cracks and fissures in all directions. The plants struggle on, sustained principally by heavy dews which descend at night time, aided by occasional showers, and ere they arrive at maturity numerous casualties have taken place, and perhaps one-fourth or even one-third the number have died off, leaving the remainder to obtain such sustenance as they can from a soil usually caked in dry weather almost to the consistency of a brick.

In the interior of these districts cotton fields are more numerous than along the main trunk road, and here and there it happens that the ryot accidentally hits upon a piece of ground more suitable than usual for the growth of cotton, and a somewhat more luxuriant growth and better staple is the result; but knowing absolutely nothing of the rotation of crops or the treatment of the soil, he continues growing crop after crop on the same ground until the staple deteriorates and becomes as poor as ever.

Totally uneducated and ignorant, the apathetic and indolent grower of cotton in this country never troubles his head about the quality, and cares little about the quantity turned out per acre, so long as the sale of the produce, such as it is, affords himself and family a bare subsistence, and enables him to pass more than two-thirds of his existence in indolence and sleep.

The exportation of cotton to other countries is chiefly in the hands of Europeans. The whole of the produce of the Salem and Coimbatore Districts finds its way to Madras by rail; that of the Madura, Tanjore, and Tinnevely districts to Vypar and Tuticorin, where there are some extensive cotton screws. When the season for sowing arrives, the proprietors of these screws send out native agents into the country, to enter into written agreements with the ryot for the purchase of entire crops at fixed rates; a moiety of the total sum agreed on for the whole produce is advanced to the ryot, on which he subsists until the crop arrives at perfection, or rather imperfection; it is then gathered in, beaten from the pod, cleared of seed, and conveyed in its rough state to the screw, where the cotton undergoes a process of cleaning, screwing down, and packing into neat bales, for the home market. But so long as the European proprietors of these screws realised handsome profits on their exports they apparently troubled themselves as little as did the ryot regarding the superiority or inferiority of the staple, and at the somewhat unexpected termination of the American war numerous failures and bankruptcies might have been averted had proper measures been taken and more attention been paid to the growth of a superior staple, inasmuch as immediately after the first supplies of cotton reached England from America after the war Indian cotton was almost wholly discarded from the looms, and sales could only be effected with difficulty at prices which brought many of those to grief who had exported extensively.

Let the reader now contrast the Indian and American systems of cultivation. The intelligent American planter, generally a man of natural ability and superior practical attainments, first sets out by selecting his locality; and the nature of the soil is with him of paramount importance. Directly the reverse of the Indian cultivation, he ignores altogether alluviums that look enticing and promising to the eye during wet weather, but cake and crack under the influence of a few days' sun. A surface soil of dark sand and rich loam, on a sub soil of clay streaked with marl or of brownish-red coloured clay, not too stiff and difficult to work, is generally selected, and the richer the quality of loamy sand the heavier the crop will be. The planter then ploughs his land uniformly to a depth of not less than seven or eight inches, reducing all lumps and inequalities in the soil, rendering it as fine as possible to the full depth of the ploughing, and using horse-power to his plough, which he finds more economical than ox-power. The soil is then furrowed over, and the seeds planted in clumps of three or four together, at intervals of 12, 15, or 18 inches, and at a depth of 3 and even 4 inches, the covering being done carefully and uniformly with the hoe. The object of sowing the seeds at such a depth is to obtain an additional length of stem and tap-root underground before the seed leaves make their appearance, which secures the plant better in the ground.

To enter more minutely on the subject would render this communication too voluminous; suffice it to say, therefore, that after the seeds germinate by scientific management and working, careful pruning and weeding, and by selecting localities with a suitable temperature, and equable rainfall during the planting season, the cotton plant on arriving at maturity stands at a height of from four to five and even seven feet, with limbs large, long, and well branched, and bending with the weight of huge bolls white as driven snow, yielding a most magnificent staple, the average out-turn of which, cleaned, per acre, is generally 350 lbs., although as much as 500 lbs. has been produced on very rich lands. American cotton usually averages 12d. to 18d. and even 2s. per pound in the English market, whilst Indian cotton usually fetches 8d. to 10d., except during the great cotton crisis and the consequent distress of the Lancashire operatives, when it realised ridiculously high prices, as the great millowners of Manchester, Paisley, Preston, and elsewhere were only too glad to get hold of anything in the shape of cotton at any price. The looms had to be fed, and notwithstanding the impetus the growth of Indian cotton had received, owing to American cotton having been at the time in a measure an extinct commodity, the supplies from India fell short of the demand, and all sorts of faded, damaged, and mildewed bales were fished up from all sorts of dark corners, realising fancy prices.

In America cotton is not so much grown in the alluvial beds of soil deposited by rivers; but the uplands are generally selected, where the plant produces twice the quantity. Our own hill ranges are peculiarly adapted to its growth; though at present it is chiefly cultivated on the plains. Millions and millions of acres of virgin forest soil and grass lands are at present lying on the table lands and slopes of the Pulneys, the Western Ghats, Annamullays, Koondahs, and Neilgherries. Let us compare the climates, temperature, and rainfall of such localities in the American cotton growing States supposed to be best adapted to the production of the most superior staples with that of the Neilgherries, which will serve as a criterion to the other ranges. The following table will show that the seasons do not vary:—

Spring in the United States and on the Neilgherries				March.
	April.
				May.
Summer	do.	do.	do.	June.
				July.
				August.
Autumn	do.	do.	do.	September.
				October.
				November.
Winter	do.	do.	do.	December.
				January.
				February.

In the States of Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, South Carolina, Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas, Tennessee and Florida the annual rainfall in the uplands averages 58 inches; while at Ootacamund, according to Dr. Baikie's work on the Neilgherries (edited by Mr. W. H. Smout), the annual rainfall averages 60 inches, at Kotergherry 50 inches, at Wellington 70 inches, and at Coonoor 55 inches.

The mean temperature during the year 1860 in the American cotton States, from statistics now before me, shows as follows:—

Summer,	70	to	78	deg.
Autumn,	67	to	70	deg.
Winter,	50	to	55	deg.

Thus the seasons are exactly alike, the rainfall is very nearly the same, although a few inches more or less will make no appreciable difference. The temperature of Ootacamund is however somewhat lower than that exhibited in the above table. If a nearer approximation is sought for, however, exactly similar degrees of heat and cold may be experienced on the slopes of the Neilgherries, Koondahs, and Annamullays, at elevations of from five to six thousand feet; and on the table lands of the summits of the Pulneys, Western Ghats, Shevaroy, and numerous other hill ranges throughout India.

From the United States the South sends annually into the English market on an average 4,000,000 bales of cotton, representing an enormous money value. India is fully capable under favourable circumstances of furnishing unlimited supplies of cotton equal in staple to any in the world. Left to private enterprise, however, matters are likely to remain much the same as they are at present. Government should therefore take the subject in hand. It assumes an aspect of vital political importance, inasmuch as another cotton crisis looms in the distance. The Southerners are still in a state of chronic discontent, owing to martial law and other measures having been introduced among them by the North. The fires of rebellion are not yet quite extinct, and may burst forth at any moment when least expected. It would be as well if a portion of the enormous sums expended on cotton in America were to circulate in this country. Government cotton farms carried out on an extensive scale, conducted on economic principles, with skilled and scientific men brought out expressly from England or America as managers, would yield this country no inconsiderable revenue, which would serve to help Mr. Massey in a measure out of his financial difficulties, and enable him at all events to dispense with his newly introduced License Tax, so obnoxious to all classes of the Indian community, who have made such an uproar about it lately, and which has been instituted simply to fill up a deficit in the revenue of a paltry few thousand pounds.

ELEPHANT SHOOTING ON THE HILLS BETWEEN COCHIN AND TRAVANCORE.

A correspondent of the Athenæum and Daily News, in the course of an amusing letter from the Hills, says:—

I heard good news of elephants, and set to work as soon as I had got together some good trackers, and propitiated them with rice and tobacco and promises of more. I had no trouble in moving, as I had hired plenty of good bullocks at the village of Anamullay, and loaded them with fowls, rice, and tobacco, and had sheep driven up with me. Elephant-shooting is the same everywhere; get up and start before daybreak; walk fast till you come on tracks; and then walk on till you overtake the animals, or till darkness overtakes you, the one being as likely as the other. This was my case for some time, though often and often I had walked thirty to thirty-five miles at least by the time I had reached my tent. However, one lucky day I was rewarded. I found tracks close to my tent—that is, about four miles off—and in half an hour found the herd, eight full grown, with some calves. I placed myself exactly in the direction they were feeding, and, squatting on a stone, crouched down in the long grass till they got all round me. I had the wind in my favour, so they were actually walking along and feeding within twenty yards of me without seeing me. One passed within a dozen yards of me with a calf, I suppose, six months old and three feet high,—the most quaint-looking little beast imaginable, covered with long black hair, looking more like a little bear than an elephant, and obliged to trot in a most ludicrous manner to keep up with the long stately strides of his mother. He looked so utterly opposed to one's preconceived notions of an elephant in a state of nature that I could hardly keep myself from laughing aloud. However, I waited till the herd had almost passed me in hopes of seeing a tusker, but in vain; there was not one among them. At last a very big, stupid-looking old female came walking straight up to me. I did not want to kill her, and hoped she would turn aside; but no, she came right up the little path on which I was sitting till she got within eight paces of me. I then saw it was a case of she or me going under, and of the two I preferred the lesser evil, and as she swung her huge head from side to side I fired at her temple; she sunk on her knees at once. However, I knew that when beginners at elephant-shooting knock down an elephant the animal, generally speaking, gets up with three or four bullets in its head, and trots off or charges, apparently livelier than before. I was determined that this elephant should be an exception, and as I did not care for killing any more of the females, I fired my remaining three shots into her head, and the rest of the herd rushed off with their calves, trumpeting wildly. I found the first shot had done the work, and I was astonished at its effect; it was a long 8-bore bullet of tin and lead, with an iron tip, and I found that, striking her head in a slanting direction, it had gone to an incredible depth. I followed the herd some distance, but to no purpose; but on my road home crossed very fresh tracks, and following them up sighted the herd, and at the very same moment heard the purring of a tiger about one hundred yards off. Here was an embarras des richesses, but I determined to stick to the elephants as a more certain kill. On getting near them I found they were in a dense thicket about twelve feet high and one hundred yards in diameter, while the ground around it was quite open, except scattered forest trees. I saw nothing of their bodies, only the whole thicket shaking with their movements, and their long trunks reaching up to pull down the top boughs. I marked the direction they were feeding in, and placed myself accordingly behind a large tree with my gun carriers. In ten minutes they came out and walked past me, about fifty yards off, in a mob of eight or nine. I ran up, followed by my men, to within thirty yards, and stopped just as a big tusker moved out of the crowd to come towards me, I suppose to attack. As he exposed his forehead I plugged him; he sunk on his knees, and then a most curious scene ensued. The females, his wives, all collected round him in such a way that I could not fire again, apparently mourning over and sympathising with him; some drooping their long ears over him, and stroking him with their trunks; and others, of a more practical turn of mind, trying to coil them under him and raise him up, as the great unwieldy brute floundered about trying to rise. They quite covered him from me, and I ran in to about twenty yards, followed by my gun-bearers, and, catching sight of his head among their legs, I put three more bullets in, and then began to load as fast as I could. The females, finding their pet unable to rise, got very excited, and began to scream and flourish their tails, and moved towards me. I felt I would have given a good deal for a breech-loader, but rammed away at my bullets. Once I ventured to look up, and saw them in line, twelve yards off. If my coolies had failed me, the elephants were bound to have raised my hair, but they stuck to me like trumps, the three fellows standing on my left waving their cloths and shouting out abuse on all the elephants' female relations and ancestors. Just as I finished loading one rifle the wounded one with a great effort got on his feet, and staggered off at a very drunken trot, and his wives, seeing their lord on his legs, walked off in the opposite direction. I immediately rushed after the tusker with my loaded rifle, the natives staying behind this time. Though trotting he was reeling from side to side, and I had got close to him when, my foot catching to a creeper, I fell a regular cropper, but luckily he was too much occupied with his own aching head to notice it. As I got on my feet he half turned round, and I gave him a shot behind the ear. The effect was most curious; he reared right up on end exactly like a horse, and fell completely over on his spine, and then on his side, quite dead I fancy; but I gave him another shot with my rifle, touching the back of his head. He was unusually big, his tusks being five and a-half feet long. This was the last I was fated to see; the alarm seemed to have spread through the whole country, and after many more days of hunting I saw nothing but old tracks.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BAD WEATHER IN THE ROADSTEAD.—Such of our readers as reside in the heart of Black Town will be rather surprised to learn that for a great part of yesterday, May 17, it blew "half a gale of wind" on the seaboard, though nothing more than a gentle breeze was perceptible in the heart of the city. Between eleven and twelve o'clock a squall from E.S.E. came on very suddenly, and gradually increased in violence till about half-past two P.M., when it sensibly began to abate, but not till some mischief had been done among the shipping in the roads. A very strong current was running all the while, and the "current" flag was displayed as a warning over the master-attendant's office. About one o'clock the squall had reached its height, and blew so fiercely that the master-attendant gave a signal to the shipping to "veer more cable," and such vessels as had their royal yards across sent them down. Just about this time a native brig, loaded with bags of paddy, dragged her anchor and drifted across the bows of the French Mail steamer Meinam, her coir cable somehow or other getting under the steamer's bottom, which brought the two vessels in collision, broadside on to each other. The brig came signally to grief, for commencing by losing her foretopmast, she battered in her bows and experienced a great deal of damage, in return for rubbing sides with the Meinam and damaging one of the latter's boats, one end of which she tore away from the davits and left the boat dangling from one end. The steamer then moved ahead and shifted away from such bad company, and the brig's cable parting at the same time, the latter drifted helplessly ashore, her crew making no efforts whatever to save her, but collecting at the stern of the craft and listlessly watching the progress of events. The brig soon drove ashore a little to the south of the pier, her mainmast went over the side, and then her crew left her, a number of boatmen swimming off from the beach to assist ashore such as could not swim. By three o'clock nothing was visible of the wreck but a few timbers, over which the surf was breaking; and of course her cargo of rice was destroyed. Another native brig was driven ashore in the vicinity of the railway terminus with no chance of being got off again, and some other larger country craft parted their coir cables, but anchors and chain cables were sent off to them from the shore. A third native vessel ran aground a little to the southward of the railway station later in the afternoon, and an attempt was being made in the evening by the steamer Prince Arthur to tow her off, but we believe it was unsuccessful. The squall which caused all this damage came on very suddenly, commencing from E.S.E., and veering round to E.N.E., and finally it passed off in a steady south-easterly breeze. There was no signs of falling in the barometer, and the result showed that the weather-wise were right in predicting that the sudden change in the weather would prove to be nothing more than a passing squall. It should still be taken as a warning to be prepared for the uncertainty of the elements at this time of the year.—Athenæum and Daily News.

THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY was celebrated according to usual custom in Madras. There was a general holiday in all the public, mercantile, and banking offices; the usual royal salutes were fired from the batteries; and in the afternoon there was the usual attempt at a review of the troops in garrison. This latter was not particularly satisfactory, as the manner in which some of the native regiments acquitted themselves was open to criticism. Their conduct, however, was far from being such a subject for ridicule as some critics would have us believe. Their marching was particularly good, and they presented on the whole a smart soldierlike appearance.—Madras Times.

THE GOVERNOR'S BALL.—The ball given by the Right Hon. the Governor on Friday evening, May 24, at the Banqueting Hall, in celebration of her Majesty's birthday, went off very successfully. The attendance was certainly not as large as it ought to have been, considering the occasion; indeed, we were rather surprised to see the Governor's invitations so poorly responded to. No doubt many of those who stayed away could excuse themselves on sufficiently reasonable grounds, but we fancy the majority could give no better reason for their absence than the heat. As a matter of fact, however, the heat on Friday evening was not, for the time of year, excessive; even if it had been, we may remark, that true and good Englishmen, wherever located, are not in the habit of measuring their loyalty by the thermometer. Lord and Lady Napier and suite arrived punctually at half-past nine, but the company then assembled was so limited that dancing did not begin till a quarter of an hour afterwards. The dancers were fortunate in having two excellent bands—those of the Body Guard and the 60th Rifles, we believe,—and as there was an abundance of space in the body of the hall for their operations, to say nothing of the minor enjoyments of a glorious sea breeze in one verandah and more substantial refreshments in the other, their situation was not altogether unenviable, let panting spectators say what they may. We have never seen the hall more prettily decorated. Mr. Garstin, we believe, superintended these arrangements, and we can only say that they were highly creditable to his good taste. The fountain erected by Mr. Chisholm on the dais was in itself worth a visit to the hall to see.

This was no diminutive eau-de-cologne affair, squirting now and then a spasmodic jet into the eye of the unwary spectator, but a fountain of really respectable proportions, containing some gallons of water. The wind being high the fountain was permitted to play only in a very mild way. But lest those who witnessed its performance on Friday may be disposed to underrate its abilities, we may state that it was perhaps fortunate for the dignity of the distinguished assemblage that patronised the dais that it did not exert its full power, as we understand that on the first trial the water shot like a rocket to the ceiling, whence it rebounded of course like a shower bath upon all who happened to be within the circle of its action. The supper was served as usual in the galleries, and it is only giving due credit to Lord Napier's governorship to say that we also noticed a very great improvement here. The supper indeed was excellent and well served. It is not necessary to make comparisons, but it has been our misfortune on one or two of these interesting public occasions to sit down to meals that required some effort of patriotism to do justice to. After supper Lord Napier rose to propose the health of her most gracious Majesty the Queen, which he did in a short but well-delivered and effective speech. The toast was received with the usual honours, the cheers of her Majesty's loyal subjects being supplemented by the strains of "God Save the Queen" from the bands. Among those who attended the ball were his highness Prince Azim Jah and Prince Frederick William of Holstein; the latter having just arrived on a second visit to Madras.

CONCENTRATION OF THE MADRAS ARMY.—

A report has reached us that Sir Gaspard Le Marchant is digesting some scheme for concentrating the Madras army, and doing away with many of the small stations. This is unquestionably a move in the right direction. Any one who will take the trouble to refer to the maps of India, Burmah, and the Straits Settlements, and pick out the number of stations that are garrisoned by Madras troops, cannot fail to be struck with the manner in which our army is scattered about. In a military point of view the present arrangement is open to grave objections, while in an economical point of view it is about as bad as it well could be. Our heavy military expenditure falls with peculiar hardship on the revenues of this Presidency, as though our army is garrisoning Burmah, the Straits, and some of the Central India stations, the Presidency derives no immediate gain for the service thus rendered.

DEATH OF DR. COLE.—It is with much regret that we announce the death of Dr. Robert Cole, late principal inspector general, and the senior member of the Madras medical service. Having completed his term of service, Dr. Cole retired in the early part of last year, and was about to proceed to England shortly. He was, however, suddenly seized with apoplexy at Bangalore on Friday morning last, and notwithstanding the unremitting attention of Drs. Orr, Oswald, and Johnston, died in a few hours. Indeed, he never rallied from the first attack. He was buried on Saturday evening. Dr. Cole was much respected throughout the medical service, and not less for his many amiable social qualities than for his sound professional knowledge and the able and impartial manner in which he filled the post of head of the medical department.

THE MADRAS LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL met on the 18th May, when various important measures were proceeded with. A number of the inhabitants of Madras have petitioned Government against the new Municipal Bill, but the public generally are taking no steps to obtain the correction of its admitted defects. Government have refused their consent to Colonel Denison's scheme for the erection of a new market on the monument esplanade, objecting that the state of the civic funds does not authorise so large an expenditure at present. We think that they are right. A gas company have contracted to light Madras with gas by December next. We lament to say that another most cold-blooded and brutal murder has been committed here, although three murderers forfeited their lives on the scaffold a few days previous. Mr. C. A. Roberts, C.S., has been appointed commissioner to investigate the claims against Prince Azeem Jah. A number of soucars have protested against the Government Act for settling his debts. Lord Napier, in Council, declined to forward their petition to Calcutta. The local money market is in a most easy state just now, and bids fair to continue so for the next two or three months, as there is very little business doing.

EQUALISATION OF CHAPLAINS' SALARIES.—The Government of India informed the Right Reverend the Lord Bishop of Calcutta on the 15th April that the proposal to equalise the salaries of senior chaplains in the Madras and Bombay dioceses with those of senior chaplains in Bengal will be forwarded for the favourable consideration of her Majesty's Secretary of State for India. It appears from a resolution passed by the Government of India that on the occasion of the general reorganisation of the ecclesiastical establishments in India, which took place in 1836, the salaries of the chaplains and assistant chaplains (now designated senior chaplains and junior chaplains) were fixed by the honourable the court of directors on the following scale:—

	CHAPLAINS.	ASSIST. CHAPLAINS.
	RS.	RS.
Bengal ...	800	500
Madras ...	700	500
Bombay ...	670	500

And by later orders of the Home Government in 1846 the salaries of the chaplains of the Bombay Presidency were raised from Rs. 670 to Rs. 700 per mensem. The present application of the Acting Metropolitan, that the salaries of the Madras and Bombay chaplains should be equalised with those of the Bengal chaplains, is a repetition of a request that has previously been made both to the Government of India and to her Majesty's Secretary of State. Three years ago, on an application from the Government of Bombay, the Governor-general in Council declined to recommend to the Home Government a proposition by the bishop of that diocese for the augmentation of the salary of the Bombay chaplains, as the grounds on which the proposition was based did not appear then sufficiently cogent to warrant the adoption of such a course. The Government of Bombay thereupon submitted the bishop's proposition for the consideration and orders of the Secretary of State. A similar recommendation, with respect to the chaplains on the Madras establishment, was submitted to the home Government in May, 1865, by the Government of Fort St. George. The Secretary of State, however, confirmed the decision of the Government of India on the Bombay application, and, with reference to the recommendation of the Madras Government, observed that he saw no reason for sanctioning the increase solicited. The application of the Acting Metropolitan, on behalf of the Madras and Bombay senior chaplains, is now made on grounds which appear to the Governor-General in Council to be deserving of consideration. Moreover, it is known that the Bishop's application has the support of the Governments of Fort St. George and Bombay; and, under these circumstances, his Excellency in Council would submit it for the favourable consideration of her Majesty's Government.—Madras Times.

THE MEERUT PANIC.—The telegrams that reach us respecting the mutiny at Meerut are very vague and unsatisfactory. We cannot say that the private telegram received by Lord Napier's private secretary was calculated to allay the anxiety which the first message received from Renter's agent in Bombay had occasioned. In fact there was an obscurity about the message sent to Government House which was in itself rather suspicious. The first telegram stated that the "native troops" at Meerut mutinied on Sunday last, whereas the second simply informs us that "no regiments mutinied." We believe that on perusing the first message Lord Napier caused a telegram to be despatched to Meerut inquiring into the particulars of the disturbance, and that the message we published was the reply received. It appears clear, therefore, that there was a disturbance of a serious character at Meerut, and that though "no regiments had mutinied" some of the troops had. The statement that the "alarm had quite subsided," proves in itself that some cause for alarm had existed. It is not easy to reconcile the telegram received by Lord Napier with the one we now publish from Bombay. Whatever may be the true particulars of this Meerut mystery, it seems to us that the authorities are doing their best to hush it up. We trust, however, the Government will not be a party to this smothering process, and that it will insist on a public investigation of the whole facts of the case. The disturbance may, as we have heard many suggest, have been one of those which are incidental to the Mohorum, though the arrest of troops and the alarm of the public are rather unusual accompaniments to this somewhat boisterous festival—at all events in this part of India. Our own impression is that we must look deeper for the origin of the outbreak. The excitement of the Mohorum may, and very likely did, bring it to a premature birth. The Meerut affair may be only a premonitory symptom of a latent disease in our military system. Under these circumstances we trust the Government of India will institute a most searching inquiry into the origin of the disturbance.—Madras Times.

THE ROYAPOORAM CHURCH CASE.—This case bids fair to become a standing and apparently inexhaustible crop to the members of the Madras High Court Bar—a sort of an Indian Jarndyce and Jarndyce, though not in the High Court of Chancery. The disputes regarding the jurisdiction of the Roman Catholic Church of St. Peter's, Royapooram, began, if we remember aright, about three years ago, when all sorts of expedients were adopted to settle the matter amicably between the contending parties, namely, the Irish and Goanese clergy. A suit was eventually brought, somewhere towards the end of 1865, we think, in the High Court, and it was decided that the jurisdiction lay with the headmen of the Koorocoola Vumsha, or Boatmen caste at Royapooram. But unfortunately the headmen and members of the caste differed as to the appointment of an incumbent to officiate at Saint Peter's, the former standing by the nominee of the Goanese party, and the latter by that of the Irish. Recourse was had once more to law, and it was agreed that the question should be decided by taking the votes of the members of the caste. The result of a poll was in favour of the Irish nominee. But the Goanese asserted that they had more votes which were not forthcoming at the first poll. A second poll was accordingly allowed, but the result was again in favour of the Irish nominee. The High Court therefore ruled that the Reverend Gnanapragasam (the Irish nominee) should be inducted as pastor of Saint Peter's. But the headmen have possession of the keys of Saint Peter's and the whole of the premises. The Irish nominee has therefore been shut out up to this time, the headmen, or their servants under orders, dogging the Reverend Gnanapragasam from one gate to the other gate of the church, as we have been informed, thus keeping the incumbent elect of Saint Peter's standing out at the gate, as the apostle himself once stood on a different occasion. An attempt was made a fortnight ago by the headmen to get the Court to change the wording of the decree in respect of the sum awarded by the Court as sufficient to support the incumbent and pay for the expenses of the church. The decree, together with the decision in favour of the Irish nominee, had made the payment of the amount absolute, without mentioning the date on which the incumbent should enter upon his duties. The headmen, through their counsel, moved the Court to make the amount payable from the date of the Reverend Gnanaprasam's entering upon his duties. But the application was dismissed with costs, the Court remarking that the very men who were preventing the entrance of the incumbent elect were seeking to deprive him further of the advantage in his favour of the original decree. An application was made on Monday last by the counsel for the pastor elect to induce the Court to have immediate possession of the church given to the nominee of the Irish party, in accordance with the wishes of the majority of the Boatmen caste. The Court could give no direct possession, but said that the conduct of the headmen was in direct violation of the original decree, and that they must take all the consequences of continual refusal to give up possession to the incumbent elected. The Rev. Gnanaprasam accordingly applied to the headmen for the keys of the church, but, though these gentlemen did not refuse admission to the incumbent, they were determined, at the same time, to have their nominee, the Rev. Mr. Pinto, also to officiate in the same church. The Rev. Gnanaprasam, of course, could not enter upon his duties under these circumstances. So the case stands, and the Rev. Gnanaprasam stands at the gate, and so no doubt the pastor elect will have to stand, till Pio Nono sends an allocation, or charge, or something of the kind, to the headmen of the caste, the members of the caste to the Irish clergy here, and to the Goanese clergy, and the document from the Vatican no doubt will be more powerful than any decree of the Madras High Court. In the meanwhile it may be that the present suit, like that of Jarndyce, may be "swallowed up in costs." We may add that there have been frequent rows between the native partisans of either party, which have called for the interference of the police court.

STOCK AND MONEY MARKET (MAY 27).—Government paper has undergone a slight depreciation since the date of our last report. Our quotations for the present mail are for Five and Half per Cents. 108½ to 109½, Fives 104 to 104½, and fours 86 to 86½. There has been but little business doing, and the securities are held very firmly at the above rates. The quotation for Bank of Madras shares is 63 to 64 premium; no transactions are reported. The Bank of Madras has reduced its rates 2 per cent. all round during the fortnight. The first reduction was made on the 14th instant, and the second on the 21st instant. The rates for loans on Government securities are now therefore 5 per cent. and for discount on private bills 7 per cent. The tenders for the debenture loan opened at Calcutta on the 21st instant. For the fifteen years term the highest tender was 3 premium; 8 lacs were accepted at eight annas premium, and 41 lacs above eight annas premium. For the 10 years term, 11 lacs were accepted at par, and 11 lacs above par. For the five years term, 26 lacs were accepted at par, and 11 lacs above par. A later telegram informs us that there were buyers of longest term debentures at 2½ premium.

EXCHANGE.—Rates have gone down again since our last report. For the outgoing mail Bank Bills are quoted at 1-11 and 11-16 to 1-11½, Credits 1-11 and 5-6 to 2s., and Documents 2-0 and 3-16 to ¼, very little doing.

RELIEF FOR THE SURVIVORS FROM THE FEVER AT THE MAURITIUS.—Owing to the loss of life from fever at Mauritius a public subscription has been opened for the relief of the survivors at the Oriental Bank and Messrs. Barnett, Hoare, and Co. By recent accounts from the colony it appears that upwards of 20,000 persons have died within a few weeks, and that, "notwithstanding the generous aid of Government and colonists, a vast number of widows and orphans are in the greatest distress." In the city of Port Louis alone, between the middle of February and the middle of May, the mortality amounted to 13,202 persons out of a population of about 80,000, or upwards of sixteen in every hundred in the short space of three months. Mr. Benjamin Greene, jun., of the firm of Messrs. Blyth and Greene, will act as honorary secretary of the fund.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—JUNE 20.

PROMOTION IN REGIMENTS ORDERED TO INDIA.

Colonel S. KNOX inquired of the Secretary of State for War whether, in the case of the 4th Hussars and other cavalry regiments now or hereafter to be ordered to India, the augmentation promotion would be allowed to go in the regiment, or whether it was his intention that majors should be brought in from other corps, or from half-pay, in the manner that had lately given rise to so much complaint.

Sir J. PAKINGTON said that it was the intention of the Government that, in the case of cavalry regiments returning from India or from foreign service, the second major should not be reduced—(hear, hear)—the result of which would be that those complaints which, not without some reason, had arisen on the part of cavalry officers, would be avoided. Whether for the future the augmentation promotion would be allowed to go on in the regiments leaving England he would not take upon himself to say. That must be decided in each case by combined considerations of the public interest and the claims of officers concerned. But in the case of the 4th Hussars, to which the question immediately referred, promotion would be allowed to go on in the regiment as customary, and the senior captain would succeed to the second majority—(hear, hear). He proposed to make one exception to the prospective nature of this arrangement, and that would be in favour of Captain Harnett, of the 11th Hussars—a regiment which went to India in the course of last autumn under the existing arrangement—who had a very junior officer placed over his head. It was his intention that Captain Harnett should be promoted to the second majority of the 11th Hussars, and that Major Jarvis, the officer who was placed over his head, should return to the position in the regiment from which he came.

Colonel KNOX supposed that the senior subaltern, as well as the senior captain, would get the benefit of the promotion in the 4th Hussars.

INDIAN SECURITIES.

Mr. BIDDULPH asked the Secretary of State for India, with reference to the notice recently given for the purpose of reducing the rate of interest on India bonds from five to four per cent., on what principle a notice was given in December last for the purpose of renewing the Indian Five per Cent. Loan expiring in 1870, for another ten years at the same rate of interest, such notice having been given gratuitously two years before it was due; and whether he was aware that when notice of reduction of the interest on India bonds was given on a former occasion, the experiment was unsuccessful.

Sir S. NORTHCOTE: These notices have no connection with each other. The circumstances under which notice of the renewal of the Five per Cent. Loan was given in December last were these. It was at that time necessary to raise an additional sum by way of loan in consequence of the difficulty experienced by the railway companies in raising money, and as it was known that it would be necessary for the Government to renew the loan which expires in 1870, it was thought desirable at once to give notice of the intention to renew it for ten years in order to strengthen the stock and to obtain the loan which the Government desired to raise upon better terms than would otherwise have been got. With reference to the recent notice of the intention to reduce the interest upon India bonds from five to four per cent., it was thought unreasonable that the Indian Government should be paying so high a rate as 5 per cent. upon what are in the nature of exchequer bonds, when the Chancellor of the Exchequer of this country gives upon exchequer bonds only from 2½ to 3 per cent. It was necessary that a year's notice should be given, and that notice was given in the hope and expectation that we shall, when the time comes, be able to carry the reduction into effect. Of course, it is possible that that expectation may not be realised, but in that case nothing can be easier than to raise the rate at the last moment. If the last part of the question relates to the failure of an operation under the government of Lord Dalhousie, all I can say is that that operation was attempted under circumstances totally different from those under which we are acting.

FAMINE IN ORISSA.

Mr. SMOLLETT asked the Secretary of State for India if he was now ready to lay upon the table of the House the correspondence connected with the loss of life through famine in Orissa, promised to be produced immediately after the last Easter holidays.

Sir S. NORTHCOTE said he hoped the papers referred to by the hon. gentleman would be in the hands of members by the end of the week.

THE ABYSSINIAN CAPTIVES.

Lord STRATFORD DE REDCLIFFE called attention to the captives who, together with her Majesty's representative, have now for three years been detained in captivity in Abyssinia, and inquired what steps had been taken in their behalf.

The Earl of DERRY said the captives were still detained. There were Consul Cameron, Mr. Rassam, and other English subjects and six foreigners, making a total of eighteen. A number of artisans had volunteered for the service of the Emperor, but in consequence of the detention of Mr. Rassam neither the artisans nor the presents for the Emperor had been forwarded to him. Before any active steps were taken they must consider the critical position of the prisoners, and under these circumstances it was not desirable to say more.

Lord HOUGHTON said he had received a letter from Mr. Cameron of a very desponding character.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—JUNE 24.

BRITISH CONSULATE AT SAIGON.

Mr. VANDERBYL asked the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs if any steps had been taken with a view of establishing a British Consulate at Saigon, Cochin China, at present under the government of France.

Lord STANLEY: No steps have been taken with a view of establishing a British Consulate at Saigon. I have not received any information which would lead me to believe that such an appointment is desirable. Should any such representation reach me, I shall give it my best consideration.

THE INDIAN MAIL.

In reply to Mr. CRAWFORD,

Mr. W. HUNT said that there would be no objection to produce the advertisement with respect to the tender for the carriage of the Indian Mail.

SECOND LIEUTENANT-COLONELS OF CAVALRY REGIMENTS.

Captain VIVIAN said he understood that the second lieutenant-colonels of cavalry regiments returning from India were about to be placed in a position of great hardship, inasmuch as it would be made compulsory upon them to retire upon half-pay without any prospect of future service. He wished to ask the Secretary for War whether he was prepared to adopt any measure for the removal of that hardship.

Sir J. PAKINGTON said he was not prepared to deny that the case of those officers was one of some hardship. There were only a few of them—not more, he believed, than three or four, and he could not say that he had in contemplation any measure for their immediate relief.

INVESTMENT OF TRUST FUNDS BILL.

Mr. SHERIDAN moved that this Bill be read a second time. The object of the Bill is to allow of the investment of trust funds in Indian securities.

Mr. HENLEY feared that the Bill would introduce a great change in the law in respect of trust property, and asked what the Government thought of it.

Mr. KARSLAKE observed that the Bill was simply permissive, and suggested that it should be postponed to allow of the loan to the Canadian railways being also included in it.

Mr. WALPOLE, on the part of the Government, agreed to the second reading, but on the understanding that they were not pledged to it.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—JUNE 27.

THE SIMLA COURT-MARTIAL.

Mr. BRETT asked the Secretary of State for War whether he could undertake that, until the proceedings of the Simla Court-martial be laid before the House, the sentence of the court-martial shall not be further carried into effect?

Sir J. PAKINGTON: I am sorry that I am unable to return a favourable answer to the question of my hon. and learned friend. In the first place, I think that the course he suggests is open to some objection in point of form; and further, as it is very unusual to submit proceedings of courts-martial to this House, it is not my intention to lay these proceedings on the table. The House will recollect that Captain Jervis was brought to trial upon two charges. The first was a charge by Sir W. Mansfield, relating to his private affairs; and the second was a charge relating to grave acts of insubordination. The House was aware that upon the charge relating to Sir W. Mansfield's private affairs the court-martial returned a verdict of acquittal, and that, with respect to the other charge of insubordination, he was found guilty and sentenced to be dismissed the service, with a recommendation to mercy. Sir W. Mansfield altogether disregarded the recommendation to mercy, the proceedings were forwarded to this country, and when I had the honour of succeeding to the office which I now hold, I found this question awaiting decision. I never heard the slightest imputation upon the perfect fairness and impartiality of the court-martial, and I felt, after examining the case, that my proper course would be as nearly as I could to give effect to its finding. After much consideration, the course which appeared to me to be most strictly just and fair would be that, under the circumstances, Captain Jervis should leave the army, but that he should have the benefit of the recommendation to mercy by being allowed to sell his commission. But a difficulty interposed here, because Captain Jervis did not hold a commission in a purchase corps. He had been an officer in the Indian army, in which there is no purchase or sale. I therefore conferred with the Secretary of State for India, to ascertain by what course it would be possible for him to place Captain Jervis in a position as favourable as if he had been an officer in the Queen's regular service, and the result was that I received a communication from my right hon. friend (Sir S. Northcote) that the Indian Government would be willing to pay Captain Jervis a sum which would be equal to the value of his commission. That decision will appear in the Gazette in the following words:—"Dismissed from the service by sentence of a general court-martial, but permitted, in consideration of the recommendation to mercy of the court, to receive a sum of money equivalent to the value of his commission." (Murmurs from both sides of the House.) I hope my hon. and learned friend and the House will see that I had no desire to bear on Captain Jervis with any undue severity.

Mr. BRETT regretted that, as a relative of Captain Jervis, he could not consider the determination of the right hon. gentleman satisfactory, and he therefore gave notice that on the earliest day he should move that the proceedings of the court-martial be laid upon the table of the House—(hear).

Mr. CRAWFORD asked if the people of India were to be taxed in order that justice might be done between Sir W. Mansfield and Capt. Jervis—(hear).

Sir S. NORTHCOTE said it was the custom when officers in the Indian service were removed to grant them a subsistence allowance, and under the peculiar circumstances of the present case it appeared to the Government to be just that the customary subsistence allowance should be commuted into a capital sum.

SCINDE RAILWAY.

The annual general meeting of this company was held on Tuesday, at the London Tavern; Mr. W. P. ANDREW in the chair.

The reports of this company's undertakings, abstracts of which appeared in our last, were taken as read.

The CHAIRMAN, in moving their adoption, said there were four points which were particularly deserving of notice. One was the great improvement of the harbour of Kurrachee, the second was the increase of the traffic on the Scinde Railway and the diminution of its working charges, the third was the conclusion of arrangements for the purchase of a rival undertaking which had exercised a most prejudicial influence on the success of their flotilla, and the fourth was the opening of the first section of the Delhi Railway to Meerut. With regard to the traffic of the latter line, he could not give the official return, but he could say that the amount had exceeded their expectation, and taxed to the utmost the resources of the company. The part of the country through which it passed was very densely peopled, and in the highest state of cultivation. In the Delhi Railway they would have a valuable property, and one that must return a large percentage on the capital expended. The importance of a railway which, when completed, would join the Punjab Railway at Umritsur, and be connected with the East Indian Railway near Delhi, could not be exaggerated. The Punjab Railway had suffered, like other railways in India, from the floods, and it had suffered more through the loss of the traffic that would have naturally flowed to it by the destruction of the common road of the country. However, it had increased in traffic up to the end of last year; but it could never realise the expectations formed of it unless it was continued from Mooltan down the valley of the Indus, and joined to the Scinde Railway at Kotree. The company's flotilla had worked without sustaining any loss, but for the last half-year with a diminished profit. They only waited for the sanction of the Government to the transfer of the ships and property of the Oriental Inland Steam Company upon the Indus, which would rid them of that opposition. The working expenses on the Scinde Railway were heavy, but he hoped they would be reduced. The harbour of Kurrachee was a subject of great importance in connection with their undertaking. It had been enlarged and improved. He did not agree with the assertion made in some quarters as to the unfitness of the harbour for the accommodation of large ships. The annual returns showed that the trade of Kurrachee had greatly increased.

Mr. CAMPBELL said he could bear testimony to the productiveness of the district between Lahore and Delhi.

Mr. FLEMING said the condition of the harbour at Kurrachee was, in his opinion, most satisfactory.

Sir H. MADDOCK seconded the motion for the adoption of the report, and it was carried unanimously.

Colonel Sir Frederick Arthur was re-elected a director, and Mr. Edward Thornton was re-elected auditor, and the proceedings terminated with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BOMBAY, BARODA, AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.—The report of the directors to the meeting on the 28th inst. states that the total receipts on capital stock, shares, and debentures amounted to £6,180,982, of which the sum of £532,748 was received in the last half-year. The total expenditure (including stores and materials) amounted to £6,526,664. 18s. 11d., of which £3,789,606. 18s. 7d. had been spent in India and £2,737,058. 0s. 4d. in England. Further expenditure in India, to a considerable extent, had been incurred, but has not yet been finally brought to account, as it is waiting the audit of the Bombay Government. Under arrangements recently made in India, it is believed that these arrears of audit will shortly be entirely disposed of. As regards the capital receipts and the provision of funds, the proprietors are aware that with the sanction and under the guarantee of the Secretary of State for India in Council, the sum of £500,000 has been raised by the issue of 5 per cent. debentures having five years to run, with the option of renewal for another five years, and of conversion into shares or stock of the company. To meet the amount due to the Government, and provide for the immediate wants of the company in carrying out their works, a further issue of guaranteed share capital to the extent of £750,000 was also sanctioned, and has been allotted among the proprietors. A considerable portion of this capital would have been issued last year but for the severe financial crisis which occurred in the early part of that period. With regard to the capital expenditure, the condition of the line, and the progress of the works, a report of the chief resident engineer gives detailed information. Reference is made to the unprecedented floods in Western India during the last monsoon, which inflicted considerable damage to the line, but measures are now being taken to secure the portions of line passing through the swamp districts, as far as possible, from the recurrence of any similar disaster. The cost of the immediate repair has been charged in the half-year's revenue account, but the larger expense of the preventive measures just referred to has been sanctioned by the Secretary of State as an addition to the capital cost of the line. To ensure greater safety and economy in working the traffic, short lengths of double line have been laid at different points for the crossing of trains. The sanction of the Government has been obtained to the extension of the line, with guaranteed capital, across the Sabarmuttee River at Ahmedabad, which will now be bridged by an iron viaduct purchased from the Scinde Railway Company for that purpose. An arrangement has been made with the Government for insuring the early completion of the necessary reclamation across Back Bay for the approach of the railway to its destined Colaba terminus at Bombay harbour, and the work is now being vigorously carried on. The gross receipts for the half-year amount to Rs. 18,44,280, as compared with Rs. 20,87,655 for the corresponding half-year of 1865, showing a diminution of Rs. 2,43,875. The working expenses for the half-year amount to Rs. 16,70,833, as compared with Rs. 12,39,564 in 1865, showing an increase of Rs. 4,31,269, and absorbing 90.6 per cent. of the receipts, as compared with 59.37 per cent. in 1865. The receipts per railway mile amount to

Rs. 5,746, as compared with Rs. 7,511 in 1865, being an average of Rs. 218 per mile per week, as compared with Rs. 285 per mile per week in 1865. The receipts per train mile amount to Rs. 5.9-11, as compared with Rs. 5-15-6 in 1865. The working expenses per train mile amount to Rs. 5-1-6, as compared with Rs. 3-8-3 in 1865.

EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.—The forty-first report of the directors of the East Indian Railway Company has just been issued, in which the board regret that more progress has not been made in the works on the Chord line. Some improvement was manifest when the directors last met the shareholders, but it has not been maintained. They have addressed a strong remonstrance to the contractors on the subject, who have assured them that nothing shall be wanting on their part to prevent any further complaint, and their high character justifies the expectation that their assurances will be fulfilled. Doubling the line between Khanoo Junction and Seeterampore, and between Luckieserai and Allahabad, has been commenced. A considerable portion of permanent way materials for the Chord line and for the doubling has been purchased, and is in course of shipment. The board have much satisfaction in reporting the completion of the Jubulpore line, so as to admit of arrangements having been made for its being opened for traffic on the 1st ult. The board desire to record their sense of the energy and punctuality with which Messrs. Waring Brothers and Hunt have carried out the performance of their contract for this work. The board fear that some time must elapse before the line on the Bombay side can be brought into connection with Jubulpore; but, in order in the meantime to encourage a passenger traffic to and from Bombay and Calcutta, and the various parts of India which this company's system embraces, the directors of this company and the Great Indian Peninsula Railway have desired their respective agents to co-operate, with a view to organise (if possible) a temporary coach conveyance between Nagpore and Jubulpore. The Great Indian Peninsula Railway connects Bombay with Nagpore, between which and Jubulpore there is a good public road. If sufficient means of communication by dak or coach be found to be practicable, there is no reason why passengers in this country should not book through to Calcutta or Delhi, or any station between those two cities, and vice versa, via Bombay. No time will be lost in publicly notifying any arrangements which may be made with this object. The locomotives and rolling stock are in good order. The permanent way and works have been thoroughly well maintained, partly by contract and partly by the company's own officers, at a cost of 8-11d. per train mile. The working expenses for the half-year ended the 31st December last were 47-85 per cent., against 47-01 per cent. in the corresponding half-year. The working expenses for the year ended 31st December last were 44-34 per cent., against 44-65 for the previous year. The number of passengers carried during the half-year ended 31st December last was 1,978,344, against 2,066,299 in the corresponding half-year. The tonnage in goods in minerals, exclusive of parcels, carriages, and live stock, for the half-year ended 31st December last, was 402,608 tons, against 360,090 in the corresponding half-year. The result of the year's working is satisfactory, as, notwithstanding a considerable falling off in passenger traffic, arising, doubtless, from the general distress which prevailed during the period, the net earnings were £190,564. 4s. 3d. in excess of those of the previous year, over the same mileage. The passenger traffic during the June half-year has recovered itself, and at the date of the last advices showed an excess over the corresponding half-year. For the half year ended June 30, 1866, the board were enabled to declare a dividend in excess of the guaranteed interest at the rate of $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. per annum. There is not any surplus profit for the half-year ended December 31, and it was scarcely expected, that half of the year, owing to the seasons, being always the least profitable; but the net earnings for the latter period, which show an increase of £38,429 over the corresponding half-year, encourage the hope that when the line is doubled to the extent proposed, and proper facilities exist for the delivery of the traffic, the worse half of the year will give an increased dividend. The board have received advice by telegram that the receipts for the first twenty-three weeks of the half-year ended the 30th ultimo, and which will be dealt with at the next meeting, are, including interest on balances, £1,094,785, against £979,148 for the same number of weeks in the corresponding half-year. The board have issued, since the last meeting, £1,000,000 of share capital, and at an early date they intend to raise a further sum of £1,000,000, either in shares or debentures, as may be agreed upon with the Secretary of State. They consider that this sum, with the amounts yet to be called up on the L shares, will render it unnecessary to issue more capital until next year. A resolution will be submitted to the meeting, consolidating into stock all the paid-up shares in the company which have not already been consolidated into stock. In future, shares paid up during the half-year can only be consolidated into stock at the general meetings of the company.

AMALGAMATION OF MESSRS. BARING AND CO. WITH MESSRS. FINLAY AND CO.—An amalgamation between two eminent commercial firms has been announced, and the occurrence has created general interest, from the high standing and celebrity of both. The firms in question are Messrs. Baring Brothers and Co. and Messrs. Finlay, Hodgson, and Co., and the arrangement is to date from the 1st of July next. In connection with this event it is understood that three partners will then retire altogether from business, viz., Mr. Charles Baring Young from the house of Baring Brothers and Co., and Mr. Duncan James Kay and Mr. Kirkman Finlay from that of Finlay, Hodgson, and Co. The firm of Baring Brothers and Co., one of the most distinguished of the many representatives of English mercantile enterprise in its best form, was founded in 1763, under the designation of John Francis Baring and Co., the name of Baring Brothers only dating from 1805. The present partners are: Mr. Thomas Baring, M.P., Mr. Charles Baring Young, Mr. Russell Sturgis, Mr. Edward Charles Baring, and Mr. Henry Bingham Mildmay. The house of Finlay, Hodgson, and Co. was established in 1809, and has long occupied a high position in connection with the India and China trade. Their branch in Liverpool, Messrs. Thomson, Finlay, and Co., will also, we believe, be included in the union now formed.

CONSULAR APPOINTMENT.—(Foreign-office, June 20.)—The Queen has been graciously pleased to appoint Lieutenant-colonel Robert Lambert Playfair, of the Royal Madras Artillery, and lately her Majesty's Consul at Zanzibar, to be her Majesty's Consul-general in Algeria.

She took out thirty first and twenty-eight second-class passengers, and on freight a general cargo, including gold coin, £99; dollars, £11,765; gold thread and jewellery, £4,069; corals and watches, £439; silver plate, £50; and Insignia Star of India, £1,225.

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY BOMBAY MAIL.—(SOUTHAMPTON, June 26.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company's steamship Ripon, Captain Rogers, with the heavy portion of the above mail, arrived this morning. She brings 101 passengers; specie, £315; and a general cargo. On the 21st the Rapon spoke the schooner Marwood, of Aberystwith, and on the 25th the barque Nautilus; both vessels wished to be reported.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.
—INSTANT RELIEF.—Sores which are daily extending, ulcers which are hourly deepening, may be arrested in their torturing progress, and induced to take a healthy action by applying this healing Ointment and taking these purifying Pills. It soothes all distempers of, and extracts all morbid humours from, the skin. Old ulcers of the legs, inflammations caused by varicose veins, and cramps of the lower limbs can sensibly be eased and shortly cured by Holloway's never-failing Ointment, which repels excessive and stimulates sluggish vascular and nervous action. In constitutions breaking down under piles, fistulas, and other similar painful ma-ladies, a few applications of this cooling Ointment will give comfort, and a persistence in its use will effect a cure.

The Accumulated Profits of the UNIVERSAL, at the Thirty-third Annual Investigation in 1867 amounted to £202,973.
Upwards of four-fifths of this sum is reserved to enter into the average of future years. The remaining fifth allows of a reduction of the Premium upon all Participating Policies Six Years in force on the same liberal scale as for several years past; namely, 50 per cent., or one-half the original Premium.
Policies, English or Indian, upon which the Premium was originally £100, will thus be charged with £50 only of Premium for the current year, May, 1867-68.

New Policies issued in 1866 for £206,315, at an Annual Premium of £13,352. Policies in force, £2,622,000. Accumulated Funds, £204,990. Annual Income, £138,000.

The Directors in England and in India beg to draw the attention of the public to the great economy of Premiums in this Society, to its large reserves, and to its experience of a third of a century, during which it has secured the utmost possible benefit to the assured. The Policy-holders have received cash returns of upwards of £650,000, in addition to more than a Million and a Half Sterling, paid in claims upon of India.
